More Gas Finds In Peace

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — The oil and gas exploration picture in northeastern British Columbia was broadened Tuesday when Wainoco Oil Corporation of Houston, Tex., announced two discoveries in the Flatrock area northeast of here.

The corporation announced completion of separate wells producing oil and gas. Both wells are located about four miles from previous oil discoveries in the Cecil Lake-Eagle area.

Wainoco, in partnership with Wainoco Oil Ltd., the company's Canadian subsidiary, owns 100 per cent of the working interest in the oil well and 1,920 acres of leases surrounding it.

Follow-up drilling will be delayed because of a scarcity of drilling equipment, said Gary Woods, Wainoco vice-president.

Woods said it is not known how quickly the gas well will be hooked up to existing pipeline facilities.

"I get the impression the government is confused on the likely impacts," says Andrew Shuck, mayor of Fort Nelson.

Victoria has 40 departments working on the project, he says, "and common sense tells me that when you get 40 departments you get a very confused mess."

Fort Nelson has run out of room for new housing and commercial development, says Shuck, and needs to plan expansion immediately to meet the demands of 1980 pipeline construction.

Information on the exact pipeline route and planned access roads is also unavailable, he adds, raising the possiblility that sensitive moose and elk migration routes might be opened directly to the highway.

"It's inconceivable to me that the B.C. government would go to the federal government to negotiate without ever coming to the people of the north to ask their views," Shuck says. "It could be disastrous."

RESUME PROBE: THOMPSON

U.S. Pressuring For B.C. Oil Port

OTTAWA (CP) — Immediate resumption of the West Coast oil ports inquiry has been called for by Dr. Andrew Thompson who says there is strong United States pressure for an oil port in British Columbia.

Thompson, a law professor at the University of British Columbia, says in an interim report to the federal government issued today that he fears Canada will bow to the U.S. pressure without fully considering the social, economic and environmental risks involved.

In a letter and accompanying 150-page report of the commission which he headed, Thompson says he wants a decision by the end of March on resumption of the inquiry.

"The uncertainty about this matter places me in a difficult position," Thompson said, adding it calls into question the integrity of inquiries in general and him personally in this case.

The inquiry was set up last year after Kitimat Pipe Line Ltd. applied for permission to build a pipeline from Kitimat to Edmonton where it would connect with existing lines into the U.S. Alaskan oil would be delivered to Kitimat by tanker.

Thompson makes it clear he feels there is still work to be done, saying even without a proposed terminal at Kitimat, British Columbia faces real dangers because of existing oil tanker traffic off its coast.

He said the people of British Columbia fear Ottawa, facing pressure from the U.S., will make a decision on a West Coast oil port before a proper assessment is completed "as has been the case with the Alaskan Highway natural gas pipeline."

That pipeline has been approved to move Alaskan natural gas to U.S. markets, but there has still been no detailed study of social and environmental affects, he said.

Last fall, after Kitimat placed its application in abeyance while use of an existing pipeline was considered, the oil ports inquiry adjourned with a promise it would be reactivated if the application was reactivated.

But Thompson says a cabinet order passed in December gives the federal government the right to say whether the commission will resume its work and if no decision is reached by the end of March "the inquiry will automatically terminate."

Consumers To Pay, Says Clark

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers are going to pay the cost for inept government economic management that has forced it to seek foreign borrowing to support the dollar, Opposition Leader Joe Clark charged Wednesday.

The Liberal government now will be forced to raise domestic interest rates to attract capital, Clark suggested during emergency Commons debate that turned into a wide-ranging attack on government economic policies.

Higher interest rates will create inflationary pressures and make new investment more expensive for companies, Clark said at the outset of the debate that lasted for more than six hours on a night MPs usually have free.

Clark was joined by Ed Broadbent, leader of the New Democratic Party, in charging that international money markets have lost confidence in government handling of the economy.

Both Clark and Broadbent said Chretien was responsible for much of the current uncertainty about the country's economic future that is plaguing world money markets.

Chretien replied that the opposition parties were trying to "create a crisis" where none existed. He said the dollar's closing price Wednesday of 89.73 cents U.S. is the same as it was five months ago and only half-a-point lower than on Feb. 1.

"Half a point and they call it a big crisis," he told jeering opposition benches.

The Canadian dollar was down 1-20 at $0.8968 today in New York. In Montreal, the U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 3-50 at $1.1150.

Meanwhile, The U.S. dollar plunged even lower on overseas markets today. Foreign exchange dealers in Bonn said again today they were skeptical about American willingness to back the dollar. It is noted that a falling dollar in itself will help make American exports cheaper, and therefore ease the U.S. deficit.

Speaker after speaker echoed the remarks of their leaders amid cat-calls from across the floor. The government was accused of flim-flamming Parliament, of lying to MPs and of generally mismanaging the economy. Liberals replied that a lower dollar helps exports and Canadian business.

The emergency debate was granted by Speaker James Jerome after a government announcement Tuesday night that an undisclosed amount of foreign borrowing is being arranged to support the dollar.

The government is also drawing on a special $1.5 billion standby credit it arranged with domestic chartered banks last fall. Details are to be revealed in a few days, Chretien says.

Defending government policies, Chretien said economic recovery now is under way. Output grew at a real rate of five per cent in the final half

★ Federal Estimates Fail To Impress

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President Robert Andras failed to impress opposition critics Wednesday with government plans to spend $48.8 billion in the coming fiscal year.

Andras, who holds the government's purse strings, said federal spending in the year beginning April 1 will rise by 9.8 per cent or $4.35 billion from the 1977 level. (See other estimats stories on page 44).

The rate of increase is expected to be less than the combination of real economic growth and the inflation rate in 1978, he said. Government officials have predicted real growth of five per cent and inflation of six per cent by the end of this year.

Soon after Andras tabled his figures in the Commons, they were attacked as a charade and "sad and perverse."

Progressive Conservative treasury critic Harvie Andre, joining in the numbers game, said in the last 10 years federal spending had quadrupled. The government's expected deficit this year, estimated at $9.2 billion, will be higher than the total federal budget the year before Prime Minister Trudeau took office, he said.

"There are cancers that don't grow that fast," Andre said.

Max Saltsman, NDP financial critic, said the government had displayed cowardice by knuckling under to a conservative swing in the country during an expected election year.

"This is a pretty sad and perverse document we've been handed today and there is no sign the government plans to do anything about the shame and scandal of unemployment," said Saltsman, MP for Waterloo-Cambridge.

HOLIDAY SPECIALS FOR SHORT PEOPLE?

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's tourist industry, sparked by a similar plan in Missouri, is investigating the idea of offering special package holidays for short people.

The Missouri plan is the result of a current popular song, Short People, which has nothing good to say about short people.

Attractions being offered in Missouri include: the Ozarks a "small mountain range", and the Meramac Caverns near St. Louis "suitable for short people because the roofs are so low."

Grace McCarthy, B.C. tourism minister, said Wednesday that Missouri's tours may be tongue-in-cheek proposals, but there could be a legitimate market for B.C. concerns.

Canada's Gazetteer shows potential interest spots in B.C.: Shorts Point on the west side of Oakangan Lake; Little Tim Creek in the Kootenays; Small Creek in the Cariboo; and Cutoff Mountain in the Cassiar District.

Hugh Main, general manager of the Greater Vancouver Visitors and Convention Bureau, said Wednesday he finds the idea intriguing and immediately launched a campaign to ask B.C. tour and travel firms if they would offer holidays for short people.

Main said he wondered whether short people would want to travel in conspicuous groups, but agreed they might find the experience an opportunity to rid themselves of any inhibitions.

Bureau president Dave Flett said he feels more sorry for tall people because "they have problem of asking hotels for oversized beds — they never know where to put their legs."

Allmand Doubts Bug

OTTAWA (CP) — Former solicitor-general Warren Allmand said today the RCMP has an obligation to confirm or deny whether they instructed undercover agent Warren Hart to bug him because they thought he was a Communist.

But, he added, he personally doubts the force would have done such a thing.

Allmand told reporters that, contrary to a signed statement by Hart, the agent never told him he was the subject of electronic snooping. Hart came to see him in 1975 because he wanted help, Allmand said.

Allmand, now consumer affairs minister, was chief law enforcement officer and head of the RCMP when the incident involving Hart took place.

The U.S. Navy said today it has a civilian employee by the name of Warren Hart.

A navy spokesman said he has been employed since last August at the Patuxent River naval station, 50 miles southeast of Washington, as a chauffeur-messenger.

But the spokesman added that he understands the employee has denied giving an affidavit to Canadian MP Elmer MacKay (PC-Central Nova).

MacKay released an affidavit and supporting documents Wednesday in which a Warren Hart stated that he had conducted electronic eavesdropping for the RCMP and in the course of gathering information on alleged radicalism taped the conversations of some Canadian political figures. That Hart also said he now is employed by U.S. naval intelligence, but living near poverty level.

The Warren Hart at Patuxent could not be reached immediately for comment.

Canadian Nutrition 'Emergency'

OTTAWA (CP) — The nutritional condition of Canadians has reached a state of emergency despite an abundance of food, Health Minister Monique Begin said Wednesday.

Millions suffer from not eating well, Begin told the opening session of the national food strategy conference. "We have a great distance to go before we can be satisfied that we have done all we can for food safety and nutrition."

Health professionals, producers, consumers and other groups in the food system are trying to make the public more aware of nutritional needs, she said.

Nutrition has been identified as a problem by the federal discussion paper on a national food strategy which forms the basis for the two-day conference. The conference ends today after delegates discuss the recommendations of a myriad of workshops.

The Canada Food Guide, prepared by the federal health department, spells out food requirements and could correct the situation whereby 50 per cent of the adult population is overweight and 24 per cent have lost all their teeth, she said.

Begin said her department also plans to begin administering "the Food and Drugs Act and its regulations so that it does more to promote good nutrition." New food and food technologies were coming on the market and new guides were required to make sure those protein sources "will be as safe and nutritious as the old foods."

"We want to encourage the development of food products that are in line with our dietary recommendations and will be clearly labelled for consumer information."

Agriculture and fisheries would benefit through increased demand for their products if the diet guide were more rigorously adhered to, Begin said.

ICBC Cast As Loser

New Westminster NDP MLA Dennis Cocke has charged the government is undercutting the Insurance Corporation of B.C. by letting a private insurance company use ICBC facilities to conduct business.

Cocke said the provincial government is so desperate to bring private insurance back to B.C that it is doing special favors for the private insurers.

Cocke says under the arrangement, ICBC staff and facilities will be used to do appraisals for Royal Insurance, the only private insurer of motor vehicles in the province.

He said the rates ICBC charges Royal won't cover the actual cost of staff time and the use of ICBC claims centres and facilities.

He also claimed ICBC is encouraging private insurers to cover the best risks, leaving the publicly-owned ICBC with a disproportionate number of high risk drivers.

Cocke said a Royal spokesman told him the company would pay economic rates for the service it will get from ICBC.

"I'll bet they are economic — economic for the company," he said.

Keable Lawyers Rush to Appeal

MONTREAL (CP) — Lawyers for the Keable commission are scheduled to appear March 6 before the Supreme Court of Canada to ask permission to appeal Tuesday's lower court decision shutting down the inquiry.

If permission is granted, the appeal could be heard as early as April.

Keable commission researcher Hubert Sacy said Wednesday that for the Supreme Court to agree to hear an appeal of a lower court decision, it must be convinced that questions raised are of national concern.

In the majority opinion of a three-man court, Quebec Court of Appeal Justice Rodolphe Pare found that Commissioner Jean Keable had violated the Official Secrets Act by obtaining "secret" RCMP documents, using them, and allowing them to be tabled in public hearings.

Mr. Justice Pare said Quebec provincial and Montreal police, who obtained the papers from the Mounties in an information-sharing arrangement five years ago, had violated the law by giving them to the commission without first obtaining permission from federal authorities.

Testimony is expected from five witnesses. All have already appeared before the Keable commission.

The scheduled witnesses are: RCMP Staff Sgt. Francois d'Entremont, former RCMP constable Robert Samson—now serving a prison term on an unrelated bombing charge—retired Quebec provincial police director Maurice St. Pierre, Montreal Urban Community Sgt.-Det. Fernand Tanguay and Quebec provincial police constable Pierre Champagne.

Consumers To Pay — Clark

of last year. Tax cuts and corporate incentives worth $3 billion are stimulating economic activity, he said.

This was challenged by Sinclair Stevens, chief Progressive Conservative finance critic, who quoted U.S. financial reports expressing doubt about the strength of the Canadian economy.

There are also fears that the U.S. economy may be headed for a recession this year. The U.S. takes 70 per cent of Canada's products.

Broadbent and James Gillies (PC—Don Valley) both cited a lack of specific short- and medium-term policies from last week's federal-provincial economic conference as an unsettling factor for markets.

Broadbent urged the government to take the lead by initiating capital projects that have already been recommended, including improving the rail system and developing urban transit systems. This is essential to spur economic activity, he said.

Rene Firm on Language

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Premier Rene Levesque said today he would not compromise on his proposal to his fellow premiers for reciprocal agreements on minority language education rights.

As Levesque entered a meeting with the premiers, he said he was willing "to clarify it, yes, to compromise or back down on principles, no."

The reciprocal arrangements were rejected by the nine other premiers at their annual conference in St. Andrews, N.B., last August and most still oppose them.

Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon, who was elected last fall after the St. Andrews conference, seemed to sum up the feeling here when he said the results of the special meeting "could well be" inconclusive.

Premier Richard Hatfield, chairman of the closed session, told reporters Wednesday he did not think the subject of reciprocal agreements should even be on the agenda, although he said he would be flexible.

Hatfield said the meeting will simply involve discussion of a report by provincial education ministers on the state of minority language education, and follow up on the premiers' statement promising to do their utmost to increase minority-language education opportunities.

"Now we've got to put more flesh on the bones of the St. Andrews' statement," Hatfield said before an informal dinner at the start of the meeting.

Some of the premiers prefer Prime Minister Trudeau's suggestion for a constitutional change guaranteeing minority language rights to any other suggestion.

"I want a system that is based on a Canadian system of minority language rights and not any agreement with this or any other government of Quebec," said Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island.

Levesque's proposal would permit English-speaking Canadians moving into Quebec access to English schools—something now prohibited under the French Language Charter—in return for adequate access to French-language schooling in the other provinces.

Premier Bill Davis of Ontario said multilateral agreements could not work because the situation in each of the nine primarily English-language provinces is different as regards its French-speaking minority

But Davis said he would not be part of any common front against Quebec and added he was looking for "no single solution" to the question.

Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon, who was only elected last fall after the St. Andrews meeting, said he wanted to make sure that Levesque does not try to use reciprocal agreements to score political points in his drive for Quebec independence in association with the rest of Canada.

"I don't think any of the premiers are down here to make side agreements with Mr. Levesque to undergird his main thrust, which is separatism," Lyon said.

The Conservative premier repeated criticism of federal spending on official bilingualism and said the millions "wasted" on teaching French to civil servants "could be redirected into the school system.

The premiers arrived late Wednesday and spent the evening at a private dinner hosted by the Levesque at a chic restaurant in Old Montreal. The dinner was described as "full of laughs and good times."

Sweeter Investor Pot Eyed

The provincial government is considering ways to make the B.C. Resource Investment Corporation more attractive to investors.

Mines Minister James Chabot said in an interview Wednesday some Crown-owned petroleum lands will be transferred to the corporation.

He declined to say how much land is involved, adding the matter is still under negotiation.

The corporation, modelled after the Alberta Energy Commission, will manage companies and share holdings purchased by the former NDP government. It is expected to be formed later this year.

Chabot said only Canadians will be able to buy shares in the corporation but the first offering will be made to British Columbians.

The Robbery Lingers On

VANCOUVER (CP) — When Brian Midgely rolled out the door of his moving car to escape a shotgun-wielding bank robber who subsequently drove into a tree, the Insurance Corp. of British Columbia took away his two-year safe-driving discount.

Midgely doesn't think that's fair.

The city bank manager's problems began Feb. 15, 1977, when a man walked robbed Midgely's bank branch of $4,988, put a shotgun to Midgely's head and forced the bank manager to drive his own car as a getaway vehicle.

A wild car chase by police ensued.

Blocks later, Midgely slowed the car, opened the door and rolled out onto the road to safety.

The gunman drove on alone and was caught when he lost control of Midgely's 1975 Dodge Coronet and drove it into a tree.

The car was destroyed.

This month, Midgely received his computer printout invoice for his 1978 auto insurance premiums, including a notification that he had lost his two-year, safe-driving discount.

"I knew I should be getting the two-year discount," he said Tuesday. "I thought ICBC was being dogmatic or got caught up in red tape."

Bob Egby, director of media relations for ICBC, said the company's computers simply looked at the new licence plate application and reduced the safe-driving discount to one year from two.

But Egby said ICBC directors heard of the story and decided to intervene. Midgely got his two-year discount, as well as collision, third-party and liability coverage of $500,000 for his new car.

PLANT CLOSING APPEALED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada union Wednesday asked Premier Bill Bennett to investigate the planned closure of Bonar and Bemis Ltd.'s paper plant here.

The company, with headquarters in Burlington, Ont. plans to phase out its paper bag plant by the end of June—a move the union said will put 60 people out of work.

PPWC spokesman Frank Jennings said the union is asking Bennett to conduct a meeting with the company and is further requesting that the company be required to keep all workers on the job until a thorough investigation is made.

Plant manager Alf Cooke said the building is for sale, expansion of the company's Calgary plant has started and he can't see what government action could stop the closure although the company is willing to meet government officials.

Cooke said the plant is closing because of lack of business, and changes in product transportation methods, such as bulk shipping.

The plant has manufactured paper, textiles and flexible packaging products since the early 1930s. Bonar and Bemis said it intends to maintain a sales staff in Vancouver.

Stop-Sun Aid Asked

MONTREAL (CP) — Lawyer Richard Holden has appealed to Prime Minister Trudeau for financial help in the campaign to stop the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada from moving its head office out of Montreal.

Holden, a Sun Life policyholder, is organizing other policyholders to oppose a board of directors' proposal to move the firm's head office to Toronto. Policyholders are to vote on the move April 25 at a special meeting in Toronto.

The lawyer told reporters Wednesday that Sun Life management has granted the dissident group access to a mailing list of more than 1 million policyholders, but it is expected to cost between $150,000 and $200,000 to conduct a mailing campaign to them all.

In his letter to the prime minister, Holden noted he represents a "substantial" number of policyholders "whose principal motivation is the maintenance of Canadian unity."

"My clients believe the the unity of Canada will be weakened if Sun Life moves its head office out of Montreal at this juncture in our history," the letter said.

Sun Life has spent policyholders' funds to promote the move to Toronto, but has refused financial assistance to the opposing group, Holden added.

The dissidents are trying privately to raise funds for their mailing campaign, but Holden asked Trudeau for a guarantee that any shortfalls in funds would be covered by the federal government.

Women's Prison A Hotel - Guard

VANCOUVER (CP) — A male guard at the women's section of the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla) said Wednesday that the jail is Hotel Oakalla, where prisoners are the guests and women guards serve as bellhops.

In addition, said Jim Ellerbeck, "the policy for the institution is that there is no policy, no leadership."

Ellerbeck, one of nine male guards on the jail's security staff, was speaking at a royal commission investigating conditions in British Columbia jails for women.

He also said that:

—Taking male guards out of the jail would "blow the lid off the place," letting the prisoners take over completely;

—The jail's 60 women guards work under atrocious conditions because of intimidation by prisoners;

—To prisoners, isolation isn't punshment, it's a few days' rest with most of the comforts of their living quarters;

—The high number of repeaters among prisoners at the jail make it "old home week" most of the time;

—Most prisoners were on a first-name basis with Robert Burns and Stan Hofseth, director and deputy director at the jail until they were replaced 2½ months ago.

"The matrons (women guards) are on almost exactly the same level as the inmates," said Ellerbeck, 35, a jail guard for 10 years, the last 10 months at the women's jail.

Women guards are totally on their own, he said, "living by their wits to survive" without the backing of consistent policies and enforced jail rules.

They are intimidated, he said, by obscenities from the prisoners, "that gets worse when you put them in cages."

"Nobody ever crimes (charges) inmates for swearing at the staff even though its against the jail rules and regulations," he said. "The majority of staff have given up criming inmates for anything."

Minister Of Disasters

LONDON (CP) — There's something absolutely uncanny about the Rt. Hon. Denis Howell, 54, the rotund, bespectacled, smiling minister for sport.

He was one of Britain's lesser-known politicians up to the scorching summer of 1976 when Prime Minister James Callaghan appointed him minister of drought.

The next day, it started to rain and it pelted down for six weeks until reservoirs — so dry that they cracked — were overflowing.

Now Callaghan has called on Howell again — this time as minister of snow to co-ordinate government efforts to unlock the southwest part of the country from the grip of the most severe winter in living memory.

As soon as the rail line down to Devon was opened through the drifts, Howell went on an inspection tour. The next day, the thaw set in.

"I am worried about the effects of a sudden thaw," he said at the time. "That could lead to another problem, so the emergency is by no means over."

The next day, the Devon town of Kingsbridge was under seven feet of water.

Asked whether his next job would be as minister of floods, Howell replied, "The prime minister uses me for all sorts of emergencies — I'm getting used to it by now."

This winter, relatively mild by most Canadian standards, has been a disaster for some parts of Britain.

Towns and villages have been cut off for days. Rail service into London — one area which has escaped all but the lightest dusting of snow — has been disrupted.

Armed forces helicopters have been making fodder drops to snowbound farms and airlifting the sick and injured to hospitals.

MARK SQUISHED

OTTAWA (CP) — Registration of the trade mark 'OFF!' for an insect repellant sold in Canada by S. C. Johnson and Son, Ltd. is invalid, the Federal Court of Appeal has ruled.

The 3-to-0 ruling ends another chapter in the insect repellant war between 'OFF!' and newcomer 'Bugg Off.'

Chief Justice W. R. Jackett wrote in the judgment, released Wednesday, that the trade mark 'OFF!' is not distinctive enough to distinguish it from other such products.

'OFF!' is sold in liquid, spray or foam form, and has been on the market for roughly 18 years. 'Bugg Off', sold by Marketing International Ltd., consists of packages of small towels impregnanted with repellants and entered the Canadian market in 1975.

TENTATIVE HERRING AGREEMENT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The herring negotiating committee of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union has reached a tentative one-year agreement with the British Columbia Fisheries Association, Bill Procopation, business agent for the union, said Wednesday.

Procopation said that if the agreement is ratified by the membership, the minimum prices for the coming season will be $220 a ton for seine crewmen and $430 a ton for gill netters, up 50 per cent from last year.

We Shall Overrun

There are budget overruns, and there are budget overruns. When it's $100 million overspending in welfare and other social services by a New Democratic Party government, it's fiscal irresponsibility by a group that couldn't run a peanut stand.

The NDP's defeat in 1975 in large part can be blamed on its image as wastrels, which that budget overrun created. Now the political party which hammered away on that theme for months and got elected as government has given birth to an overrun which is king of them all — $165 million.

Well, well. We remember Social Credit's election promise (under the heading "waste and mismanagement" in its little campaign pamphlet) to "end $100,000,000 budget overruns" and they have certainly done that, although replacing them with $165 million overruns is not quite what people expected.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe's attempts to explain away the $165 million is interesting when focussed with hindsight. "We're on a committed program to stimulate the economy and to reduce unemployment by keeping up the highway construction program," he said.

And where did former human resources minister Norman Levi's famous $100 million go? Into a rathole?

Enough recriminations. Perhaps it is time that everyone stopped pretending that budget overruns and special spending warrants are the original sin. To come within th)ee or four per cent of one's estimate on a total budget of more than $3 billion — prepared for a year ahead some months before the date it is introduced — is getting as close to the bullseye as mortal man and finance department computer projections enable.

Might it be possible in the future that debate concentrate on what the budget overruns or underruns are paying for, instead of how many tens of millions of dollars the government is off-target?

A Change of Heart

Three months ago a mayoralty candidate in Saanich was charging that the municipal council was refusing to make public a study about soil stability in the Cordova Bay area. He said the then-mayor's failure to release the study "goes to the heart of the whole argument facing Saanich — namely, is council open or not?"

Two months ago the same individual, having just won his election race to become mayor, was saying he "wanted to impress on staff the importance of creating a helpful attitude to citizens needing help, be it for information or for processing specific requests."

Now the same individual, Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier, is suggesting that citizens should have to pay to get public information from their municipal hall if the time taken by staff in finding the information is "excessive." He told his council he questions whether it is a sound use of public money "if we are merely providing campaign material for pseudo-politicians to run in the next election."

What a remarkable change of heart! When he himself had trouble getting information when he was a declared candidate, it showed that council was not open. Now that other people — who may or may not be candidates in an election eight months or more away — want information, it shows they are "pseudo-politicians" who shouldn't be able to find out things without paying for the privilege.

But information about our governments should not be a privilege. It should be a right in a democratic society. The questions being asked have to do with civic projects on which thousands of Saanich tax dollars were spent; moreover, they are extremely similar to questions Couvelier himself asked before he was elected.

Now Couvelier doesn't ask the questions any more. He says he checked into the matter after taking office and found no evidence of deliberate wrongdoing. He says he will institute procedures to ensure that such things will not happen again.

But he has not disclosed precisely what he did find. That being so, why should the Saanich citizens trust his reassurances, any more than he trusted those of his predecessor in office? Until the answers are given publicly, the questions remain valid.

There are probably a few — a very few — exceptional cases where it would be reasonable for a municipality to expect a citizen to contribute to the cost of research, perhaps an instance where records 50 years old or more must be found or an instance where the information-seeker is not a resident of the municipality. But there should be almost none of these instances, and where staff thinks a particular request is getting out of hand, they should refer the matter to the full council, not decide themselves to charge for their services.

Council was entirely right to refer the policy back to committee. The aldermen now should reject Couvelier's ideas entirely. At the same time they might remind him of a few of the things he said before he'd reached the seat of power.

RICHARD GWYN

Agony of the Missing Poll

OTTAWA — This is a quite hopeless week to try to talk to any politician in Ottawa, or to any political reporter or political groupie. If you encounter Sen. Keith Davey, avert your eyes. All of us have the distraught, hyperventilating symptoms of a cigarette smoker four days after kicking the habit. The reason is that we've been denied our fix: the Gallup poll isn't going to be published this month.

It may be that you don't care about our pain. This can only be because you don't understand what it's like to live with a Gallup poll.

Consider Davey for a start. How on earth can he tell ("advise" is the euphemism Davey would prefer to use) Prime Minister Trudeau when to call the next election without Gallup's monthly measurement of the mood of the huddled masses.

Maritime Gains

The last poll, in January, showed the Liberals down from 42 percentage points to 40, the Conservatives holding steady at 34 points while the New Democrat socialist horde swelled to 19 per cent. (The bulk of that NDP gain, by the way, came in the Atlantic provinces where, in Newfoundland, the NDP may come remarkably close to electing their first federal member.)

The Liberals took for granted they would drop yet another point or two in the February poll. They expect their key test to come in the March poll. If the Liberals hold at least steady between February and March, then Trudeau has been advised (told) to call an election quicker than you can say "Justin, Sacha and Charles-Emile", which, from the instant the election campaign does actually begin, you'll find yourself saying a great deal of the time. (As in, "Who's that guy on the platform with Justin, Sacha and Charles-Emile?")

Crafty thinking. Except that, for lack of a poll in February, how will the Liberals in March know how they are really doing? A count of 40 percentage points then might mean they are still going down, or staying level, or beginning to come up, but only because of all that free teleision time Trudeau got at the first ministers' conference.

Consider next, me. How, without a Gallup poll, am I going to fill up the rest of this column. As an inadequate substitute for an in depth analysis of the meaning of non-existent statistics, let me offer you instead a preview of the campaign strategies planned by the three major parties, no matter when the election is held.

Had an election been called for last fall, as it very nearly was, Trudeau intended to campaign almost entirely on the economy. He will do so again, thus catching Canadians by surprise since it is widely assumed the Liberals know nothing about the economy, and anyway find the subject boring.

Trudeau, indeed, does find the subject boring. He will talk about the economy though, not in order to talk about it as such but in order to prevent himself from being criticized for not talking about it. If you follow what I mean.

The Liberals being no fools, Trudeau, in between impassioned oratory about demand management and counter-cyclical budgeting, will talk every now and then about what he really wants to talk about. Two things. First, that it would be unpatriotic of urban Ontario (the place where this pitch will play the best) not to vote Liberal since Quebec, as everyone knows, is going to vote Liberal even if Trudeau made Kurdish our second official language.

Thus, if the Liberals are sent into opposition, so will Quebec. Second, that while he, Trudeau, may have made rather a mess of things, does anyone seriously expect Joe Clark to do any better?

To do better by himself, Clark will model his campaign on the recent successful effort by Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon. In part, he will run against big government; Clark the other day showed his hand by promising to trim the civil service by 20,000.

Manitoba Model

In part, Clark will run away and hide. Like Clark vs. Trudeau, Lyon trailed far behind his opponent, then-Premier Ed Schreyer, in personal popularity. Lyon won by doing nothing to remind Manitobans that by defeating Schreyer they would be electing him. Watch for Clark to spend the entire campaign in Tuktoyaktuk, and then to win every seat in the country but that one.

New Democrat Ed Broadbent's strategy will be to get everyone to remember that he still exists.

If Gallup — which made a mistake in the printing of its French language questionnaire — goofs again in March, the spectacle in Ottawa will be painful to watch. Davey may take up smoking, as Jim Coutts already does; Davey may even, as he never has yet, say something stronger than "gosh", as Trudeau once or twice has been known to do.

Army Reunion

It is hoped that a detective story without murder, fraud or other crime may be sufficiently novel as to win space in your paper.

There is such a story of a Canadian army unit that served throughout Europe in the Second World War. This unit, the 65th Tank Transport Company, RCASC was disbanded in Holland in 1945. Ex-members departed for civvy street in every part of Canada and contact between individuals was lost.

Twenty-eight years later, two former members met in Flin Flon, Man. and speculated on what had happened to their wartime friends. It was decided to try for some answers. It should be noted that a 28-year-old trail is a cold trail and difficult to follow. The first answer was a shock, a man remembered as a happy joking youth and unit favorite was found dying in an Edmonton hospital. A notice in the Legion magazine produced eight replies, all from the area between Sydney, N.S. and Powell River, B.C. (a truly generous hunting preserve). The search became a chain reaction as the members when found joined in the endeavor. After some progress had been made, the undertaking was organized by province with exchange of information. Leads were dredged up from memory, unit daily orders (source Ottawa Records), from old address books, phone books, old photos, etc.

Four and a half years of detective work has located 210 living ex-members and about 35 deceased out of a possible total of about 700. The search continues.

Will anyone reading this, please check with your Second World War army acquaintances; if a 65th man be found, please advise him of a company reunion to be held at North Bay, Ont. July 7-9. For reunion details and other important information, he should contact Maurice Rainsforth, PO Box 1071, Stirling, Ontario, 613-395-3052 or the writer — L. L. Purdy, PO Box 145, Waterloo, Quebec.

It's No Luxury

I spoke at the last school board meeting about the importance of art in elementary education and the necessity for every child to be able to express himself creatively so that they do not become inhibited, uncultured adults.

Your report of this in your Feb. 14 issue (page 25) was incomplete. Only one trustee's comments were mentioned, whereas other trustees, including John Young, Dr. Mark Fisher and Carol Pickup, made very positive comments and concurred with my presentation. There seemed to be a general agreement that art, as creative expression, has been thought of as a luxury and is not at present included in the elementary curriculum.

If enough parents would make these demands known to the department of eduction, more art teachers can then be trained to meet these demands. — Tine Andriessen Booth, 2890 Foul Bay Road.

Keep Museum Open

Her Royal Highness — Queen of Tourism has just released another edict. The provincial museum will close at 6 p.m. during the summer. Why not close Butchart's Gardens at 6 p.m. and have the last ferry sail at the same time?

The cry to private enterprise is: "Keep the tourists here. Each hour they stay means more revenue to our city." During the summer we have more than 10,000 visitors a day viewing the museum. Why not open at 9 a.m. during July and August at least? As a volunteer at the museum, I have seen a line-up by 9 a.m. and a crowd before 10 a.m. We should be open until 9 p.m. at night also. Our stores close at 6 p.m. Why shouldn't our visitors have the museum to visit in the evenings? One person I was speaking to said that on the trip from Prince Rupert to Victoria via Kelsey Bay, 11 people said: "Don't miss the museum in Victoria."

If the tours at the Parliament buildings can run the long hours they do during the tourist season with fabulous wages paid, why can't the museum have similar hours?

A large proportion of the staff at the museum are volunteers. We do this work because we believe that our museum is tops and is as widely known as the Butchart's Gardens. How about having the government live up to its edict — "Keep the tourist in Victoria" and keep our museum open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. during the summer months? — Lester E. Small, 1584 Elm Street.

Care for Senile

How come we have multi-millions of dollars for building new fancy prisons but not now money for most urgently needed hospital beds?

Why is it that acute care hospital space has to be allocated for senile patients? Why not an SOS now to take care (i.e. more beds in other institutions) of these senile patients elsewhere?

Christie Replies

Your editoral of Feb. 16 (Crumbling Fantasies) makes reference to myself and the Committee for Western Independence. There are some inaccuracies therein which I must correct. You say four years ago 150 people crammed a Vancouver high school auditorium for the first annual meeting of the B.C. branch of the Committee for Western independence.

1. The Committee for Western Independence had its first annual meeting in February, 1975 in Victoria in the Dominion Hotel. It was incorporated in 1976 on Sept. 13. It had existed as an ad hoc group for 1½ years previous to incorporation.

2. The only previous meetings held by the Committee for Western independence in Vancouver have been on UBC campus at the Woodward Instructional Theatre No. 2 where 150 people attended (it was a very difficult place for non-university students to find), and at the Oakridge auditorium where we had 310 people in attendance. All meetings were in 1976.

3. There is no B.C. branch of the Committee for Western Independence. It is incorporated here and operates throughout western Canada.

So the foregoing quotation was entirely inaccurate. I am surprised, because the Times is not usually so misinformed.

You go on in your editoral with further errors of a statistical nature, but I would prefer to deal with the thrust of your conclusion.

Scarcely a day goes by without the media writing a story or braodcasting one on national unity, emphasising accommodation. It is amazing to watch the millions of public and private dollars being spent to propagandize this theme for Trudeau. I guess that is the result of being in power so long that the media and you are one.

But I point out that there were more news stories on the preparation for the Dieppe raid than there were on the up-and-coming meeting of the committee you refer to. Immediately after it was over there were stories everywhere on its "failure." Annual meetings are generally dull affairs. Our other meetings have been informational and much more interesting. We have one every month in Victoria but you'll never print any information on it although, as with all our meetings, the press are advised in advance.

My point is this: the media have a responsibility to inform the public. Only one side of the story is being told through the monotonous media of Canada. We are not afraid of one bad turnout any more than we are overjoyed at one good one. We know our facts are correct and our cause is just, and history will prove us right be we five, 50, or 5,000. I notice you would never print a word about our arguments. — D.H. Christie, Chairman, Committee for Western Independence.

Any from Kent?

I am presently doing research into emigration from Kent (England) in the 19th century and am searching for information and personal documents — diaries, letters and photographs — concerning the emigrants both in Kent and in the various countries in which they settled. If anyone thinks he might have some relevant information, or if they know of anybody who might have, I would be very grateful if they would get in touch with me. — Ms. B. Wojciechowska-Kibble, 1207, 6 Assiniboine Road, Downsview, Ont. M3J 1L3.

Pennock Affair

Bill Bennett's silence regarding the Ed Smith affair is inexcusable. Socred Speaker Ed Smith hired his friend Barbara Pennock as a secretary, upgraded her pay 10 grades in six weeks, travelled with her to England, and had her appointed to the supposedly independent office of the auditor-general.

What does Bill Bennett do? Well, he signed the original orders-in-council. And then he kept quiet about it.

We need a premier with the moral sense to correct the Socred speaker, to dismiss Pennock and to apologize for attempting to politicize the auditor-general's office.

Apparently, Bill Bennett doesn't even have the common sense — much less the moral sense — to realize that what he tried to get away with was wrong. — Gordon Townsend, 927 Walker Street.

New Bridge

I thought some of your readers might be interested in a news item I received from England recently. It states that "In a gesture that expresses its indebtedness for services rendered," Paul Martin, Canadian High Commissioner in England, has been invited by Surrey county council to open a new street and bridge built over the River Wey at Leatherhead.

"The bridge replaces one of three built over the Wey by the Canadian Division stationed in Surrey during the last war. Two were permanent and the third, a Bailey bridge, was intended to be temporary. It is this which has at last been replaced.

"The original bridge and road, which was named Young Street, after the Commanding Officer of the company of Royal Canadian Engineers who constructed it, was opened in August, 1941, by Mackenzie King, Canada's then prime minister under whom Martin was later to serve." — Dorothy Cottrell, 402 Dallas Road.

By JAMES A. STEWART
Montreal Star

Despite his law degree from McGill University and his success at raising Hereford cattle, Tourism Minister Yves Duhaime has not forgotten he was once a child himself. He indulges happily in the silly little pranks private schoolboys love to play on their profs, and PQ ministers love to play on Ottawa.

Mr. Duhaime travelled to Washington, D.C. last month to open a Quebec tourist office, the first in the U.S. capital by a Canadian province.

But he didn't want anybody down there to know that Quebec was still a province, see, so this is what he did: He passed out a press kit to U.S. journalists which contained a map showing Canada and Quebec as separate entities. The map showed Labrador, which belongs to the neighboring province of Newfoundland, as part of Quebec. And on the list of "foreign" locations, where Quebec would have other tourist offices, appeared the remote and exotic city of Toronto.

Wow! Yippee! The Pequiste delinquents in the Canadian classroom had pulled off another daring stunt, the political equivalent of firing a spitball at the headmaster while his back was turned. And right there in Washington, too, the heartland of continental politics. That must have impressed the Americans.

If it did, I'm reasonably sure that it did not impress them in the way intended by the petty politicians of the PQ. If Americans have any sense, and I think they do, they will waste no time on the funny little maps drawn by wish-fulfilling cartographers in the pay of the PQ government. Instead they will be wondering why the very first information dispensed from Quebec's new Washington office was false and misleading, and deliberately so.

The Washington office has certainly started off on the wrong foot. Is it intended to dispense information, or misinformation? The question is of more than passing interest to Quebecers who have to pay the bills. We are less well equipped to get the answer, however, than U.S. citizens whose laws about truth in advertising and public disclosure have some bite.

When pressed, of course, Mr. Duhaime acknowledged that Toronto is not yet in foreign territory. Perhaps he would also agree that Labrador is not yet part of Quebec and that Quebec is not yet independent. And the tourist office in Washington is not yet a Quebec embassy even though Premier Levesque, with a knowing wink, likes to let on that it is not just any old tourist office.

He hints that it will have a political role in explaining to Americans the true meaning of such nebulous concepts as sovereignty-association. Furthermore, it will try to make sure that Quebec's policies and positions are not distorted by anyone other than the Quebec government.

Poses to Americans as what hopes to be rather than what it is

The saddest part of this whole Washington caper is that the Quebec government seems unable to recognize its behavior as devoid of dignity and integrity. A federal minister who went to Washington with maps showing Ungava as part of the Northwest Territories would be ridiculed everywhere. A state governor coming to Ottawa with a chart indicating a country divided equally into Texas and the United States would be considered a bit of a nut.

PQ ministers who parade distortions abroad, who pretend their wishes are fact, also look foolish. This is not good for them, and it is not good for us. A government that is seen to be silly will not enjoy the public confidence it needs to maintain as much social and economic stability as possible.

From time to time, opponents will succeed in making any government look foolish. That's why governments must take special pains not to make themselves look foolish, as the PQ government did in Washington.

That was not at all necessary. Why does the government not realize it is hurting itself by pretending to be what it plainly is not? The people the PQ most want to impress know that Quebec is still part of Canada. The government's objective of independence is being persued honorably enough but it is a long way from being achieved. Why does it attempt this ludicrous masquerade in which it poses on the American stage as what it hopes to be, rather than what it is?

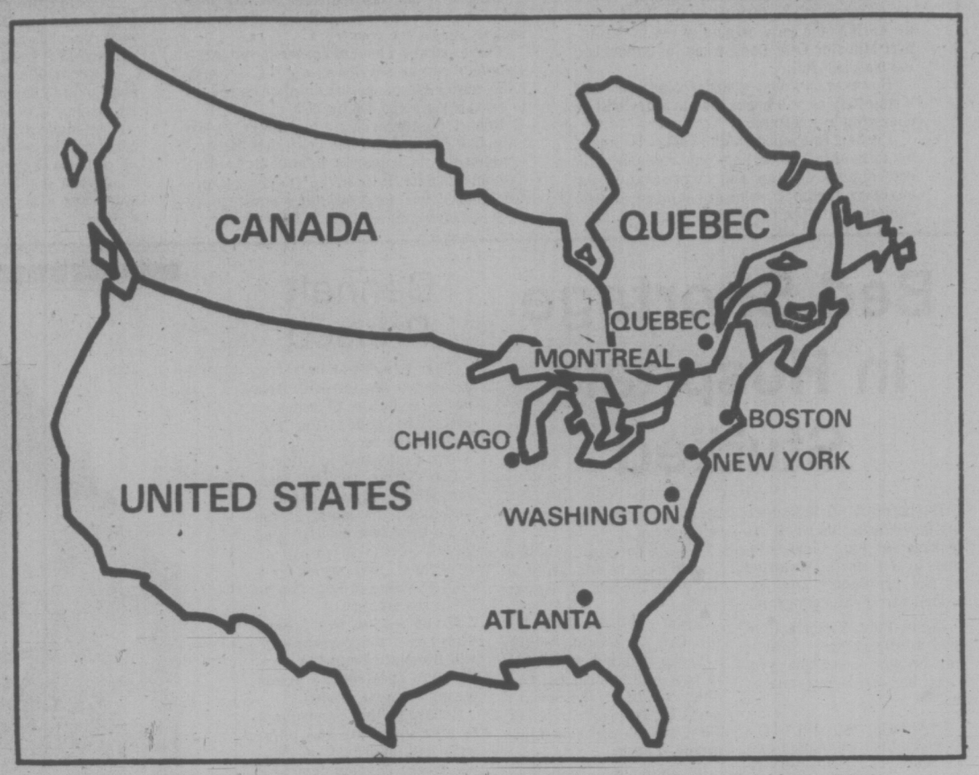
When Premier Levesque went to New York soon after the election, he set out his government's objectives clearly, even belligerently. He did not try to pretend that Quebec had already ended its association with Canada.

In April he intends to make some speeches in the U.S. hoping , he says, to correct certain American misconceptions about Quebec. If there are misconceptions there, he must recognize that some of them are of his government's own making.

The premier, no doubt, will want to inform his U.S. listeners that his government intends no damaging ruptures in its relations with either the U.S. or the rest of Canada. His desire is to achieve sovereignty while maintaining a strong but as yet undefined association with Canada.

His listeners in the U.S. may be just as skeptical about sovereignty-association as many Quebecers are. They may want to know why, if association with Canada is so desirable, the PQ government seems bent on acting as though separation had already taken place.

The Levesque government's direction has been towards dissociation from Canada, in the laws it passes and in the image it tries to project. This makes it increasingly unlikely that any part of Canada would have the slightest interest in re-associating with a Quebec that seems so determined to break links that already exist.



Map distributed by Quebec government at opening of its tourist office in Washington, D.C.

One wonders why the government bothers maintaining its tandem policy of sovereignty-association when its primary commitment is obviously to sovereignty alone. But there is no great mystery in that.

The PQ needs the association idea in order to get re-elected, or even to come close to a win on the referendum. There are just not enough Quebecers prepared to vote for sovereignty by itself. There may not even be enough prepared to vote for sovereignty with association, but it is the PQ's only chance. It must therefore keep alive the belief that the association part of its slogan still has substance.

Labor Union Members 'Go Back to School'

By LEONARD SHIFRIN

OTTAWA — Canada's educational system, Labor Minister John Munro observed in a recent speech, has contributed very little to the current generation of union leaders and union staffs.

"Whether they be high school drop-outs or university graduates", he said, our educational institutions "did virtually nothing" to prepare them for the roles they now play in the industrial relations process.

That fact had long ago been noted by trade unionists.

Labor education programs, operated by unions, go back several decades. But on a very small scale.

What is currently in prospect for them, though, could be both a massive expansion and a major transformation.

Traditionally labor education has meant weekend "tool courses", teaching union skills. These ranged from training local officers in public speaking to teaching shop stewards the procedures for handling grievances.

Ensuring that those charged with running the union's locals were capable of doing so took priority over more substantive courses.

And when such courses were taught, it was subject to the considerable limitations on how extensive a study of labor law, for instance, can take place in two days. Extending these courses into the working week, on the other hand, involved an equally formidable problem — the need to reimburse participants for lost wages.

Labor education had reached something of a plateau — with any significant expansion requiring a significant increase in the capacity of unions to finance it — when a new impetus arrived via the

A second chance for workers, But what about the unions?

International Labor Organization in Geneva.

While Canada is not among the countries that have thus far ratified the 1974 ILO convention on paid educational leaves for workers, its effect has been felt in both the collective bargaining process and federal government policy.

Speaking to the Canadian Association for Adult Education, Labor Minister Munro left no doubt that he is favorably disposed to the idea.

He stressed the potential that paid educational leave holds "for giving a second chance to the worker who is stuck in a dead-end job" with the ability, but not the opportunity, for self-improvement. But equally, he contended, the concept held great potential for increasing productivity through vocational skills upgrading.

Finally, he argued that for organized labor to play the broader social and economic role that it must — moving beyond adversarial postures into the co-participant functions of industrial democracy — "it is essential to increase the number of qualified union representatives at all levels".

To that end the federal government has instituted a program of labor education grants to union organizations and to educational institutions operating programs in conjunction with labor organizations.

The CLC, which received $2 million this year under the program, is far and away its biggest beneficiary, followed by the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions at $160,000. Calculated on an 80-cents-per-member basis, the size of the grants to 30 other labor organizations declines rapidly, with most receiving only a few thousand dollars and some only a few hundred.

But government is not seen by unions as being the major source of future funds for labor education.

At its 1976 convention, the CLC made the promotion of paid educational leave a part of its policy, and urged its affiliates to "make it a collective bargaining goal."

Some of them have already — and with considerable success.

The United Auto Workers, for example, has won company contributions of one cent an hour per worker to a paid educational leave fund in 35 contracts in the past year.

The potential for all sorts of labor education is suddenly enormous. But the direction it will take is not at all clear.

Will it be primarily "second chances" in new careers for dead-ended workers, vocation upgrading courses for those with rusty and out-of-date skills, or the third of the directions cited by Munro, the development of expertise for a more sophisticated union role both at plant levels and in national economic affairs?

Or will it simply be more of the "tool courses", but with stewards being paid a wage equivalent for learning about grievance processing on workdays instead of weekends?

There may be something of the chicken and egg involved in how that question is ultimately answered.

Unless the unions are given a far broader role to play in the future than they have had in the past, there will be little reason for them to invest in the development of sophisticated research capacities, for example. But neither management nor government is likely to be willing to cede the unions such a role as long as they appear to lack the capacity to fill it.

While we may well be at a turning point, that doesn't necessarily mean we are going to turn.

Bores of the Bedroom

russell baker

The first article I skipped in this month's magazines was Redbook's report on what 40,000 men told interviewers about their sex lives. This, I should add, is the first report on sex lives, individual or collective, that I have not read since Kinsey went to work back in the Pleistocene Age. The trouble is I finally know it all. The sum of it is this: There are four sexes, and possibly five. Sometimes they reproduce. Men are often dissatisfied, and so are women. Women are different from men. Sex is a lot of work. You've got to think about it and be in good physical condition. There's nothing to be ashamed of, even if you have offbeat tastes. Sex is healthy. Anybody who says sex is dirty is probably sick and ought to consult a doctor, a sex counselor or a best-seller.

Have we left something out? Ah, yes. The erogenous zones. Learn the erogenous zones. Those good old erogenous zones. Knowing the erogenous zones is as vital to sex as the backhand is to tennis. And above all — no repression. Nothing spoils a sex life quite so thoroughly as a repression. If you have a repression, get it out on the table, talk it out, bore everybody into coma with it if necessary, but don't bottle it up.

Well, of course, hardly anybody does bottle it up anymore, which is one of the reasons so much zing has gone out of sex. As soon as somebody discovers a really scintillating repression, he or she immediately announces it to all humanity, and then thousands of people write in or call up and say they have or had the same repression, and in no time at all it has become a commonplace like a late commuter bus or dry skin.

What turned me from reading about sex lives was the public correspondence in a small paper recently about a Los Angeles man who had what I thought was a rather fetching repression. He wrote to the sex-counseling column stating that he had a consuming desire whenever the amorous heat was upon him to dress up as Sir Walter Raleigh.

The counselor brushed this aside as though it were nothing more than a midnight passion to turn into a pumpkin, a fairly common sexual desire which the columnist had treated successfully in several cases by steering his clients to a tailor for custom-made pumpkin-shaped pajamas.

In fact, the counselor said, he had dozens of patients who harbored repressed desires to dress up as Sir Walter Raleigh, and all of them had reported complete satisfaction after adding doublet, hose and goatee to their sex lives. After a ten-day lull in the correspondence, the columnist published a letter from a repressed woman.

"Three nights in a row now," she wrote, "Carson has been coming to the bedroom dressed as Sir Walter Raleigh. It was terrible. That scratchy false goatee that must be made of bear hair. Ugh! But I told myself it was healthy because Carson wasn't building up any unhealthy repressions. Then last night he came in dressed as Sir Walter again, except carrying an axe. 'Lutetia,' he said, 'I want you to take this axe and cut my head off.'

"That cut it. 'That's vile and nasty and dirty,' I said. 'The only way I can enjoy my fantasy to the full,' Carson said, 'is to be beheaded at the supreme moment, like Sir Walter was.' "

In the end she had refused to wield the axe and Carson accused her of disgusting repressions. Their sex life was on the rocks. The sex-life counselor, as any student of the literature could have predicted, explained that Lutetia's refusal to let herself go stemmed, not as she believed, from her earliest childhood experience of parents warning her never to cut anybody's head off, but from her subconscious which told her that a beheading was actually a sublimated form of castration, an activity which some repressed moralist had probably told her years ago was never engaged in by nice girls.

There was no further correspondence, so I never learned whether Lutetia overcame inhibition. Truth is I didn't much care. If people insist on telling the world about the problems they have in the bedroom, and make everybody else feel dull and depessing by comparison, let them either lose their heads or suffer the agonies of frustrated sex life, it's all the same to me.

These days it's more titillating to read about tennis than about sex. This is probably because nobody tells you that in tennis there is nothing to be ashamed of. Tennis can be very dirty, fortunately. We've got to preserve sin somewhere for those livelier generations still unborn.

Auxiliary Coast Guard Delayed

There's little chance an auxiliary coast guard force will be formed on the West Coast by April 1, the date originally set by Transport Minister Otto Lang when he announced the plan last fall.

However, a coast guard spokesman said Wednesday he still hopes the auxiliary will be operating by summer.

Herbert Buchanan said the delay is caused by difficulties in setting pay rates and in determining liability and compensation for auxiliary members who are injured or lose equipment during rescue missions.

Lang said last fall that $750,000 has been made available to form auxiliary units in five regions across the country.

There are now about 65 boaters providing a volunteer rescue service along B.C.'s coast. Lang would like to see the number increased to 300 this year and 400 by 1979.

Robert Sommerville, a volunteer in the Campbell River area, has criticized the government for its niggardly handling of volunteer units to date. He said the Treasury Board has ignored the need for more coast guard vessels capable of working in heavy seas.

He said a proposal to put three new 65-foot vessels and one 230-footer in service on the west coast has been rejected. Most of the new equipment is heading for the East Coast.

Sommerville said he has written to Lang and Comox-Alberni Liberal MP Hugh Anderson asking that an identifying orange adhesive be made available to volunteers so their boats can be more easily observed from the air. He also suggested that specialized rescue equipment should be stored in a central location and radio licence costs for volunteers waived.

Prairie Night

Prairie Night will be held at Centennial United Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Originally called Guest Night, it was started under the ministry of Centennial's late pastor, Rev. Ray Ashford, and has continued to grow in popularity with former Prairie residents.

It is open to all denominations.

Willard Ireland, former provincial archivist and librarian, and now chairman of the B.C. Advisory Heritage Board, will speak On Being a Canadian.

There will be a concert before the main proceedings begin. The performers, all from the Canadian Forces School of Music, will include trumpeters Terry Jones and Debbie Brown. They will join organist Ernest Williams in organ and trumpet selections.

Bed Shortage In Hospitals Studied

Top hospital officials meeting in Victoria this week are looking for long-term solutions to bed shortages caused by the province's new extended-care health program.

James Fair, Victoria General administrator, said it has become clear the province has the wrong mix of beds.

Demand for benefits through the program have worsened an already serious shortage of acute-care beds in some major hospitals.

The meeting was called by Dr. Chapin Key, director of health services for the health ministry. He brought together ministry officials and hospital administrators to discuss the impact of the new program on existing hospital facilities.

Fair said administrators were not expecting immediate solutions.

He said the hospital system should have been gearing for the program five or 10 years earlier.

Royal Jubilee administrator Dr. Archibald Pickles said the meeting was useful in that administrators were able to explain the seriousness of delaying elective surgery, and on occasion fairly urgent surgery.

He said some immediate relief for acute-care bed shortages could come from an increased use of home-care nursing services.

Pickles said it was laudable that Key even called the meeting.

While no firm recommendations came from the meeting, Key said he will make some recommendations to the minister.

Bennett Praised

The Sierra Club has praised Premier Bill Bennett's rejection of massive electrical generation projects at the recent first minister's conference in Ottawa.

Bob Nixon, regional conservation representative, said Bennett's stand at the conference is a positive step which seems to imply an awareness that serious energy planning in B.C. can no longer be delayed.

Nixon added the Sierra Club hopes the government will translate Bennett's position into constructive action during the next session.

He urged the government to also integrate the planning and approval of electric power development projects within a broad energy review process such as that offered by the B.C. Energy Commission.

Industry Park Gets Backing?

The Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce may throw its weight behind lobbyists hoping to persuade Saanich council that a light industrial park is needed in the Royal Oak area.

The chamber committee responsible for economic development will hold an exploratory meeting Friday to discuss the capital region's requirements for industrial land and what can be done to meet them.

Committee chairman Cedric Steele said today that aldermen from Greater Victoria municipalities, as well as Royal Oak landowners, have been invited to the meeting.

He said although the discussion will not deal specifically with the Royal Oak proposal, he does intend to submit a brief to Saanich supporting the need for an an industrial park in that area.

Saanich's representative on the chamber committee, Ald. Geoff Vantreight, said he won't be able to attend because he has a prior commitment.

Saanich has called a public hearing on the matter March 23. But the indications are that the bylaw to rezone 128 acres in the Glanford-Vanalman area will fail to receive the two-thirds majority required for adoption.

Ben Pires, president of the Royal Oak Community Association, said he is not surprised to see the Chamber of Commerce intervening in the controversy.

He said that speculators and property owners in the area are apparently becoming alarmed over the probability of defeat for the industrial park proposal.

Before The Judge

A 28-year-old man who was ordered not to enter a beer parlor or lounge during his two years of probation was sentenced to 30 days in jail after pleading guilty in Victoria provincial court Wednesday to four counts of breach of probation.

Ronald George McWilliams entered the pleas after Judge Fred Giles denied a bail application made on McWilliams' behalf by legal-aid lawyer Loretta Chaperone.

McWilliams appeared before Judge E.J.C. Stewart in Victoria county court Sept. 29 for sentencing on a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Stewart had been told that McWilliams shoved a broken beer glass into the head of Douglas Canning at the Colony Moter Inn beer parlor July 4 during a fight between the two men over whose turn it was to use a pool table.

Stewart issued a $500 fine and imposed a two-year probation term after noting that McWilliams had spent 30 days in jail awaiting trial. The judge had commented that he had "considerable hesitation" about not imposing a jail sentence.

McWilliams was charged with breaching the probation condition requiring him to stay out of licenced establishments late last year and was sentenced by Judge William Ostler in Victoria provincial court to seven days in jail at that time. McWilliams said he was looking for his wife but Ostler noted that McWilliams had been seen sitting at a table and drinking beer.

He was charged Wednesday with entering the Bastion Inn beer parlor on Feb. 10, 11, 13 and 14.

Miss Chaperone told the court McWilliams figured the jail term imposed by Ostler cancelled out the probation order but Giles rejected the argument, saying it was difficult to see how the accused man could plead ignorance to a probation order when he signed the form.

Following denial of bail, McWilliams turned to the judge and said: "Your Honor, I'd like to plead guilty now and get it over with, okay.?"

Giles handed out concurrent terms on all four counts and Crown counsel Nicholas Lang asked the judge to reiterate that the probation order remained in effect until Sept. 29, 1979.

Two brothers facing five charges in connection with an abduction-holdup in which $19,000 was taken from the destroyer-escort HMCS Terra Nova were committed for higher court trial by Ostler.

Frank Irving Fredricks, 44, and Lloyd Charles Fredricks, 48, were charged with breaking and entering 719 Connaught, unlawfully confining Peter and Candice Marie McIntyre, kidnapping Peter McIntyre, armed robbery of McIntyre, and possession of stolen money.

Russell Winston Pearce, 40, of 521 Simcoe, was ordered to Riverview's Forensic Psychiatric Institute after Lang told the court Pearce was causing problems at Wilkinson Road jail.

Pearce pleaded guilty Monday to attempted robbery with threats of violence and was remanded until March 7 for a pre-sentence report and sentencing by Judge Fred Green.

He was charged with entering the main branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia on Feb. 9 and demanding $400 from teller Cheryl May Hooker. Assistant-manager Raymond Wallace Doan and a customer at the next wicket grabbed Pearce and held him until police arrived.

Pearce had been described as a schizophrenic for two decades and an active psychotic by psychiatrist Dr. Kenneth McLeod, who also testified Pearce was sane in a legal sense and fit to stand trial.

Before Giles' decision, Pearce was allowed to speak and began by saying: "I'll try to keep this cool and calm."

But his one-minute address to the court became irrational and he ended by demanding he be hanged or allowed to go to Ireland.

Giles granted the application to move Pearce to the Mainland and told the deputy sherrifs to "take him out of the courtroom as quickly as possible."

Giles sentenced a 56-year-old man to 10 weekends in jail after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Arthur Lloyd Williams, 1261 Goldstream, was given 20 days after Lang told the court Williams had two previous convictions for similar offences. He was fined $300 for driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 Jan. 19, 1972, in Campbell River and $450 for the same thing Nov. 3, 1976, in Victoria.

Lang said readings obtained by RCMP at Colwood detachment Feb. 9 were .27 and .25.

Giles had originally imposed a 14-day term but changed the sentence when Williams said he would lose his job if he had to spend the next two weeks in jail.

Fined for drinking-driving were: Kenneth Wayne Hansen, 20, of 965 Glenwillow, $450; Allan Maurice Casswell, 27, of 1030 Trunk Road, Duncan, $350; Philip Archie Hollywood, 43, of Polymede Place, $350; William James Vowles, 47, of 6825 West Coast Road, $300; Howard John Fitzpatrick, 26, of 2397 Tod, $250; Robert Bud Hampson, 30, of Sooke, $250; and James Alexander Scott, 35, of 990 Cowichan, $200. In addition, Hollywood was fined $100 for failing to remain at the scene of a Feb. 3 accident at Gorge and Admirals.

CRTC Endorses Education TV

An education ministry plan to use cable systems to carry high school and post-secondary programs to outlying B.C. communities has been given a favorable response from the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commisssion.

However, CRTC chairman Charles Dalfen said the proposed program should not inconvenience cablevision subscribers.

Deputy Education Minister Walter Hardwick requested a common channel in each of the province's community college regions for educational programming.

A library of 1,000 half-hour programs should be completed by mid-1978, he said.

He said although a lot of publicity has been given to an agreement between Education Minister Pat McGeer and Sir Walter Perry, the vice-chancellor of Open University in Britain, only a few university degree programs will be offered under the distance learning format.

Some arts and science credit courses are based on open university material purchased outside the province and adapted for B.C. use, Hardwick said.

The open university material also includes some technology programs and an English instruction course for housewives.

Other open university programs in community education will be aimed at adults and deal with early childhood and educating the elderly and handicapped.

The cable system will also permit distribution of major academic and cultural events now largely restricted to the Lower Mainland.

Since the ministry's priority is distance learning, the system will be established first in communities that don't have the educational opportunities of Victoria and Vancouver, Hardwick said.

The education ministry will be the main user of the system and the program will reflect its needs.

Supplements to the regular school curriculum and expansion of services to drop outs and adults will be offered through the the ministry.

Programs for general school use will be generated by the Provincial Education Media Centre and the individual school districts. The PEMC distributes about 50,000 video-taped programs annually, according to Hardwick.

Appeal March 1

Crown appeals against one-year sentences for two men convicted after Victoria's largest bank robbery will be heard March 1 by five B.C. Court of Appeal justices.

The unusual step was taken at a Tuesday sitting of the appeal court in Vancouver where Victoria Crown counsel Nicholas Lang sought a heavier sentence for Michael Allan Rhodes. Earlier, the Crown appealed the sentence of co-accused Harold Einar Hemstad, who pleaded guilty to several counts evolving from abduction and armed robbery at the Royal Bank of Canada Tillicum branch Jan. 11, 1977.

A decision in that appeal was reserved until the Rhodes matter was dealt with.

The five judges will include Chief Justice John Farris.

Lang said both appeals will be heard even though Hemstad's had already been before the court.

Police Praised by Judge For Quietly Disarming Man

Police who walked into an East Saanich Reserve home to disarm a man were commended in county court Wednesday by a judge who sympathized with the accused.

Twenty-one-year-old Thomas Phillip Henry changed his plea to guilty half-way through a trial on a charge of being in possession of a .22-calibre rifle for a purpose dangerous to the public peace last Oct. 1. He was fined $250 and placed on 18 months strict probation.

Three RCMP officers, led by one wearing a bullet-proof vest, entered the house at 2745 Beach about 4 a.m. after a woman occupant and five children were sent to a neighboring home.

Police from Sidney detachment made their way to a bedroom where Henry lay clutching a loaded rifle to his chest, apparently asleep, wrested the weapon from him and applied handcuffs before he was fully aroused.

Frizine Harry, mother of the children, said Henry had arrived in what she described as a real mad mood, swore at her and told her he was sick and tired of what people were saying about them.

"He said he was going to shoot me, and himself after."

Her daughter Maryann Harry said the accused arrived about 2:25 a.m., drunk, and argued with her mother in a bedroom. The mother called out to the children that he had a gun and told Maryann to call police.

Constable Gary Lee Simmonds said he got to the reserve about 3 and waited for Cpl. Dale Martel, who arrived shortly before 4 a.m. after Central Saanich and Saanich police sent support to the scene. Martel led the way into the then quiet house, Simmonds said.

When taken into custody Henry had 47 rounds of ammunition on him.

Defence counsel C.R.W. Wilson said the behavior was not within Henry's normal character, and was an expression of extreme frustration and anger over the community's attitude toward his relationship with the woman.

As a domestic squabble it represented one of the most difficult the police have to deal with, but they handled it in copybook fashion and he had no criticism.

Although Henry undoubtedly was threatening and gave the impression he was going to use the gun, it was never fired, Wilson said.

Judge D.H. Campbell told Henry it was a "distressing and in a sense, tragic, set of circumstances. Your relationship with Mrs. Harry was of some tenderness and concern to you," but as events had shown he was no longer welcome at her home.

He also commended the police, and urged that Henry take a hard look at his drinking.

"Put your act in order and keep your nose clean, to put it bluntly, and I'm sure you can make a useful contribution to the community."

Probation includes a prohibition on owning or possessing a firearm; drinking to a maximum of .08 per cent blood alcohol; submitting to a breath alcohol test when required by police, and forfeiture of the rifle and ammunition.

Switch Of Centre Protested

NANAIMO (CP) — Telegrams of protest were sent Wednesday night to Premier Bill Bennett, Attorney-General Garde Gardom and other officials concerned with converting the old Island Youth Centre here to adult facilities.

Last week the government announced the centre would be used for a remand centre and for work-release programs for adults. The centre, which once contained juvenile offenders, was closed Dec. 31.

Organizers of the protest group began their work a week ago and attracted 70 people to a school gymnasium for their first meeting Wednesday.

B.C. Hydro Gas Workers Vote to Postpone Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gas workers at British Columbia Hydro decided Wednesday to postpone a strike set for midnight Wednesday night to resume negotiations today.

Strike possibilities at Hydro, however, are looming from two other directions.

Transit workers, who already have served strike notice, are voting on a mediation report that favors the company while office workers are taking a strike vote.

About 600 gas fitters and maintenance workers planned to picket Hydro locations in the Vancouver area and on Vancouver Island.

The B.C. Federation of Labor's emergency services committee, formed to counteract the provincial government's Essential Services Disputes Act, had established strategy Wednesday to deal with a walkout. Federation affiliates vowed last fall to boycott the essential services advisory agency created under the act and to rely instead on its own committee.

The threatened walkout would have provided the first opportunity to test the new legislation.

Instead, IBEW assistant business manager Rick Dowling of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said Wednesday the two parties "feel it worth a final try to prevent strike action."

The union rejected the company's offer for a two-year agreement providing a six-per-cent wage increase in the first year and four per cent in the second. The contract expired Aug. 31, 1977.

The Office and Technical Employees Union, Local 378, representing 3,600 Hydro office workers, is recommending rejection of the same monetary offer at a series of membership meetings this week. The union is taking a strike vote at the same time.

The OTEU, without a contract since March 31, 1977, also is seeking a guarantee that Hydro will not raise compulsory pension contributions during the next agreement.

The 3,500 bus drivers, trainmen and mechanics in the Amalgamated Transit Union began voting Wednesday on a mediation report that offers a compromise solution on one outstanding contract issue — a company demand for a revised spare-board operation.

Mediator Ken Albertini resolved a second major stumbling block by rejecting a union bid for a shorter work week.

Albertini recommended that the spare-board operation, a system for assigning work during peak periods, go to a five-member committee for arbitration.

Neither the company nor the union were recommending acceptance or rejection of the report following membership meetings Monday and Tuesday.

A union spokesman said it expects to know the results of the vote by Friday.

Earlier, the two sides agreed to a two-year contract expiring July 31, 1979 with a wage increase of 6.1 per cent in the first year and four per cent in the second, however, five other issues remain unresolved.

ARGENTINA LISTS PRISONERS

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — The Argentine government issued a list of 795 political prisoners, all men, being held without trial in La Plata prison, 60 kilometres south of here.

President Jorge Rafael Videla pledged last December that the government will publish the names of 3,607 people held under state of siege regulations.

Roof Next for Crystal

Restoration work at the Crystal Garden is right on schedule and tenders have been called for repairs to the structure's glass-panelled roof, a government official said today.

George Giles, recreation and conservation associate deputy minister, said that scaffolding to enable a full assessment of the roof has been put in place.

Giles said restoration of the roof will be the biggest single contract in the entire Crystal project.

He said the government is leaving contractors a number of options in how they tackle the job but is demanding firm bids for the entire roof.

Giles also said the contractor who wins the bid to refurbish the roof will be asked to manage the rest of the work that's to be done to the Crystal's interior.

He said that by having the roof contractor managing the other interior projects it will be possible to have several areas of work under way at the same time.

Giles said the government will hold an informational meeting for all interested contractors to assure that the project runs smoothly.

Restoration of the Crystal is estimated to cost $2 million of which Victoria is providing $60,000.

Giles said work on the Crystal and all Inner Harbor projects are on target.

"We're on schedule for the summer, it's a tight schedule but we're on it."

IWA Studies Report

Employees at Raven Lumber Ltd. in Campbell River met today to decide whether to abide by the terms of a back-to-work decision from the B.C. Labor Relations Board.

The 100 workers walked off the job last Friday because of reports that a supervisor tried to force sexual favors from female workers.

The members of the International Woodworkers of America, Local 1-363, asked that the supervisor be dismissed and the two female employees be reinstated.

The main part of the LRB ruling said a fact-finding committee made up of board members will be appointed to study the matter provided the workers go back on the job.

Lay-Off System In Dispute

Two locals of the Canadian Union of Public Employees will take 11 grievances to the B.C. Labor Relations Board over the Greater Victoria school board's decision to lay off about 49 employees.

A panel of the board will hear the grievances in Victoria Feb. 28 and March 1.

Three of the grievances are from Local 947, representing inside workers and the rest from Local 382, representing outside employees.

The board agreed last month to follow layoff procedures in the employees' contracts in eliminating 57 positions.

As a result senior employees have "bumped" juniors from jobs and this has led to some dissatisfaction with the positions individuals eventually got.

Five of the grievances relate to apprentices the union feels will have to repeat a year of their training if they are laid off.

An Addiction to Soothe The Growth Pains

MIKA

The New England Connection

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Saanich alderman John Mika is an ideas pusher for the New England Connection, and if he can bring off his sale Saanich will acquire the habit this year for a modest outlay of only $13,000.

The way he sees it, this beneficial addiction will help ease the municipality and its residents through the next several years of growing pains, and ultimately ensure that Saanich remains a pleasant, semi-rural bedroom suburb.

What does New England have to do with Saanich?

According to Mika's theory, a whole lot, in a purely historical perspective.

He believes that the charming old towns of that area are what they are because they were built on a cornerstone of democracy, the town hall meeting.

A few times each year the residents would gather to discuss how their communities should develop. Should John Smith be allowed to build an addition to his home? Should a church be built, and if so where?

Such questions were thoroughly aired and, in due course, the residents appointed their selectmen to administer the community's affairs along the guidelines established.

"That system resulted in the creation of towns that are still beautiful, viable communities today, 300 years later," says Mika.

He would like to see the broad principle refined, adapted and applied to the governing of present-day Saanich.

Already the potential exists in the shape of 10 fairly active and vocal community organizations, but Mika says if the grass roots are to become healthy, vigorous plants they will need to be nurtured and fertilized by the municipality.

Such groups usually come into being because individuals are confronted with one or more common problems or concerns, he says, but once the issues have been resolved there's a tendency for the organizations to lose their impetus or even to disband.

And that's where Mika's idea comes in.

He said he will soon propose, under budget business, that Saanich council officially designate for financing assistance a community association in each of the municipality's 13 distinct planning areas.

To be eligible, the associations would have to be registered under the Societies Act and open to all.

Once designated, they would be able to receive municipal grants, up to a maximum of $1,000 per association, on a dollar-for-dollar basis matching municipal contributions with the amount raised by membership dues.

Use of the money would be restricted to postage, printing of newsletters and hall rentals, the three items that now incur "crippling costs" for community groups, Mika said.

"I think these are legitimate uses for public money," he said. "The purpose would be to give the associations a continuing life, so that we can use them as a kind of Distant Early Warning line."

The proposal would give the municipality a direct line of communication to the organized groups representing neighborhoods with widely differing needs and problems, and a permanent sounding board for local neighborhood opinion.

Mika says the concept could also be expanded eventually to provide direct citizen involvement in decision making, through the establishment of local advisory planning groups whom the municipality would automatically consult on development and rezoning matters affecting them.

Last year, in the way he attacked various controversial development proposals, Mika earned a reputation in many quarters as an anti-development advocate. But he insists that's not the case.

He describes himself as a small-c conservative favoring a slow and cautious approach to the job of building the community. "It can't be done overnight and there's no need for break-neck speeds."

And he doesn't buy the argument that caution means delay which in turn leads to a cost increase in the end product — housing.

"Developers have a personal lifespan of, what, 75 years? For them delay probably does mean an enormous loss.

"But what is the lifespan of Saanich? It's going to be hundreds of years. Is it better to speed up a decision for one individual, or avoid the risk of making a mistake with a major development which Saanich will have to live with for generations?"

Mika maintains that in municipal politicians' attitude toward development — especially in a municipality like Saanich which has little or no industrial-commercial tax base — there's a dangerous temptation to measure everything in dollar terms.

He says former mayor Ed Lum succumbed to that temptation, and it was largely responsible for his downfall in last November's election.

"Lum justified almost all of his decisions on the argument that it would increase the tax base and therefore it was good for the municipality and for the taxpayers. It was all very sincere.

"The trouble was, he was disinclined to listen when some ratepayers said we're willing to pay a bit more to live the way we want to live."

Chamber to Run Election Slate?

Victoria Chamber of Commerce will consider whether to run a slate of candidates in the next Victoria civic election, president John Ansell said Wednesday.

"This is a question we should seriously consider," he said.

"It would take a change in our constitution if we decide to go ahead."

Ansell told a meeting of the chamber board of directors at the Strathcona Hotel the question should be referred to a chamber committee for preliminary discussion.

Later in an interview he said he would favor chamber involvement in civic elections if the present balance on Victoria city council between businessmen and community organizations becomes disrupted.

"There is a nice balance now but if it becomes weighted in favor of the community groups then we would have to take a serious look at it."

Ansell said the question of chamber involvement in politics is being debated by chambers across Canada.

Ansell had some reservations about direct political action but said there is evidence of a form of left-wing political activity in civic elections and this might have to be countered in the future.

He stressed the chamber has not come to any firm conclusion on the question. A long internal debate might be needed.

The issue was raised by chamber economic director Cedric Steele who strongly urged the chamber to run a slate in Victoria civic elections this fall.

He said young businessmen are becoming concerned about a reluctance on the part of city council to permit development in the city.

"Development means jobs that we desperately need," he said.

Steele said anti-development groups have had a dominant influence on council during the past 12 months.

He said regardless of the chamber decision, he will begin to organize businessmen and real estate agents into an activist group to attend public hearings and take other direct action.

He said the chamber has a responsiblity to run candidates or it will lose the battle for development by default.

UIC Eyeing Civic Gov'ts

No Greater Victoria municipalities have been caught abusing the Unemployment Insurance system but they are being kept under close scrutiny, UIC regional manager George Milne said today.

He was commenting on a statement by the chairman of the UIC program, J.L. Manion, that some Canadian municipalities hire welfare recipients just long enough to get them qualified for UIC payments.

This removes them from municipal welfare rolls and makes them a cost to the federal program.

"This has not been a problem in the Victoria area," Milne said. "We have not detected any local pattern of this kind. I am sure it is happening in many places in Canada, however, and we will keep a careful watch on the situation."

Milne said the main target of UIC auditors are cheaters who fraudulently collect benefits while employed.

"We will be catching more and more of these cheaters under our program of checking payrolls. If someone is collecting wages we will be able to detect it."

Those who stay within the rules but not the spirit of the program are in a grey area, he said. For example, it is quite proper for employers to hire people for a short term and then let them go. If that qualifies them for UIC payments, that is a secondary effect.

If too many employers followed the pattern it could create a serious drain on the UIC fund but within limits, the practice creates some benefits.

For example, he said, federal job-creating programs give many young people their first work experience and this could help them to find permanent work later.

The fact they are eligible for UIC payments is part of the price of the program. He said this pattern has brought a mixed response, including some critics who believe it achieves little more than adding to the drain on UIC funds.

Milne said if it is kept within limits, short-term employment of this kind can be beneficial to the country, despite the cost to UIC.

Esquimalt Policeman Charged

A charge of assault causing bodily harm in connection with a 14-month old incident has been laid against an Esquimalt police officer.

The charge alleges Askew assaulted Ronald Shingler, of 613 Drake, on Dec. 19, 1976.

At a B.C. Supreme Court hearing held Jan. 4, Mr. Justice J.G. Ruttan ordered Victoria justice of peace Earl Allan Berthiaume to re-hear Shingler's application to charge Askew.

Berthiaume decided not to proceed with the charge when the matter was brought before him in January 1977.

Ruttan found Berthiaume had not reached the decision in a full and unbiased manner.

Camosun Passes Stiff Test

Camosun College passed a fire marshal's inspection Wednesday, but now has a bigger problem — finding study space for students.

The college eliminated study areas to comply with the fire marshal's order and now is suffering from a major space shortage for students and material, president Grant Fisher said today.

Fisher has recommended renting space from the Greater Victoria School District's Paul Building next to Lansdowne Campus or bringing in portable classrooms.

Former City Alderman Dies

Marshall Aubrey Kent, a former Victoria alderman, past president of the Union Club and the Chamber of Commerce, died today at the age of 87.

Kent was born in Victoria in 1891 and lived most of his life here, establishing himself as a businessman, and rising to the rank of lieutenant-colonel during two world wars. He also spent several years in civic politics.

He attended Victoria high school and was paid $15 a month during school holidays to act as a trumpeter on the early Tally-Ho wagons.

A keen sportsman, in 1921 he lead the James Bay Athletic Association doubles rowing team to a series of trophies.

KENT
... active career

In 1914 Kent won a commission in the militia and served three years in France with the 39th Lethbridge Battalion.

At one point he wrote home saying that serving on the rain-drenched front was much like hunting ducks in the Cowichan marshes — "except that you are shooting and being shot at as well."

From 1934 to 1938 he commanded the 5th B.C. Coast Brigade.

In 1941 the army called him up and he served as officer commanding the artillery officers' training centre at Gordon Head, then as G.S.O.2 at Petawawa. For the last two years of the war he was on the officers' survey board, Western Canada.

His career in civic politics began in 1947 when he was elected alderman, leading the polls. In 1949 he was barely edged out in a race for the mayor's seat by Percy George, and he lost out in another mayoralty challenge to Claude Harrison in 1951.

An avid hunter, fisherman and boater, Kent was well known at Canoe Cove where he moored his boat for many years.

Funeral arrangements for a private service have not yet been announced.

A PENSIONER among safes, but still as robust as when it was built 70-odd years ago, this one-ton monster enters a new phase of service today when it's delivered to a Duncan firm. Buyers have acquired it for only about one-third the price of a new model. That's no safe cracker listening to the tumblers clicking. It's Harold Price of Price's Lock and Safe Ltd., 847 Fort, who says the design was patented in 1906. (John McKay photo).

Aldermen, Trustees Join Campaigning Parents

Three Victoria aldermen and two school trustees Wednesday night joined more than 100 parents preparing objections to the possible closure of Margaret Jenkins Elementary School.

Margaret Jenkins is third on the list of six elementary schools slated for a public hearing in March to determine their future in the Greater Victoria School District.

The board made a budget commitment to reduce 150,000 square feet of space this year due to declining enrolment.

But the Wednesday night gathering indicated that will not happen without opposition. The group included trustees John Young and Carol Pickup and Victoria aldermen Bill McElroy, Robin Blencoe and Ron McKenzie.

When the Margaret Jenkins public hearing takes place March 8, school administrators and trustees can expect to hear a number of arguments against closure:

— Other elementary schools in the neighborhood of Margaret Jenkins are full and cannot take new students.

Small local schools are an integral part of residential neighborhoods and closure would have a serious impact.

— Young families have begun moving into neighborhoods with low housing prices like Fairfield, indicating the declining enrolment picture could change.

— Closure would mean moving two classes for the hard-of-hearing and a class for educatable mentally retarded students, requiring these students to adjust to a new classroom situation.

— Money saved by closing Margaret Jenkins is small, because of renovations of other schools to accommodate the students and loss of education ministry grants.

The school board's Facilities Study '77 planning report was criticized by the aldermen, who said the figures used to recommend closures were old.

McElroy told the parents to concentrate on trustees who are undecided on the closure issue, rather than try to shake the convictions of those who have already made up their minds.

If trustees see a large audience at the public hearing they could decide closing Margaret Jenkins can affect their chances for re-election next fall, he said.

Coal Miners Die

MOSCOW (Reuter) — A number of coal miners were killed in a methane gas explosion at a mine in Soviet Central Asia, Tass news agency said Tuesday. The agency, which gave no figure, mentioned the accident in reporting a message of condolences from the Communist party and government to bereaved families and injured workers at the Soskurskaya mine in eastern Kazakhstan.

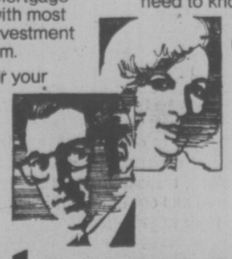
What you need is a calm, rational discussion of RSP's.
You've probably seen and heard so much about Registered Retirement Savings Plans lately, your head's spinning.
If you think you need an RSP, you probably need advice. And who better to give it than one of Canada's longest established trust companies?
At Montreal Trust we have people who'd be delighted to explain the many options we can offer you. Specialists on the subject.
They'll explain that, besides the obvious tax and retirement benefits, a Montreal Trust RSP is a very sound investment. And flexible, too. You can choose from five investment sections (including the Mortgage Section—not available with most RSP's) or spread your investment over several or all of them.
You can also transfer your investment from one section to another to take advantage of market trends. You can even choose your own portfolio of securities (Self-Directed RSP).
All sections (except Guaranteed Investment Certificates) are now subject to monthly valuation (formerly every two months), which means your money starts working faster for you.
With a Montreal Trust RSP, there's no "front-end load", or entry fee. Also, and most important, your money starts working for you quickly.
Find out more about a Montreal Trust RSP by calling an RSP officer at your nearest branch, or just drop in.
We'll tell you everything you need to know.
Calmly and rationally.


Speak to a specialist.

B.C. Gov't Not Sponsoring Festivals

The head of Tourism B.C. today denied the provincial government is in any way involved in sponsoring two international music festivals for high school bands and marching groups that will be held in Greater Vancouver this May.

John Plul said the festivals, organized and presented by two American firms, are in fact conventions whose coming to Vancouver is coincident with the Captain Cook Bicentennial celebrations.

One of the festivals is scheduled to be held May 5-8 and will involve seminars and competitions at University of British Columbia. The affair, heralded as the Discover Beautiful British Columbia Music Festival and Parade is organized by Performing Arts Abroad of Kalamazoo, Michigan.

The second festival, called the Captain Cook Bicentennial International Music Festival is organized by a Trenton, New Jersey firm, and will be held May 13-16. As many as 1,800 youths from 20 high schools throughout western United States and Canada are expected to attend.

Plul said he has received a definite commitment from only the latter group.

. "I can understand the confusion," Plul said. "And there probably would have been a story there if we were in fact paying for a couple of thousand American school kids coming to take part in the celebrations. But surely to God we're smarter than that."

Plul said the festivals are annual events held in various cities in the United States and Canada. Vancouver competed with both New Orleans and San Diego in getting the Trenton-based festival.

He said organizers have agreed to stage a massed band and marching show at the Pacific Colliseum for the public with the Captain Cook Bicentennial Committee picking up the tab for bussing, rental of the facility, and Captain Cook medallions and mementoes that will be handed out to each contestant.

All of the proceeds will go to the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movements in the province.

Plul said the Bicentennial Committee will also ask organizers of the other festival to put on a public show, at the committee's expense. The show would probably be held in New Westminster with the proceeds going to local band groups.

He said he had originally hoped to have the show held in Victoria but the costs of bussing the contestants here would be prohibitive.

U.K. Jobless Falls

LONDON (Reuter) — Unemployment in Britain has decreased to 6.3 per cent of the work force, making February the sixth consecutive month in which the number of people out of work has fallen. The total unemployed is 1,508,674, which still is higher than the 1,339,400 of one year ago.

Glazier Wants Festive Day To Mark Line's 1888 Start

Victoria Ald. Murray Glazier wants council to turn back the clock almost 100 years next month to celebrate the arrival of CP Rail's first passenger train in the city.

At tonight's council meeting Glazier will ask that $800 be set aside to commemorate the March 29, 1888, start of passenger services to Victoria on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway.

Glazier said the railway's 90th year of linking the city to up-Island points deserves to be celebrated because of its historic significance.

He added, however, that the need to focus public attention on the company's proposal to phase out passenger services is even more important.

Glazier, appointed by council last month to study the city's position regarding CP Rail's plans to abandon passenger traffic, said he wants to fan public interest in the railway before it's too late.

"The general public really hasn't understood the circumstances of that railway," he said. "The circumstances are that in the last decade the passenger service has been badly operated. They've operated in such a way as to guarantee a loss on the passenger end of it."

He said he hopes by drawing attention to the railway's importance over the decades he can encourage individuals to make private presentations when hearings into CP Rail's abandonment proposals are held later this spring.

Glazier said that on March 29 he'd like to recreate the festivities held in Victoria 90 years earlier when a brightly decorated train loaded with dignitaries rolled into town for the first time.

He said he has contacted the mayors of every city now served by the line, and a few that aren't, and has met with an enthusiastic response.

He added that the provincial government has expressed an interest in participating and CP Rail has offered full cooperation.

Glazier's plan calls for the E and N passenger train, carrying officials dressed in Victorian costumes, to make a special run from its Esquimalt station across a decorated Johnson St. bridge to be met by Victoria Mayor Mike Young and Premier Bill Bennett at the foot of Pandora.

FERRY HUDDLE ON MARCH 6

Concerned Victoria groups will meet Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf on March 6 to discuss preparations by B.C. Ferries to cope with an expected rush of tourists this summer for the Capt. Cook Bicentenary.

Chamber transportation director Jack McKernan said many groups are worried the ferries will not be able to handle all the visitors who wish to come to Vancouver Island and long delays will be experienced at Tsawwassen.

Representatives of the chamber, Victoria Visitors Information Centre and various aldermen will attend the meeting to express a joint concern.

McKernan said letters have been written to Bawlf, who is in charge of the ferry system, but a face-to-face meeting might be more effective.

Simliar concerns have been expressed to Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy, who is in charge of the Marguerite.

Copter Service Studied for City

Okanagan Helicopters is interested in running a helicopter service between here and Vancouver, Victoria Chamber of Commerce was told Wednesday.

Chamber transportation director Jack McKernan said the company will send a large copter capable of seating more than 50 people here in May.

The company will invite local dignitaries for a ride to get an aerial view of the Swiftsure yacht race.

McKernan said the copter is coming to Victoria as part of National Transportation Week May 27 to June 3. He said the company wants to demonstrate its large new machine and hopes eventually to use it for an inter-city service.

McKernan said he has invited the De Havilland company to send its Short Takeoff and Landing plane to the city during that week as well.

He said service by either helicopters or STOL craft, or both, would be welcome in Victoria.

New Push To Save Tsitika

A new committee has been formed to fight for a continuation of a logging moratorium in the Tsitika River valley on northern Vancouver Island.

Chairman Scotty Neish of the United Fisherman and Allied Workers Union said representatives of the Victoria Labor Council, B.C. Federation of Mountain Clubs, the B.C. Federation of Naturalists and the Victoria Sierra Club met Feb. 21 to plan an information campaign aimed at reversing the recent government decision to lift the five-year-old moratorium and allow logging in much of the valley.

Neish said a cutting plan is now being prepared under the direction of the B.C. Forest Service.

He said the situation has not changed from 1975 when a series of public hearings showed it was clear "the Tsitika is a priceless resource which should not be devastated in the same fashion that practically every other island watershed has been.

"If anything, the reasons for holding off on logging there are even stronger than they were three years ago."

Neish said if the government and forest companies have good reasons for going ahead with logging at this time, the committee would like to hear them.

"The issue has been too important for too long to too many people to just let it slide by without a peep of protest," he said.

60,000 Layoff

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Half of Argentina's 120,000 textile workers have been suspended because of huge stocks and falling sales, union sources said Tuesday. Some of the smaller textile companies have been hit hard by high domestic interest rates and lower consumer spending since the government tightened credit to control 160 per cent annual inflation in the second half of last year.

CREATE A SUMMER JOB — WE'LL SHARE THE COST

EMPLOYERS here's an opportunity to help yourself and the economy by hiring a hard-working young man or woman this summer. It's called the Youth Employment Program. If you create worthwhile jobs for young persons in your business, on your farm, or with a non-profit organization the Province of British Columbia will share the cost of wages with you.

This is how it works.

Businesses:
If your business has been in operation for at least a year, the Ministry of Labour may help you pay the wages of up to five young persons this summer. We will pay between $1.30 and $2.00 an hour as our share of the cost.

Farms:
The same rules apply, you create jobs for youth and the Ministry of Labour will share the cost with you.

Societies:
You are invited to apply for funding to hire young persons to work this summer on a worthwhile project. We will pay an average of $3.40 an hour. We will also provide funds for holiday pay, employee benefits and essential project costs.

Applications MUST be received by March 24, 1978.
Applications for funding are available from any Provincial Government Agent or Ministry of Labour Office, or any of the B.C. Youth Employment offices listed below.

Vikettes, Vikings Bid For Nationals

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

There are a couple of big firsts up for grabs at the University of Victoria's McKinnon gymnasium this weekend.

There is also a big last.

The firsts concern basketball and they both concern the University's two teams, Vikings and Vikettes as they bid for championship honors in the Canada West University Athletic Association playoffs.

The "last" may be of more lasting concern. It is the swan song for UVic Vikettes' coach Mike Gallo.

Gallo, their coach since 1971-72, has decided to call it a career. And what a career!

In seven years, Gallo has compiled the remarkable record of 155 victories and only 21 losses. Which is great, but the last three years have been phenomenal.

The Vikettes in those three years have gone undefeated each time for 20 games through the regular season for a remarkable 60-0 record.

In each of the last two years, however, Vikettes have stumbled in the playoffs. They lost to Guelph two years ago by three points after defeating the same team by 27 in an earlier tournament game. Last year the Vikettes were knocked out in the very first playoff game by Winnipeg. Otherwise Gallo's habit has been a winning one.

Even before he showed up at UVic, he was a winner.

It all began when this 34-year old schoolteacher was playing basketball at First united, way back when he was only 18.

A coach of one of the teams didn't show up one night so Gallo said "why not" and took over. In 10 years he never missed a provincial final with his kids from First United. He won a few provincial titles along the way plus third-place finishes in the Canadian junior championships in 1969, '70 and '71.

Then the came the UVic offer.

And it may not generally be recalled, but Gallo in that very first season at UVic, won a national title, and his Vikettes were named "Team-of-the Year" in the 1972-73 Sports Celebrity Awards.

It happened this way.

The Vikettes finished second to UBC Thunderettes in the collegiate season, but then they entered the national championships. Guess who they met in the final and guess who won? Thunderettes were the opposition and Vikettes turned the tables neatly for 41-39 decision and the title.

Now Gallo is looking for his second national. His Vikettes meet Calgary Dinnies Friday and Saturday in a best-of-three series for the western conference title and a place in the women's nationals. The Vikettes are ranked No. 1 in Canada and feature the conference scoring champion Carol Turney who accumulated 536 points this season.

The Calgary series will also mark the final appearance here of Vikette stars, Mairi-Anne Longmore and Marg Mainwaring.

MIKE GALLO
... coach plans to retire

Meanwhile, UVic Vikings, who went 18 and 2 on the season, will meet Calgary Dinosaurs in a similar best-of-three series for the men's conference championship and a first-ever berth in the national final.

For the Vikings, the home-court advantage may be the edge they need. Calgary captured the Pacific Rim championship here earlier this season, but in conference play, the Vikings won three of four from the Dinosaurs. The Vikings also have the conference scoring champion in Billy Loos.

Loos this season scored 451 points an average of 22.6. Reni Dolcetti also has been a tower of strength lately as he now has fully recovered from a severe leg injury suffered earlier.

Game times for the Vikettes-Dinnies series will be 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday and for the Vikings-Dinosaurs, 8:30 p.m. each day.

If third games are necessary in the series, they will be played Sunday afternoon.

NHL Can Pick Top WHA Clubs

NEW YORK (CP) — The World Hockey Association, seeking new merger talks with the National Hockey League, in effect is saying to NHL owners: "If you let us in this time, you can take your pick of our top clubs."

At least that was the impression gained from the deliberately vague comments of WHA president Howard Baldwin on Wednesday after the WHA's board of trustees agreed to a new plan allowing each of the eight teams in the league to approach the NHL individually.

How this latest move, brought to a head by Winnipeg Jets, can be justified in the context of United States anti-trust laws was not clear. One way would be for the WHA to declare itself a failing business, paving the way for the NHL to legally take in some viable WHA franchises.

NHL owners are deeply concerned about any violation of anti-trust laws in the wake of the terms laid out in the 1974 out-of-court settlement with the WHA.

Federal Judge A. Leon Higginbotham of Philadelphia, who heard the lawsuits brought by the WHA against the NHL, approved that agreement.

Last year, the NHL was careful to consult him in seeking what was first described as an "accommodation" with the WHA, but the use of the word merger became more commonplace. The NHL vetoed the merger last August.

Obviously the legality of any new approach was on the mind of NHL president John Ziegler, who said at league meetings in Atlanta that it would be difficult because of the anti-trust laws for the NHL to listen while the WHA still is doing business.

Baldwin said at a news conference that he could not give any details of the plan out of courtesy to the NHL because the senior league knew nothing about it or encouraged it.

But Ziegler said that when he receives the WHA proposal, he will circulate it around the NHL.

"I think it is my responsibility as chairman and president to circulate it without comment and see what happens after that. My circulating it is not any form of endorsement or approval or anything else.

"Right now, I know of no interest on the NHL's part to involve itself with the WHA in any kind of plan for merger, expansion, or otherwise."

Winnipeg Jets had come to the WHA meeting with the intention of seeking NHL membership as a means of surviving as a major league hockey team. The management of the Jets put pressure on the rest of the league, made its case stick and provided what was described as satisfactory contingency plans for finishing the season.

"I want to make it very clear that the NHL offered no encouragement for anything like this and I have no idea what they might do," Baldwin said. "They just might hang up the phone."

Edmonton owner Peter Pocklington said his Oilers are going to bid for NHL membership and present documentation on their status in about two weeks. "I'm going to ask to be accepted very shortly," Pocklington said.

New England Whalers and Cincinnati Stingers also are seriously considering seeking NHL membership.

"I think four or five are sure to apply," Baldwin said.

"In the meantime, the WHA will continue to operate as a unified league," the statement said. "Each member of the WHA can decide itself whether it is interested in applying for membership in the National Hockey League.

"The WHA fully intends to operate next year in the event no agreement is reached with the NHL."

Baldwin talked about bringing the whole question of merger to a head within a period of four to six weeks. Such a time span could create a lot of new pressures for NHL owners at a time when the league is having its own problems in trying to improve its weaker franchises.

However, Baldwin said the WHA cannot be in the position it was last summer. "We ended up on Aug. 15 trying to struggle to put a league together. . . . Common sense tells me that it's time we did something intelligent. But then again I haven't seen a lot of common sense in this business. Hopefully we will."

Last Aug. 9, the NHL's board of governors killed a plan calling for acceptance of six WHA teams as a separate NHL division.

WINNIPEG (CP) — The chairman of Winnipeg Jets says the club accomplished "exactly what we wanted to accomplish" at Wednesday's meeting of the World Hockey Association board of trustees.

Bob Graham also confirmed that the Jets will be seeking entry into the National Hockey League for the 1978-1979 season.

"We're certainly not out to kill the WHA, but we want to be in the position to allow the members of the organization to be the masters of their own destiny."

BOWLER OF WEEK

Opening game did the trick for Ron Rowley in 18th week of 15th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Rowley (above) collected men's tenpin award after following opening game of 236 with tallies of 207 and 181 for 624 series in Wednesday men's Commercial League at Mayfair Lanes. Also at 624 was Wally Hindmarch, whose top game at Duncan was 222, but contest rules break ties by giving award to bowler with highest single game. Coming close to making it three-way deadlock was Barry Abbot, who fired 623 triple at Lake Cowichan.

Bossy Equals NHL Goal Mark

By The Canadian Press

New York Islanders rookie Mike Bossy had mixed feelings after tying a National Hockey League record Wednesday night with his 44th goal of the season.

It was his second score of the game and gave New York Islanders a 3-2 lead in their match at Atlanta but Guy Chouinard scored to give the Flames a 3-3 tie.

"It feels great but I wish we could have got a win out of it," said Bossy's who tied the league record of 44 goals in a season by a rookie set in 1971-72 by Rick Martin of Buffalo Sabres.

Martin took 73 games to reach the mark while Bossy has played only 52 games.

In Wednesday's other NHL games, Toronto Maple Leafs beat Cleveland Barons 5-3, Boston Bruins beat Vancouver Canucks 6-4, Chicago Black Hawks edged New York Rangers 3-2, Minnesota North Stars upset Los Angeles Kings 4-1 and St. Louis Blues tied Pittsburgh Penguins 2-2.

"The Flames are playing much better against us than they were at the first of the year, especially (Tom) Lysiak and (Eric) Vail," said Bossy. It was Lysiak and Vail who gave the Flames a 2-1 lead before Bossy recorded his 43rd and 44th goals of the season.

"I've always had confidence in myself but I never dreamed I would be playing with Bryan (Trottier) and Clark (Gillies) as well as on such a super team. On our line everyone helps each other and I really think we learn from each other."

Trottier, the league points leader, was out of action for the first time this season with a back ailment but Denis Potvin, who scored New York's first goal, helped set up Bossy's 43rd goal midway in the second period and Gillies assisted on the 44th at 3:09 of the third.

Peter McNab collected his 27th and 28th goals of the season to lead Boston over the Canucks at Vancouver. McNab now has five goals in his last four games while the Bruins, now two points ahead of Buffalo atop the Adams Division, have won seven of their last nine road games.

Another two-goal scorer Wednesday night was Toronto captain Darryl Sittler with his 33rd and 34th. His second score proved to be the winner over Cleveland and he also collected an assist on Ron Ellis's 20th goal of the season.

It was the Toronto right winger's 10th consecutive season with 20 or more goals.

What made the two goals more pleasing for McNab, a Vancouver-born centre, was that his mother was in the stands to see his performance.

Horizons Loom On Hoop Scene

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Horizons have succeeded Victoria Western Home Lumber as British Columbia's senior women's basketball champions.

Horizons got 24 points from Bev Barnes and 18 from Shiela Strike as they defeated Simon Fraser University 56-53 Wednesday in the deciding game of their best-of-three series for the provincial title.

Bev Bland matched Barnes' 24-point performance for SFU and Gail Klaver added 13 points while pulling down 17 rebounds.

The Horizons advance to the Canadian finals Mar 9-12 at St. John's, Nfld.

Home Lumber, which also won the national title last year, disbanded this year after dominating the Canadian scene for the past six years.

Win over B.C. Rink Key In Knutson Plan

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — The Saskatchewan rink at the Canadian senior men's curling championship started this season with three goals, and skip Art Knutson from Elbow already has accomplished two of them.

"We started this year with three goals and we're part of the way there," Knutson said Wednesday after conserving Saskatchewan's hold on first place with two victories.

"First, was the bonspiel in Saskatoon, second we just wanted to get out of the province for this one, which obviously leaves the last one."

Knutson, whose home rink in Elbow installed artificial ice only two weeks ago, won a $10,000 event in Saskatoon last month, picking up the $2,500 first prize before qualifying for this competition.

Knutson and brothers Gay and Elmer at second and lead, respectively, and third Ernie Vaughan improved their record to 7-1. The British Columbia rink of Kelly Carin from Kamloops, Ontario's Bill Wagner from Ottawa and Art Ballem's Charlottetown rink from Prince Edward Island are next, all with 6-2 marks.

Saskatchewan beat the Quebec crew of Jim Wilson from Lachine 7-4 in Wednesday night's eighth-round game, but the biggest win had come against the strong B.C. club a round earlier when the Knutson foursome nipped Carin 6-5 in 11 ends.

In other eighth-round play, B.C. defeated the Newfoundland rink of Ralph Atwill from St. John's, 10-3 in nine ends, Ontario whipped Al Dusseault's Territories rink from Yellowknife, 9-2 in eight ends. P.E.I. beat George Laudrum's Manitoba crew from Winnipeg, 10-4 in nine ends, Tim Temeruski of Timmins, representing Northern Ontario, downed Alberta's Jack Sharpe from Sherwood Park, 7-5 in nine ends, and Jim Murphy's New Brunswick contingent from Saint John edged Hugh Little of Halifax, representing Nova Scotia, 7-6 in 11 ends.

In seventh-round action, Quebec defeated Ontario 9-4, Nova Scotia beat Manitoba 8-4, P.E.I. edged Alberta 6-5, New Brunswick nipped Northern Ontario 6-4 and Newfoundland downed the Territories 9-8.

GIRLS OPEN ISLAND HOOP PLAYOFFS

The girls are one step ahead of the boys as Vancouver Island high school basketball teams shift into high playoff gear tonight.

Five South Island teams and three from the North are set to launch the Island girls playdowns in Courtenay today. The two top teams after the three-day tournament are automatic qualifiers for the B.C. championships while the third-place finisher must play off with the No. 4 Vancouver district squad for another berth in the provincials.

Reynolds Roadrunners, Parkland Panthers, Oak Bay, Mt. Douglas Ramblers and Victoria High Tigers are the South's representatives while Nanaimo, Port Alberni and host Courtenay are the North's representatives.

Boys teams, meanwhile, will play in the South and North playdowns for positioning in next week's Island showdown at Nanaimo.

Esquimalt Dockers and Claremont Spartans start the southern playoffs tonight. The winners will face Parkland Panthers on Friday while Spectrum plays Mt. Doug Rams. Friday's winners will play off Saturday for third and fourth positions in the Island tournament while divisional champions Oak Bay and Belmont Braves decide the south's first and second spots.

Nanaimo Islanders, Cowichan Thunderbirds, Campbell River, Courtenay and Powell River will meet in Nanaimo to determine nothern placings.

Cougars Lose Second Rung

Seattle Breakers finally have taken advantage of their games in hand to replace Victoria Cougars as the second-place occupants in the Western Canada Hockey League's Western Division.

The Breakers defeated Saskatoon Blades 7-2 in Seattle Wednesday to move one point ahead of the Cougars, who had doggedly held the positition for the past three weeks. The Breakers had six games in hand at one time but now have only two.

And their hot argument continues with both teams scheduled to hit the ice tonight. The Cougars entertain Flin Flon Bombers at Memorial Arena while the Breakers and Saskatoon stage a rematch in Seattle.

In addition to overhauling the Cougars, the Breakers also moved to within seven points of first-place Portland Winter Hawks. Portland marked time by dropping a 6-5 decision to the Wheat Kings in Brandon.

In other games Wednesday, Lethbridge Broncos defeated Regina Pats 5-1 while Medicine Hat Tigers tripped Billings Bighorns 7-3.

Steve Tambellini scored two goals — his 59th and 60th of the season — to become the highest scorer in Lethbridge's history.

Tambellini now has a career total of 303 points, one more than managed by Bryan Trottier in his career with the Broncos.

HAWKES REPEATS

CRANBROOK — Bob Hawkes and his Victoria rink will represent British Columbia in the Canadian police curling playdowns for a second straight year.

Hawkes, Steve Holotuk, Wayne Dew and Lyle Nurse successfully defended the provincial title by marching undefeated in the double-knockout playdowns here.

The Victoria quartet concluded its march Wednesday by defeating Nanaimo's Fred Taurbahm 8-7 and then clinching it all by topping Jim McEachern of Vancouver 5-3 in the "B" final.

Scorpions Topple Leaders

The leaders in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League felt the Scorpions' sting Wednesday.

Repulsing a second-half charge, Scorpions edged first-place Victoria Athletics 89-85 in one of two games played at Victoria High.

Dave Morgan hit for 20 points, Dave Speed added 19 ad Ian Scott scored 17 to fashion the upset by Scorpions, who led 45-39 at the half.

Duff McCaghey sparkled for Athletics with 31 points while Jim McKay added 21.

In the other game, Techline hung a 78-75 defeat on the University of Victoria Jayvees. Teams were tied at 37 at the half.

John Lauvaas paced Techline with 24 points while Tom Hatcher and Bruce English each added 13. Rick Jeffrey topped the Jayvees with 18 points.

Move To Dump Kuhn

NEW YORK (AP) — A bloc of baseball owners is working slowly behind the scenes to send commissioner Bowie Kuhn back to the full-time practice of law.

An Associated Press survey indicates that nine of the 26 owners today would vote in a secret ballot to can Kuhn, who has five years remaining on a seven-year term.

The private lobbying against Kuhn hasn't reached the role call stage yet, but owner Brad Corbett of Texas is known to have approached several of his colleagues about dumping the commissioner.

Corbett had Kuhn's head in his hands three years ago in a meeting in Milwaukee when the commissioner's contract came up for renewal. The Rangers owner was one of four American League executives aligned against Kuhn at the time, enough opposition to dump him.

But in an 11th-hour gambit, Los Angeles owner Walter O'Malley came flying in from the West Coast to convince Corbett and Yankees owner George Steinbrenner to change their votes.

The other nay-sayers in 1975 were American Leaguers Charlie Finley of Oakland and Jerrold Hoffberger of Baltimore. Ray Kroc of San Diego was adamant in his opposition, but was coaxed to change his National League vote at the last minute for the sake of unanimity.

Contacts with several ownership sources have provided a list of at least nine owners who are opposed to Kuhn today. They are Finley, Corbett, Hoffberger, Steinbrenner and Kroc plus Gene Autry of California, Bill Veeck of Chicago White Sox, Ted Turner of Atlanta and Bob Howsam of Cincinnati.

There is disagreement over how many more negative votes would be needed to send the former NL attorney back to his law books.

Some owners say five more anti-Kuhn owners would produce a simple majority of 14 (out of 26 clubs), tipping the balance against the commissioner. Since there is no procedure for dismissal, however, other owners contend that the rules for renewing the commissioner's contract must apply.

Gentlemen, This Isn't Really a Ball, But . . .

max low

When you're a coach you often have to improvise, as most coaches know.

When you're Canada's coaching co-ordinator and have to try to promote the sport of rugby in some of our far-flung outposts, you often have to improvise a lot more than usual — as David Roberts now knows.

The Welshman who took over this season from Victoria's Don Burgess, arrived in Kelowna (which really is only far-flung as far as rugby is concerned) to kick off his province-wide series of clinics.

With members of the newly-formed Okanagan and Mainline Rugby Football Union everywhere, David was swamped by enthusiasm.

But, when he announced he'd hold some running drills, no one could find a rugby ball!

"They were all rather embarrassed and one official said a little sheepishly that he knew where there was a soccer ball we could use," David told me with a big grin. "I was just wondering if there was some way I could tie a cushion around the soccer ball so it would perhaps bounce a little more like a rugby ball when someone produced an American football."

That was smaller than a rugby ball, was under-inflated and had a large split in it. But the Welshman wasn't perturbed. He told them:

"Gentlemen, I'm going to use my considerable immagination — I suggest you do the same."

They did, too, David said and the more than 50 enthusiasts who showed up for the clinic were as keen as they could possibly be and kept him a couple of hours longer than he'd intended.

"They literally didn't want me to go," the coaching co-ordinator said.

And each place he went — to New Westminster, to Vancouver, to the Cowichan Valley, and finally to Victoria where around 200 people attended two clinics — he met with the same kind of enthusiasm.

While he was on the Island, Roberts took the opportunity to watch last Saturday's McKechnie Cup game. Dequite their loss to the Crimson Tide, he was very impressed with the young UBC players.

"That's what university rugby should be like," he said of their performance. "If we can get university rugby at that standard throughout Canada, the whole level of the game here will go up."

It over-simplifies things to say that rugby begins in the schools, the Welshman said.

"Sure, it's important to get youngsters playing in the schools but if you get the university teams playing really well, I feel that's the answer. Your future teachers and rugby coaches are coming out of the universities and the success of the game is in their hands."

After 12 years as coach of the Nottingham Rugby Club in England, David Roberts admitted he has found it tough settling into an executive position as co-ordinator where he organizes clinics and coaches the coaches instead of the players. But he has settled in and finds the job challenging. O'Keefe's (who fund his appointment) appear to be pleased with him, David said, and recently tripled his yearly travel allowance from $3,000 to $9,000.

"Oh, certainly I miss the excitement of Saturday morning before the game," Roberts confessed. "There's no doubt about it.

"But in this last week of clinics, I got such a lot out of passing on knowledge and learning myself about what people want . . . so perhaps this compensates for it."

"Ma'am, the Captain has requested that you give him a few minutes advance warning should you wish to leave your seat during the flight."

Braves Get Home Edge

Saanich Braves, the defending British Columbia champions, have claimed the home-ice advantage in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League's championship series.

Braves clinched first place in the Patterson Division by dumping Fuller Lake Flyers 6-2 Wednesday in Fuller Lake. Flyers had to settle for second place after the double round-robin playoffs.

The two teams now square off in a best-of-seven final, scheduled to open Tuesday at Pearkes Arena.

Juan de Fuca Gulls and Lake Cowichan Bairds, the 1-2 finishers in the Peart Division, will play off in a consolation series with starts Monday at Juan de Fuca.

Sandy Overcome

Second-place Victoria Athletics overcame the stubborn netminding of Dave Sandy to defeat Juan de Fuca Merchants 8-6 in a South Island Big Six Hockey League game Wednesday at Juan de Fuca.

Sandy made 40 saves to keep Merchants in contention throughout the game. Rival Gord Mitchell blocked 21 shots.

Athletics led 3-1 after the first period and took a 5-4 lead into the final frame.

Prep Rugby Teams Romp

One-sided results were the order of the day in the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League Wednesday.

Oak Bay's Barbarians hammered Lambrick Park 54-0, Claremont Spartans thumped Mt. Douglas Mountainmen 53-3, St. Michael's University School blanked Belmont 26-0 and Victoria High Titans dropped Esquimalt 27-0.

Tim Anderson and Paul Vaesen sparked Oak Bay's attack, each scoring three tries.

OAK BAY (54)—Tim Anderson 3 tries, Paul Vaesen 3 tries 1 convert, Mitch Bloomfield 2 tries, Mark Pinckard, Paul Docherty, Mark Britner, Andrew Johnstone, Don Driedger 1 try; LAMBRICK PARK (0).

SMU (26)—Darcy Bacon, Rob Frame, Pat Costello, Dave Achtzner, Andrew Wong 1 try, Dave Murrell 3 converts; BELMONT (0).

VICTORIA HIGH (27)—Mike DeGoede 2 tries 1 convert, Mark Wyatt 1 penalty goal 1 convert, John James, Paul Pynn, Murray Clarke 1 try; ESQUIMALT (0).

Arbutus in Squeaker

Oak Bay, Lansdowne and Cedar Hill enjoyed "breathing room" outings but Arbutus had its hands full in the opening round of the Greater Victoria junior high school basketball tournament.

The eight-team tournament continues today and concludes Friday with the championship finale scheduled at 7 p.m.

The top three finishers advance to the Island tournament, to be played at Oak Bay March 10-11.

Arbutus, getting 16 points from Ian Lang, nipped Central 53-50 in Wednesday's most exciting game.

Randy Hess and Steve Holmes each pumped in 10 points to lead host Oak Bay to a 58-42 victory over Colquitz; Darren Alexander pumped in 20 points to spark Lansdowne to a 56-36 romp over Lambrick Park, and Dan Thompson fired 19 as Cedar Hill dumped Reynolds 48-30.

Ski Appeal Tossed Out

BERNE, Switzerland (Reuter) — The International Ski Federation has rejected an Austrian appeal against the disqualification of Annemarie Moser-Proell in a World Cup giant slalom race at Val d'Isere, France, last December.

Moser-Proell, who finished second, was disqualified because her ski suit was less wind-resistant than FIS regulations require.

Ace by Morrill

Mike Morrill, playing in a foursome with Carl Schwantje, Mark Taylor and assistant professional Mike Mahovlic, scored his first career hole-in-one by sinking his tee shot on the 146-yard second hole at Victoria Golf Club on Wednesday.

SWEDES TOP EVENT

LAHTI, Finland (AP) — Thomas Magnuson of Sweden overtook Finland's Matti Pitkanen with less than a mile remaining and coasted to an easy 11-second victory today in the men's 40-kilometre (24.9-mile) cross-country relay at the world Nordic ski championships.

Brady, Barlow On Top

Ian Brady and Wendy Barlow are ranked No. 1 in the men's and women's divisions, respectively, of the Vancouver Island Tennis Association. These rankings are based on 1977 tournament play.

Barlow is last year's Canada Games champion and is second ranked in Canada in the under-21 division.

Behind Brady in the men's rankings are: 2. Russ Hartley, 3. Peter Smythe, 4. Tony Simneth, 5. Timo Markenen, 6. Joe Lachmund, 7. Greg Miller, 8. Trevor Smyth, 9. Greg Fox and 10. Scott Braley.

Nina Bland is No. 2 in the women's division followed by 3. Brenda Cameron, 4. Jennifer Bland, 5. Damaris Hurley, 6. Sandra Moss, 7. Jean Smith, 8. Agnes Szilos, 9. Ann Graham, 10. Valerie Brice.

ALI SWITCHES TO BANGLADESH

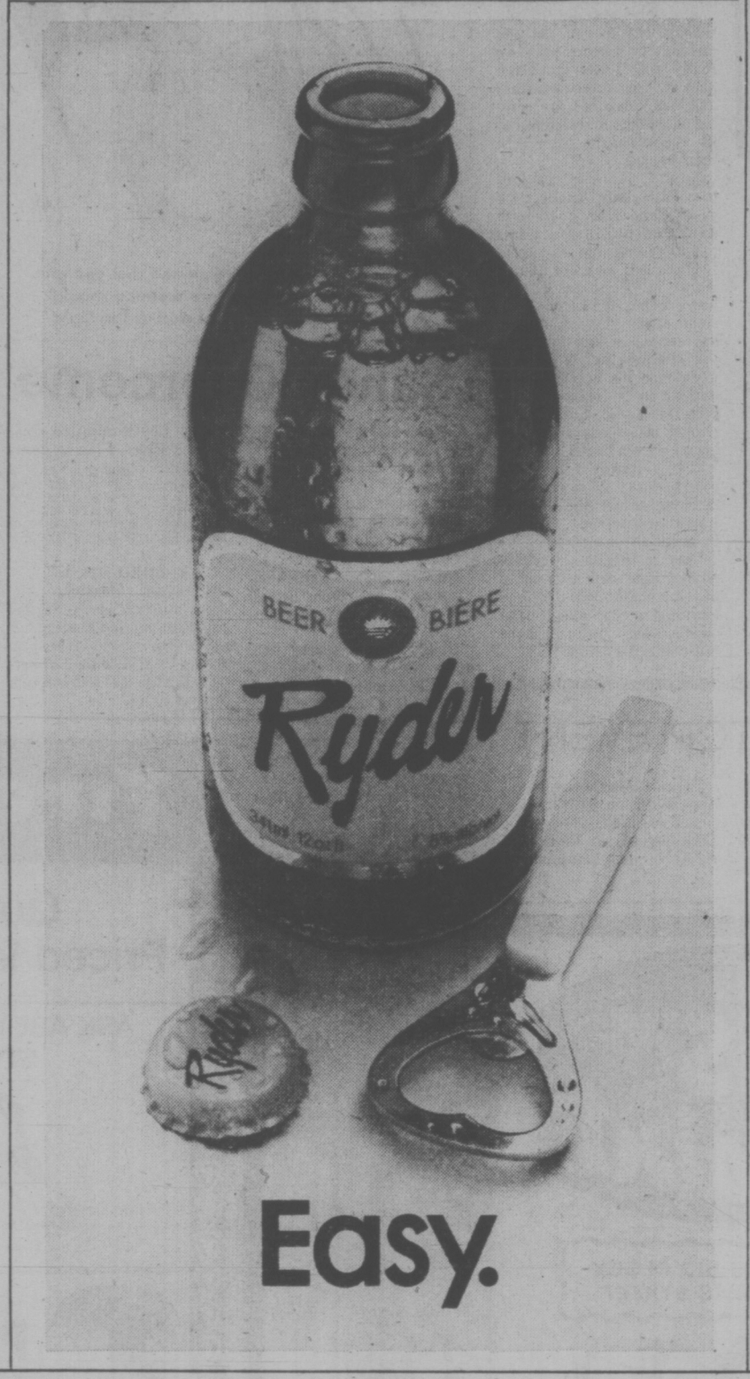
DACCA (Reuter) — Former world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali said Wednesday he would fight in future as a Bangladesh citizen.

Ali, who lost his crown to Leon Spinks last week in Las Vegas, left for London after a five-day goodwill visit to during which he was made an honorary citizen by president Ziaur Rahman.



Easy.

Fact:

There are times when it pays to borrow to save.

People who know how to use money recognize the time when borrowing to invest makes good common sense. You will often find that the return on the investment more than adequately compensates for the interest you pay on the loan. At Royal Trust we will discuss the possibility of lending you the necessary funds to get you started in a Royal Trust RRSP this year. And there has never been a better time to start investing in your future than today. We will sit down with you and describe the plans we have available, their costs and their potential return. All the help you need. We feel that important decisions shouldn't be made lightly. That's why we'll do more than just hand you a brochure.

Tickets Near Target

EDMONTON (CP) — Approximately $2.8 million worth of Commonwealth Games tickets have been sold, but officials want to push the total to around $5 million, a Games spokesman said Wednesday.

As of mid-February, the Commonwealth Games Foundation sold 272,334 of its 715,000 tickets, the spokesman said, which means the foundation has just about reached the minimum $3-million revenue target it set for ticket sales.

A complete sell-out would be about $5.3 million.

Over-the-counter sales of remaining tickets are scheduled to start in May or June.

Morgan Fourth On Cash List

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gil Morgan, who won $40,000 Sunday in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open, has moved into fourth place among pro golf's money winners this season with $48,631.

Tom Watson sat out the $200,000 tourney but stayed atop the earnings list with $103,181. Bill Rogers is second at $69,692 and Hubert Green is third at $63,424.

Completing the top 10 are Jay Haas, $46,285; Miller Barber, $43,376; Bill Kratzert, $36,861; Gene Littler, $36,383; Jerry McGee, $35,848, and Lee Trevino, $33,517.

Tag Team Mat Feature

A six-man tag team will feature the wrestling card at Memorial Arena, Thursday, March 2, beginning at 8 p.m.

John Quinn, Guy Mitchell and Igor Volkoff will go against The Avenger, Wild Don Wayt and The Outlaw. There will be three other bouts.

Don't renew your car insurance until you've asked about...

All B.C. vehicles must carry the Basic Autoplan insurance. This protection gives you coverage of $75,000 Third Party Legal Liability and "No Fault" Accident Benefits.

If you feel this isn't adequate for your needs, ask any Autoplan agent or Motor Vehicle Branch office about the wide range of optional coverage that is available.

1. If you feel you need more Third Party Legal Liability coverage, it is available in amounts from $100,000 to $10 million.

2. Worried about fire, theft, windstorm, lightning? Specified Perils provides coverage against this and is available with a $50 deductible.

3. What about Comprehensive coverage? It provides protection against virtually all risks, including glass breakage, but not including collision damage. This is available as a package with Collision insurance or separately with a $50 deductible. This is available only with Comprehensive in a wide choice of deductibles.

4. Many motorists purchase Collision coverage which pays for the cost of repairs to your vehicle in the event of an accident when you are at fault.

5. You may have additional equipment such as a tape deck not installed by the manufacturer, a camper, canopy, winch, citizens band radio or other special equipment. You can be covered for these items and others. Any Autoplan agent or Motor Vehicle Branch office can provide you with information on this and other Autoplan coverages.

6. You can purchase Loss of Vehicle Use coverage, so that if your vehicle is not driveable as a result of an accident—for which you are responsible—you will be reimbursed for the cost of a substitute means of transportation. You are covered, under your basic policy, for Loss of Vehicle Use, if the loss is by theft.

7. Make certain you are in the proper rate class, which is based on vehicle use and the principal operator.

8. Do you hate line-ups? For your own convenience renew early. The deadline for renewal is midnight, Tuesday, February 28, 1978.

9. If you want to finance your premiums, the Corporation has established an Autoplan premium financing plan, that any Autoplan agent or Motor Vehicle Branch office can explain to you.

10. To renew simply take your renewal form to any Autoplan agent or Motor Vehicle Branch office. They will help you complete it, or make any changes and provide you with new decals and an insurance certificate. If you do not receive a renewal form by mail, take your present Vehicle Licence/Owner's Certificate and driver's licence to any Autoplan agent or Motor Vehicle Branch office.

British Columbia's Autoplan is independent and self-supporting. In Manitoba and Saskatchewan, government operated auto insurance plans are partially subsidized and offer poorer benefits than received by B.C. motorists. Still, ICBC rates are in line and sometimes lower. Here are examples for your specific region.

DRIVER: 30 years and over, or any female or married male over 25. No accidents in B.C. in the last 2 years, 3 years elsewhere. Vehicle used for pleasure only.

Cup Final For Forest

LONDON (AP) — Nottingham Forest twice came from behind to down Leeds 4-2 Wednesday night and clinched a place in the final of the English League Cup.

Leeds led 2-1 at half-time but failed to stem the tide of Nottingham's aggression in the second half. Forest piled up a winning aggregate of 7-3, having won the first leg at Leeds 3-1.

Forest, runaway leader in the English League championship race, now meets Liverpool in the final of the League Cup at Wembley Stadium on March 18.

Frank Gray scored for Leeds in the 13th minute. Peter Withe levelled the scores in the 18th minute but within seconds Gray had sent Leeds into the lead again.

In the second half the Nottingham attack gradually wore down Leeds' resistance. Ian Bowyer made it 2-2 in the 55th minute, and Martin O'Neill (73) and Tony Woodcock (75) scored two quick goals to seal Nottingham's triumph.

Meanwhile Cyrille Regis scored two goals as West Bromwich edged Derby 3-2 at Derby for a place in the quarter-finals of the English FA Cup, the big traditional knockout tournament.

Regis headed his first goal in the fifth minute. Derby, cheered on by a crowd of 32,698, struck back with a free-kick by Bruce Rioch, but Willie Johnston beat three opponents in a thrilling run down the left wing and lashed in a shot from an acute angle to make it 2-1 for West Bromwich at half-time.

West Bromwich was only the third team to reach the quarter-finals, joining last Saturday's winners Arsenal and Millwall. Other games Wednesday were drawn or postponed because of the wintry weather, and replays are awaited.

Scotland Wins

Times News Services

Ian Wallace scored the winning goal with seven minutes remaining as Scotland defeated Bulgaria 2-1 in an exhibition soccer game in Glasgow, Wednesday, before 65,000 fans.

And in Munich, West Germany handed England a 2-1 defeat in another warmup for the World Cup in Argentina later this year.

Wallace, who came on as a substitute 25 minutes from the end, hit a fierce right foot shot from just inside the penalty area. The Bulgarians protested bitterly that he was offside and English referee booked for dissent defender Ivan Iliev and Zonio Vassiliev, who had leaped from the substitutes bench to join the argument.

Wallace's Coventry teammate, goalkeeper Jim Blyth—both were making their debut for Scotland—was beaten by Stoitcho Mladenov's drive to give Bulgaria a 1-0 lead. However, Archie Gemmill tied the score from the penalty spot.

The Germans, trailing at halftime 1-0 on a 43rd minute goal by Stewart Pearson, got goals from Ronnie Worm in the 79th minute and a direct free kick by Rainer Bonhof in the 86th minute to salvage the win in a game that saw England's re-emergence as a power in the game.

Alley Cats Take City Hoop Title

Alley Cats defeated Valkyries 57-44 in the final of the women's senior "B" basketball playoffs Wednesday night to qualify for the Vancouver Island championship at Courtenay next month.

Pam Henson and Sheila Chalmers each scored 13 points and Jan Nowell had 12 for the winners. Marg Barber had 12 for Valkyries.

Three teams, Alley Cats, Cowichan and Courtenay, will compete in a double round-robin tournament at Courtenay, March 4 and 5.

The Bridge Expert

The ability to put up a brave front when he is actually in dire straits is one of the characteristics of the expert's strength. The effect of this false front is that it often misleads his adversaries into believing that he is on safe ground, with the result that they let their opportunity slip away.

Today's deal illustrates this theme. The defenders were unable to diagnose the true state of affairs, thus enabling declarer to fulfill an unmakable contract.

East-West vulnerable.

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 3 NT | Pass | Pass | Pass |

Opening lead: Five of ♣.

East put up the club queen on the opening lead, and declarer promptly took the queen with his ace. He then laid down the king of diamonds, upon which West played the seven and East followed suit with the nine-spot. The four of diamonds was led next, and again West played low, dummy's ten-spot winning. Declarer now had his contracted-for nine tricks.

It is obvious that the defenders could have made four club tricks and one diamond. Why didn't they?

From West's point of view, he didn't know the location of the king of clubs. He assumed that declarer had probably started with the ace and king of clubs, and had chosen to win the first trick with his ace. Then when South laid down the diamond king, West didn't take it, lest all of dummy's diamonds become cashable winners.

On Souths second diamond lead, West again declined to take the ace because East had played the diamond nine on the initial diamond lead. East's play was a conventional one when dummy has a long, establishable suit with no outside entry. He "high-lows" to show a doubleton in the suit. West, correctly interpreting that East's nine was the beginning of this high-low signal, therefore concluded that South had been dealt three diamonds.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, February 24
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Define terms — clear away emotional and other debris. Clean lines now are more important than usual. Check ways to improve techniques. Work, health, performing basic services — these are on agenda. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on involvement, change, variety, sensuality. Nothing is halfway — there is pressure, responsibility, falling madly in and out of love. Capricorn, Cancer individuals figure prominently — and so does the number 8.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): This is conclusion time — no more beating about the bush. Arrive at decision, stick to it. Finish what you start. Long-range reactions occur, based on what you do now. Aries, Libra figure prominently. One who is strong is on your side. Know it and be confident.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Ideas click — you get response to innovative plans, actions. Aries, Leo and Aquarius figure prominently. Relatives and close neighbors make known their desires, intentions. Yes, the message and short trip blend and are necessary.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on collections, learning directions becoming familiar with instructions. Aquarian is in picture — relationship is tested. You discover where happiness and intrigue lie — you make a choice. The two simply will not go together. The choice is your own.

VIRGO (AUG. 23-Sept. 22): Get going, be a self-starter, exude confidence. Popularity swells — you sway people. Know it and go ahead full-steam. Wear bright colors, make personal appearances. One who attempted to make you afraid will appear — hat in hand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be meticulous about details. Study fine print — read between the lines. Be direct, avoid evasions which result in delay and loss. You are provided a backstage glimpse — make the most of it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasize images — perceive potential. Your scope is high, wide — the sky is the limit. Analyze, create, put thoughts together — your works can sparkle. Know it and proceed accordingly. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius figure prominently — so does the number 5.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You get support necessary to reach goal. Key note is to be diplomatic without deserting principles. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio could figure prominently. Remodel, improve safety measures in connection with home base. Those in positions of authority intend to support you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You gain insights through unusual, unorthodox sources. You are backstage, viewing the strings being pulled, manipulated. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Keep lines of communication clear — plan for journey, publishing or reading program.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on leases, rentals, taxes, finances in relation to partner, mate. Spotlight also is on hidden matters, fascination with the occult. Relationship is "involved." Nothing is halfway and there is a price to pay.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You're able to break free from some restrictions. Legal affairs are part of scenario. A relationship is put to test. There will be an end — or a new beginning. Questions of cost do arise, but you will get green light.

IF FEBRUARY 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are dramatic, magnetic, "sexy," expressive and you have an unusual voice. You can act, teach, bring an audience to its feet. You may change residence this year — February and November are outstanding months for you in 1978. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio individuals play important roles in your life.

PLO Arms Supplied To IRA Guerrillas?

BELFAST (AP) — Irish Republican Army guerrillas in Ulster have received new weapons from the Palestine Liberation Organization, says an authoritative security source.

Among the weapons are explosives and one half-dozen U.S.-made M-60 machine guns, the source told The Associated Press.

The source declined to be identified or give many details. But it is known that the IRA's Provisional wing has received at least one shipment of arms from the PLO in recent months.

Five tons of PLO hardware—mortars, rocket launchers, automatic weapons and explosives—were intercepted in Belgium last November. The arms were hidden in electrical transformers en route from Cyprus to the Irish Republic.

"The IRA have plenty of weapons," the security source reported, "although we've captured a lot of their arms including American rifles."

The Provisionals, fighting a guerrilla war to end British rule of Northern Ireland and unite the Protestant-dominated province with the Catholic-dominated republic to the south, are known to have had links with the Palestinians since 1970. Palestinians have trained Irish guerrillas in Lebanon and Libya, intelligence sources say.

Security chiefs believe the Provisionals plan to step up the campaign they launched before Christmas against the members of the predominantly-Protestant police force and Ulster Defence Regiment, the province's 8,000-member national guard.

DEATH SQUAD ARREST

SAO PAULO, Brazil (Reuter) — A top police investigator was arrested here Wednesday on charges of murdering three drug traffickers, police said.

Sergio Paranhos Fleury, head of the Sao Paulo criminal investigation department, surrendered to police here after a judge issued a warrant for his arrest Tuesday night.

The indictment charged Fleury and four other officers of murdering the drug traffickers whose bullet-riddled bodies were found in the Sao Paulo suburb of Guarulhos in December, 1968.

Fleury has been honored for fighting extreme left-wing guerrilla movements in the early 1970s.

Canal Vote Uncertain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The outcome of the U.S. Senate's first procedural vote on the Panama canal treaties gives no clear indication whether the pacts eventually will be approved or rejected.

By a vote of 67 to 30, the Senate agreed to stick to its plan of considering the treaty to ensure the waterway's neutrality before dealing with the treaty that would actually hand the Canal Zone over to Panama.

The vote Wednesday came on a proposal by Senator James Allen, a leader of the treaty foes, to reverse that order.

Although both sides scanned the roll call for indications of how undecided senators might eventually vote on the treaties, there were few clues.

The leadership of both parties opposed Allen's move.

More debate is expected to fill the rest of this week, with no votes planned until next week when efforts to amend the treaties will begin.

Separate votes will be required for the two treaties, one of which would turn the canal over to Panama by the year 2000. The second commits both countries to maintaining the waterway's neutrality. Both must be ratified by two-thirds majorities.

The bipartisan leadership has lined up overwhelming support for amending the neutrality pact to include guarantees of the United States' right to intervene militarily to keep the canal open while also spelling out priority passage for U.S. warships in time of emergency.

RCMP TO CHECK IN ANTIGUA

ST. JOHN'S, Antigua (Reuter) — The Antigua government will permit a RCMP officer to make an investigation here of allegations that a Canadian company may have used this Caribbean island as a trans-shipment point for arms to southern Africa.

The government said in a statement Wednesday that the request came the Canadian government. It is the latest development in a controversy concerning Space Research Corp. (SRC) of Montreal which has facilities in Antigua and Barbados.

The opposition Antigua-Caribbean Liberation Movement (ACLM) has repeatedly accused SRC of involvement in shipment of arms to Rhodesia and South Africa, alleging that Antigua is being used as a trans-shipment point.

But the corporation firmly denied this.

The controversy has been raging since last October when Rhodesian nationalist leader Joshu Nkomo said that arms had been shipped to white southern African regimes from Canada through the United States and Antigua.

The Antigua government said it would never "harbor any person or organization involved in shipping arms to South Africa."

Pay Goes Up . . .And Down

Most Capital Regional District directors are likely to get a four per cent pay boost this year and three Saanich Peninsula directors will probably receive even more.

Gulf Islands directors, however, are likely to lose ground.

The regional board's executive committee recommended the increases Wednesday and the matter will go before the board's next meeting.

Because Gulf Island directors are no longer responsible for land use decisions it was decided their remuneration should be reduced. The Salt Spring Island representative's indemnity would be reduced from $5,300 to $4,664 and the Outer Gulf Island representative would receive $4,134 instead of $4,664.

Saanich Peninsula directors should receive extra remuneration because of their additional responsibilities for water distribution and recreation, it was decided. North Saanich and Sidney directors are due to have their rate hiked from $2,650 to $4,134 while the Central Saanich director will receive $3,315 instead of $2,650 because Central Saanich does not participate in the recreation commission.

Realtor Policing Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia real estate industry has to police itself more strictly or the provincial government will do it, Rafe Mair, consumer and corporate affairs minister said Wednesday night.

The warning was contained in the draft of a speech released by Mair's office prior to its presentation at the annual meeting of the Real Estate Board of Greater Vancouver.

Mair said several areas of the industry could stand major improvement, citing lack of disclosure by sellers of property defects; antiquated, unintelligible jargon in property sales documents; and over-licensing of salesmen.

He said the government does not want to interfere with the real estate industry but will do so if necessary.

He also presented to board members, for their comment, the draft of a disclosure statement that the government would like to make mandatory for prospective sellers to sign when putting properties on the market.

Mair said it might be human nature for a seller to omit pointing out known defects, but the requirement that a seller sign stated claims to the property's condition would make it more difficult to knowingly misrepresent a property.

Oil Freeze Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia favors an oil price freeze for the rest of this year and next year, the Arab country's industry minister says. Ghazi al-Gosaibi repeated his country's position on Tuesday while holding talks with administration officials and executives of U.S. firms with projects in Saudi Arabia.

Buy Homes, Region Told

Properties in the Block Brothers subdivision near Esquimalt Lagoon should be bought up, the houses moved and the area turned into parkland, Metchosin director Mac Tipton told the Capital Regional District board Wednesday.

He made the suggestion after a long and heated debate on how to solve the sewage problems of the subdivison.

Tipton's suggestion was referred to the parks committee for study but Victoria Ald. Bob Wright said the land acquisition would cost the regional district in the neighborhood of $4 million.

The board also decided to seek a legal opinion on whether or not it can appeal the decision of the Pollution Control Board not to allow a sewer outfall that would discharge subdivision effluent 1,200 feet offshore.

Chairman Jim Campbell said he was more than slightly shaken by the PCB's decision and added the regional district had made it clear that, along with the outfall, it would build a secondary treatment facility when ordered by the PCB, or not later than Dec. 31, 1981.

Regional engineers, it was decided, will renew discussions with federal government officials on the possibility of disposing sewage from land at Royal Roads and Belmont Park along with that of the subdivision.

Regional health officer Dr. Alan Arneil, who said the health hazard in the subdivision is very high, said the PCB's alternative proposal to pump out existing septic tanks until a permanent solution is found would be costly and probably unworkable.

Unless a different kind of septic tank is installed, Arneil said the small treatment plants would have to be pumped out once and even twice a day. He added that there would be difficulty in finding places to put the effluent once it is pumped out of the tanks.

The faulty sewage disposal systems were approved by metropolitan health inspectors before health became a regional district responsibility. Home-owners in the subdivision launched legal action against the regional district which was dropped when it became clear the authorization had not been given by the district.

"We inherited a real problem," Campbell said Wednesday.

CHARGE MULLED

A complaint that North Cowichan Mayor George Whittaker assaulted three Indians earlier this month is in the hands of Duncan prosecutor Rory Morahan.

Morahan will make a decision on whether a formal charge will be laid.

Larry Seymour, of the Chemainus Band, Gordon Elliot of the Cowichan Band, and Paul Dame, an Indian consultant, allege Whittacker was one of three persons who assaulted them during an altercation at a public meeting in Cowichan High School Feb. 14.

The other two were identified as Frank Whittaker, the mayor's brother, and Leo Fontaine.

The three Indians were ejected from the meeting, sponsored by the Duncan Chamber of Commerce to review economic development in the area.

Noodles Are a Complement

FOOD & nutrition

Noodles and noodle dishes, whatever their origin, are one of the most welcome miracles of gastronomy, a blessing at tables that know no national boundaries.

It has been empirically established that many of the most popular recipes for foods ever printed in this column have been those that deal with noodle casseroles, and for numerous reasons.

In the first place, noodles, because of their essentially neutral nature (they must be sauced or otherwise garnished even if only with butter and cheese) take well to an infinite variety of flavors. And they complement the foods with which they are placed in the league.

They team well with almost all poultry, meat, vegetables and fish. A noodle casserole—whether subtle or robust in character—can be a winner as a super dish or as what people tend to call "party fare". Dinner for one can be a party if the food is delectable.

Noodles are also economical. They have a marvelous way of making a little poultry meat or fish stretch dinner for two into a party for four.

Crab and Noodle Casserole

1 pound fresh crab meat
7 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg
Tabasco sauce to taste
2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced
Juice of half a lemon
½ cup dry white wine
1 cup heavy cream
2 egg yolks
½ pound noodles, preferably fine noodles, although other noodles such as wide noodles, fettucini and so on will suffice
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese.

1. Preheat the oven to 425 degrees.

2. Empty the crab into a mixing bowl. If there are any bits of shell or cartilage apparent, remove them but leave the lumps of crab as whole as possible. Do not flake the crab meat.

3. In a saucepan melt three tablespoons of butter and add the flour, stirring with a wire whisk. When blended, add the milk, stirring rapidly with the whisk. When blended smooth and bubbling, add salt, pepper, nutmeg and Tabasco. Cook briefly and remove from the heat.

4. Melt one tablespoon of remaining butter in a skillet and add the shallots and cook, stirring, until wilted. Add the mushrooms and lemon juice. Cook briefly and add the wine. Cook until wine is almost totally reduced and add the cream. Cook five minutes. Add two tablespoons of the cream sauce. Add the crab meat.

5. Return the remaining cream sauce to the heat. Beat the egg yolks and add them to the sauce, stirring rapidly with the whisk. Remove from the heat.

6. Cook the noodles in boiling salted water until just tender. Take care not to overcook. They will be baked with the crab. Drain the noodles well.

7. Scatter the noodles over a baking dish (an oval dish measuring about 10 by 12 by 2 inches is useful). Spoon the crab mixture evenly over the noodles.

8. Spoon the egg-enriched cream sauce over the top, smoothing it over. Dot with remaining butter. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Place in the oven and bake 20 minutes until bubling throughout and golden on top.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Chicken, Broccoli and Noodle Casserole

3 pounds chicken, either whole or cut into pieces
Salt to taste
12 crushed peppercorns
2 ribs celery, quartered
1 small onion, peeled and struck with two cloves
3 sprigs fresh parsley
1 carrot, trimmed and quartered
8 tablespoons butter
6½ tablespoons flour
2½ cups chicken broth (from the cooked chicken)
1½ cups heavy cream
1 bunch broccoli, about two and one-quarter pounds
Freshly ground pepper to taste
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1 large or two small egg yolks
¼ pound fine or medium noodles
¼ cup grated gruyere or parmesan cheese

1. Place the chicken in a kettle and add water to cover, salt, peppercorns, celery, onion, parsley and carrot. Bring to the boil and simmer 30 minutes or longer or until chicken is tender but not dry. Set aside. Remove the chicken and cook down the broth to about three cups. Strain it.

2. Preheat the oven to 400 degrees.

3. Melt five tablespoons of butter in a saucepan and add the flour, stirring with a wire whisk. Add the two and one-half cups of broth, stirring rapidly with the whisk. When thickened and smooth, stir in the cream. Cook, stirring often, about 10 minutes longer.

4. Meanwhile, break the broccoli into "flowerettes." Drop them into boiling salted water and simmer about two minutes. Drain. Run under cold running water to chill. Drain well.

5. Pull the chicken meat from the bones. Remove and discard the skin. Cut the chicken into bite-size pieces. There should be about four cups.

6. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a heavy skillet and add the broccoli. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Cook, tossing and stirring the broccoli, about one minute. Add the chicken.

7. Add two cups of the sauce and stir gently to blend.

8. To the remaining sauce add the egg yolk. Reheat, stirring rapidly and constantly. Cook about 30 seconds and remove from the heat.

9. Cook the noodles in boiling water with salt to taste. Drain well. Toss with remaining butter, salt and pepper.

10. Arrange the noodles over the bottom of a baking dish (an oval dish measuring about 14 by 8 by 2 inches is good for this). Spoon the chicken and broccoli mixture neatly over the noodles.

11. Spoon the sauce over all and smooth it over. Sprinkle the cheese on top and place in the oven. Bake 15 minutes until piping hot throughout. If desired, run the dish under the broiler to obtain a richer glaze on top.

Yield: 6 servings.

PORK, POULTRY BETTER BUYS

OTTAWA (CP) — If you are doing some long-range menu-planning for the coming months, economists at Agriculture Canada have some predictions that might assist budget-minded shoppers.

"Focussing first on meat," they say in a news release, "beef will probably have a higher price tag due to a decline in quantity available on the market during the first half of this year, coupled with a depreciation in the Canadian dollar."

However, they say, pork supplies will take a turn for the better.

There will be more pork available due to lower feed grain prices.

The economists also predict that there will be a six- to eight-per-cent increase in supplies in the next six months "with a large percentage increase in the last part of this year."

Canadian lamb supplies will be slightly lower this year, so prices will probably remain high, they say.

"Lamb and mutton imports are also expected to increase in price this year," the release states. "This is due to a drop in numbers of sheep in both Australia and New Zealand."

The economists say that shoppers can plan more meals around poultry this year as supplies will be greater.

"Consumption is expected to increase by four per cent but this figure may further rise in response to special price sales."

"In addition, prices of broiler chickens will be lower because of lower feed costs."

The economists add that in anticipation of a large carryover of supplies, the Canadian Turkey Marketing Agency has reduced this year's target quota so turkey production will drop.

FEATHER CAKE

5 eggs
1 cup berry sugar
½ cup berry sugar
½ tsp. almond extract
1¼ cups cake flour
Pinch salt.

Prepare a 10-inch springform pan by rubbing unsalted butter over sides and bottom of pan; dust with flour; line with waxed paper; rub unsalted butter over waxed paper, sprinkle with flour. In large bowl, using wire whisk, beat eggs, sugar, and almond extract until very thick (batter is the right consistency when a small amount of egg mixture lifted on whisk, falls away in a thick ribbon on the mixture in bowl and retains its shape). Into separate bowl, sift flour and salt. Quickly fold dry ingredients into egg-sugar mixture. Do this with a light hand — do not beat or stir. Turn batter into prepared pan and bake in 350°F oven for approx. 30 minutes or until done.

Serve frosted with your favourite icing or serve with fresh fruits and berries (when in season), and sweetened whipped whipping cream.

Keeping Up with Local Politics

elizabeth forbes

Citizen knowledge, interest and action are the lifeblood of a municipality.

That's why the Greater Victoria Association of Women Electors (A.W.E.) emphasizes the need for an interested and informed women electorate.

Members of this association were reminded of that fact at a recent meeting, when Bessie Smith, second president of the organization, and one of the founders, spoke on its history.

"Right from the start we were determined not to become a pressure group," Mrs. Smith pointed out.

"Rather, our aim was — and still is — to educate and interest women in civic affairs and to urge people to vote.

"We also decided to study local problems and to express our ideas for solutions in well-prepared briefs."

Divisions were formed in Saanich, Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Colwood-Langford-Metchosin.

"Then we had to prove ourselves before municipal officers would recognize us."

The main reason for organizing the A.W.E. in 1962 was the "smallest vote on record" in municipal elections the year before, and especially the woeful percentage of women voters, so the group's first concern was to get people out to vote.

Different methods were tried.

The Oak Bay division placed reminders in with water bills and also concentrated on tenant electors in apartment blocks.

History was made when some members of the Victoria group were sworn in as deputy registrars, then manned a booth in the T. Eaton store to register voters.

Later the Saanich division did the same in Woolco and Shelbourne Plazas.

Next, the A.W.E. "set about informing the public of municipal candidates' views on local issues by means of a questionnaire."

"These were delivered personally to the candidates — and there always were one or two who didn't file until the last minute," Mrs. Smith remembered.

"Then they had to be collected, compiled, mimeographed and distributed sometimes within a week."

At first, those questionnaires filled a great need and many of the questions and answers found their way into the local newspapers.

"Finally radio and TV talk shows started and we felt there was little need for us to continue."

Next came the organizing of all-candidates meetings.

The Oak Bay division joined with the board of trade in this project; Victoria with the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Meetings were held in Saanich, too, and in Esquimalt.

Right from the beginning, attendance of observers at council meetings in the various municipalities has been an important part of the A.W.E. program.

In more recent years observers have also attended regional board and school board meetings.

These observers report to their divisions on matters discussed by councils and boards and how decisions are made.

They are accredited, well respected by council and board members, and they receive minutes, agendas and other pertinent material for study.

In the 15 years it has been active, the A.W.E. has produced a number of excellent studies, Mrs. Smith reminded her audience.

First there was the Vanstein library report.

"We met Miss Rose Vanstein of the University of British Columbia, who was making the study, and after looking thoroughly into the library question, sent in a supporting brief calling for branch libraries and enlarged accommodation at the main branch."

In its first year, the Saanich A.W.E. division was asked to make a report on needed recreational facilities in that municipality.

"This was so well researched that Saanich officials used much of the material themselves."

Later the Cordova Bay unit of the Saanich division was asked to submit its opinion on a Blenkinsop Valley report, "an area that has been much in the news recently."

Other well-researched studies have been done and briefs prepared on municipal parks, education, air pollution, retired citizens and municipal bylaws.

"By going over municipal bylaws we hoped to make people more aware of their existence," Mrs. Smith said.

Perhaps the most important studies, she suggested, were those on boarding homes and private hospitals produced by the Oak Bay division and on garbage and sewage disposal (in two separate reports) in which all active divisions took part.

"There were two dumps on Millstream Road which were burning continuously," she explained. "The pall of smoke was terrible . . . and it was largely through the initiative of the A.W.E., and particularly the Colwood-Langford-Metchosin group, that those dumps were closed down."

Sewage disposal "is another story," she said. "I'm sure (right now) we all look at that mess at Clover Point and wonder what's going on."

And what about the A.W.E. today?

"We were told in the beginning we wouldn't survive more than two years — yet we are still here.

"People definitely are taking more interest in community affairs but, unfortunately, opinions are biased in many instances instead of remaining objective.

"There are more women in public life, but there should be many, many more.

"Saanich recreational facilities are now a reality; branch libraries have come into being and soon the main library will have two floors in a new provincial government building.

"Air pollution is greatly improved but sewage disposal still remains an issue.

"The regional board is fast becoming another level of government and I hope you will keep a watchful eye, as you have been doing recently on progress in the cablevision question, the hospital crisis and shortage of acute-care beds.

"Sad but true, you still have the problem of people staying away from the polls in droves.

"Therefore the A.W.E. of Greater Victoria must remain active and alert.

"Not only must it continue to mount studies and prepare briefs, but it must continue to try to get across to the general public that the vote is important and that it should be used."

Postscript — Any woman interested in the work of the A.W.E. is eligible to join. The president is Mrs. E. L. Aubel and the first vice-president is Mrs. Chester P. Collins.

COSTLY CHOICE

GREENSBURG, La. (AP) — The police jurors of St. Helena Parish face a dilemma: drive holes in the concrete walls of the parish's old jail-courthouse or watch electric bills go through the roof.

The state fire marshal says the building, opened in the 1930s, must be properly ventilated for gas space heaters used to heat the offices and jail.

But because of the foot-thick concrete walls, $200 would have to be spent for each of the 22 holes necessary to accommodate six-inch exhaust pipes for the heaters.

The police jurors, which are equivalent to county council members, say the alternative is to buy electric space heaters. Those cost $65 each, but use more than their cost in electricity.

The jury has until March 1 to comply with the fire marshal's order.

dear abby

Wife's Rape 'Wasn't'

DEAR ABBY: Here are the facts: A hysterical woman called the police to tell them that she had just been raped by her husband.

She was told that it wasn't possible for a man to rape his own wife.

She then explained he had held a knife to her stomach and forced her to have sex with him. (I'm omitting a few details which are too horrible to put in a letter.)

The police then told her that, according to law, it was a "domestic matter" involving a man and his wife — not a case of rape.

The woman then said that they had never been married, they were just living together, so actually he WASN'T HER HUSBAND!

She was then told, "Common law marriage is recognized in this state, so as far as the law is concerned he IS your HUSBAND."

End of conversation.

My question: What kind of justice is this?

THE WOMAN

DEAR WOMAN: Apparently, this kind of "justice" is still "in." And for an excellent book that deals critically with the U.S. legal system, I highly recommend Injustice For All, by Anne Strick. It's published by Putnam and is well worth reading. (In Victoria, Towards and Understanding of Rape, published by the Rape Relief Centre, gives details of rape laws in B.C.).

DEAR ABBY: I met a gal in a bar. (I'll call her Kit.) She was really pretty, only 19, and she sure had a rough life and a lot of bum breaks. She even confessed she had hustled for a while, but she said that was in the past and now she had a respectable job as a waitress. Well, I started liking her a lot even though she seemed to have a lot of crummy friends.

One day Kit called me at work and told me she had been beaten up and robbed. She asked me to come to her place and bring her some money to pay her bills.

When I saw her, she sure was a mess. She said a guy she had never seen before used a passkey to get into her flat. He beat her up and took all her savings, which is about $300.

I took Kit to the hospital emergency room, and they fixed her up. (She told them she fell down some stairs!) I wanted to report it to the police, but Kit wouldn't let me. I gave her $200 to pay her bills.

Now I am wondering why she didn't want to report the robbery to the police. What do you think?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Maybe she didn't want to report the robbery because there wasn't any robbery.

DEAR ABBY: I have a slight problem. The company I work for has instructed me to answer the telephone as follows: "Thank you for calling the Blankety Blank Company; may I help you?"

It seems to me that the "Thank you for calling the Blankety Blank Company" should be at the end of the conversation. If I am wrong, please tell me. I keep getting cut off in the middle of my greeting because most people think they have a wrong number.

WORKING GIRL

DEAR GIRL: I think you're right. Tell your bosses that your callers are confused by the "reverse" English, that the first thing a cusomer wants to know when he calls is if he has the right number. If you want to thank him for calling the blankety blank company, do it when you say goodbye.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

on the future of six elementary schools in the Greater Victoria School District

Last fall the greater Victoria School Board received a major report on its 56 school buildings. The report proposed that some be modernized, that others be partially closed, and that some be closed completely.

The following elementary schools are now under intensive study by the School Board's Process Committee:

|---|---|
| Tolmie | Sundance |
| Burnside | South Park |
| Margaret Jenkins | Bank Street |

As part of the information-gathering, public hearings will be held as follows:

Tolmie Elementary, 556 Boleskine Rd.
Wednesday, March 1, at 8:00 p.m.

Burnside Elementary, 3130 Jutland Rd.
Monday, March 6, at 8:00 p.m.

Margaret Jenkins Elementary, 1824 Fairfield Rd.
Wednesday, March 8, at 8:00 p.m.

Sundance Elementary, 2549 Quadra St.
Tuesday, March 21, at 8:00 p.m.

South Park Elementary, 508 Douglas St.
Wednesday, March 22, at 8:00 p.m.

Bank Street Elementary, 1625 Bank St.
Wednesday, April 5, at 8:00 p.m.

Verbal and written presentations will be received at these hearings. No prior notification is required. Those making written submissions are asked to provide at least 15 copies.

For a free copy of Facilities Study '77 (101 pages) or a copy of the 20-page summary, phone the Community Relations Office of the Greater Victoria School Board, 592-1211, Local 214

MINT FLAVORED CABBAGE ROLLS

1 medium sized head of cabbage
1½-lbs. ground beef
1 large onion, chopped
1 egg
Salt and pepper
Garlic salt (optional)
6 slices bacon cut up (optional)
Flaked mint
1 can tomato paste
1 medium can tomatoes.

Remove core of cabbage. Put cabbage in hot water with ¼ cup vinegar and bring to a boil, about 5 to 10 minutes until leaves are limp. Put finished leaves on plate to cool. Next, fry onion and bacon in fry pan 'till slightly browned. Combine meat with bacon, onion, egg, salt and pepper, garlic salt, mint and mix thoroughly. Place quantity of meat mixture on each leaf and roll up. Place in a deep roasting pan. Combine tomato paste and tomatoes and approximately 2 cups of cabbage water. Chop and mix thoroughly. Pour this mixture over cabbage rolls. Cover and put in a 350 degree oven for approximately 1 to 1½ hours.

Here's an Apple-Nut Loaf

One for now, one for the freezer

APPLE WALNUT BREAD
(2 Loaves — One to Freeze)

2 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup brown sugar (packed)
1 cup oil
2 cups shredded unpeeled apple
1 tbsp. vanilla
¼ cup lemon juice (bottled)
3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp salt.
1 tsp. baking powder
2 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. cloves
1 cup chopped walnuts

Into your large beater bowl break the eggs, add the sugars and beat until light and creamy. Add oil and beat 1 minute. Quickly shred washed, unpeeled apples on ½" shredder and add at once and beat in with vanilla and lemon juice for 5 seconds. Lift beaters. Add flour, salt, baking soda, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves and stir in, then lower beaters and beat until smooth. Lift beaters. Stir in walnuts.

Line two standard loaf pans with buttered double wax paper. Turn in batter and smooth top. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Put a cookie sheet beneath loaves to dispel heat and prevent hard crust for this batter contains a lot of sugar and might burn.

Let rest on rack 5 minutes. Turn out on racks, peel off paper and let cool. use one for current meals. Freezer wrap and freeze second loaf.

Cheese Burger Pie

1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell
1 lb. lean ground beef
½ cup evaporated milk
½ cup catsup
⅓ cup finely chopped onion
⅓ cup finely chopped celery
⅓ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 tbsp. finely chopped green pepper
2 tbsp. finely chopped parsley
¼ tsp. crushed oregano
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1⅔ cups shredded cheddar cheese
1½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
⅛ tsp. dry mustard

Prepare pastry; line pie plate; set aside. In bowl, thoroughly combine (do it lightly — don't beat) ground beef, evaporated milk, catsup, onion, celery, bread crumbs, garlic, parsley, green pepper, oregano, salt, and pepper. Turn mixture into prepared pastry lined pie plate. Spread mixture evenly. Place pie plate on cookie sheet (to catch any spills). Bake in 350°F oven for 35 to 40 minutes. Meanwhile, in bowl toss together cheese, Worcestershire sauce and dry mustard. Sprinkle cheese mixture evenly over pie. Return to oven and continue cooking 10 minutes longer or until done. Makes 6 servings.

Wife Faces Trial

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Roxanne Gay, 27, who said she stabbed her football player husband to death while he slept because she was a battered wife defending herself, has been judged mentally competent to stand trial. Jury selection is to begin March 2. Blanda Gay, a defensive end with the Philadelphia Eagles football team, bled to death in December, 1976, after his throat was slashed.

'Offbeat' Families Can be Responsible

My son and daughter-in-law are a breed of this new generation that has "taken to the woods" and have gone back to the old and natural ways of living. They are vegetarians, but are careful to eat a good, balanced diet. My daughter-in-law is now pregnant and is going to be delivered by a midwife. She says that if she has a boy, she will not have the child circumcised. Also, she does not believe in giving children immunization shots against polio and other diseases.

If you disagree (as I do) with her theories, I would appreciate you answering this since she, too, reads your column.—Mrs. W.K.

Dear Mrs. K.:

I know a number of young couples who have embarked on a pattern of living that most people would think "offbeat." They demonstrate a great deal of resourcefulness and responsibility and give more than adequate justification for our faith in them.

A good, well-balanced vegetarian diet, especially when fortified with reasonable vitamins and minerals, provides excellent nourishment. Even during pregnancy, such a diet is adequate to maintain good health for the mother and the unborn child.

The trained midwife is serving an excellent paramedical function, as part of the health team. Many hospitals are using midwives to lessen the work load of doctors. However, most midwives work in co-operation with doctors who first establish the fact that no unusual condition exists or can be anticipated. It is for this reason that midwives are used particularly in cases where women have had one or more previous, uncomplicated deliveries.

I do believe that every pregnant woman should have the advantage of a complete medical and gynecological examination at the onset of pregnancy. Blood studies to rule out RH possibilities are especially important.

Your daughter-in-law would be extremely unwise to deprive herself of the genetic studies that are now available. These can materially reduce the possibility of hazards to the mother and the child.

Whether or not the baby is circumcised should not be a source of conflict between you and her. There is no universal rule that says that all boys must be circumcised, although there are undoubtedly known advantages to circumcision.

So far, it seems you are not getting much support from me in your disagreement with your children. Now, however, I must emphasize the massive injustice that I believe would be done to the newborn child if it is to be deprived of the advantages of vaccination and immunization against polio, tetanus, whooping cough, measles, diphtherja, mumps and rubella.

Immunization has saved the lives of thousands of children who might otherwise have succumbed to the ravages of infectious diseases.

Primitive living need not be associated with primitive thinking.

Free for The Asking

By HARRIET HART

Everybody can benefit from some of the tips offered in the eight-page leaflet Loading and Handling 35mm Cameras.

Did you know, for example, that although a color-slide film is best for slides and a color-negative film is best for prints, you can get prints and slides from either type of film?

And do you know what to do if you accidentally wind the leader of an unexposed film back into the magazine? The leaflet tells you how to retrieve the leader in four easy steps. It urges you to set the exposure counter every time you load the camera.

And what do you do, so that you won't forget if you are using a 20-exposure or a 36-exposure roll of film? One way is to tear the end flap from the film box and tape it to the camera or place it in the carrying case.

The leaflet also says that after your camera is properly loaded, you should wind off the equivalent of three exposures before you set the counter. The processing laboratory needs this much for handling the film. If you try to squeeze more than 20 or 36 exposures on a roll of film, the 'extras' may get lost in the processing.

Food and Nutrition

QUESTION:

Most nutrition columns are full of ideas on how to lose weight but give little information for people like myself who would like to gain weight. Do you have any suggestions?

ANSWER:

First establish with your physician that you are truly underweight and, if so, that the cause for your being underweight is not related to a physical condition such as a hormonal imbalance. Being slightly underweight can be an advantage, as such people have a lower probability of contracting certain diseases and apparently enjoy a longer life than those who are overweight.

You should evaluate your food intake to be certain you are obtaining sufficient calories and nutrients for your age. A copy of Canada Food Guide, available from your local Health Unit, will help you in this area. You may need to eat more often, that is five smaller meals instead of the usual three. Plan a definite eating schedule which should include breakfast and a substantial evening snack, and adhere to it.

You can increase the calories in your diet by eating more calorie-rich foods such as cream soups instead of broth soups. Extra calories as well as other nutrients can be supplied by adding skim milk powder to milk beverages and puddings. Nuts are a good snack food because of their high fat content, which makes them high in calories.

QUESTION:

Is it safe to use rusted or dented cans of food?

ANSWER:

Food from these cans is safe to use provided there is no sign of leakage.

QUESTION:

What is carrageenan and why is it added to chocolate milk?

ANSWER:

Carrageenan is a type of seaweed also known as Irish Moss. It is added to chocolate milk as a stabilizing agent, which means it keeps the particles of chocolate from settling to the bottom of the chocolate milk.

Diabetes on Steep Upswing and Potentially Lethal

Food for Thought

In a recent Gallup poll on the most feared diseases in North America, diabetes did not even make the top 10. Yet according to the U.S. National Commission on Diabetes, this disease and its complications is the third leading cause of death, claiming some 300,000 lives a year. It is also the second most common cause of blindness in North America.

What's more, the incidence of the disease seems to be increasing. It is now estimated that up to 10 million Americans may have diabetes, but as many as 40 per cent may be unaware that they have a potentially lethal disease.

Diabetes has been known since ancient times, and until very recently, it meant a quick and certain death. Today, thanks to the discovery of insulin and increasing understanding of treatment, most diabetics do not die of the disease itself, but of its long-term complications, especially from hardening of the arteries, coronary heart disease and kidney failure. To a great extent, preventing these complications depends upon the patient and his diligence in controlling the disease.

Normally, the body's chief fuel is glucose, a simple sugar that the body manufactures from the more complex starches and sugars in milks, fruits, vegetables and grains. But glucose can enter most cells only when it is combined with insulin, a hormone secreted by the pancreas. In diabetes, however, there is either a shortage of insulin or a condition that prevents insulin from entering the cells. Thus, most of the glucose that ordinarily would be used for energy remains in the blood stream. It piles up in the kidneys and eventually spills over into the urine.

Your blood glucose is at its lowest level in the morning, after going a night without eating. If several fasting blood glucose tests, which are taken before eating breakfast, show abnormally high levels of blood sugar, a diagnosis of diabetes usually is correct.

Actually, there are two types of diabetes. The more serious — and fortunately the more rare type — is generally known as juvenile-onset diabetes and is marked by the body's inability to produce insulin. It most commonly appears abruptly in about one in every 2,500 children or adolescents, although it can also appear in adults.

The victim shows weakness and rapid weight loss even though he is abnormally hungry. He urinates frequently, as the body tries to get rid of the excess sugar, and is constantly thirsty, as he tries to replace the excessive water loss.

A careful balance of insulin injections, diet and exercise, carried out under a physician's supervision, is vital and must be continued for life. And if the disease is properly controlled, these diabetics will be able to live productive and essentially normal lives.

The more common type of diabetes appears in middle-age and is usually less severe. Indeed, adult-onset diabetics often show no symptoms and the disease is detected only through the blood and urine tests of a routine physical examination. When symptoms do appear, they include loss of weight, fatigue, frequent urination, increased thirst and a dry mouth. Since diabetes causes deterioration of the blood vessels, other possible symptoms are pain, numbness or tingling in the feet or legs, changes in vision as the disease affects blood vessels in the eyes and slow healing of superficial wounds.

We still do not know the basic cause of diabetes. Although it runs in families, we cannot predict with certainty who will get it. Also, a number of factors may trigger diabetes. A disease of the pancreas may destroy or limit its ability to produce insulin. Infection may play a role, especially in juvenile diabetes. A malfunction of the pituitary gland and obesity both increase the cells' resistance to insulin. In fact, over 80 per cent of adult-onset diabetics are markedly overweight.

Diet may also be a factor in causing diabetes. A number of studies have shown that the incidence of diabetes increases in population groups with high intake of sugar. Whether or not this is a cause-and-effect relationship is not clear because dietary changes usually are multifaceted, and increased sugar consumption often is accompanied by increased fat and calorie intake and decreased exercise. Still, the rate of diabetes is generally low in societies where consumption of complex carbohydrates, such as grains, fruits and vegetables, is high, and in societies where obesity is rare.

Today, diet, exercise and insulin administration when necessary are the keystones of diabetic therapy. For overweight adult-onset diabetics, the most important factor is weight reduction by restricting calories and increasing exercise, which improves circulation and reduces the damage to blood vessels. As to diet itself, it now appears that diabetics can get along very well with a liberal amount of starch, so today's emphasis is on restricting the intake of sugar, fats and calories.

A long, active life with diabetes is becoming increasingly common. Indeed, it is quite possible that a diabetic with no added complications who gets plenty of rest and exercise, keeps his weight down, does not drink or smoke and eats a well-balanced diet low in sugar, calories and fat meats and dairy products, may have a better life expectancy than his neighbor without diabetes who does none of these things.

Millionaire in Error

people

NEW YORK — A news aide of New York City's mayor became a bank-error instant multimillionaire last weekend. And when he tried to give back the mistaken $3.35 million, he was told he would have to stand at the end of the line.

Mark Marchese, whose city salary is $32,900 a year, would have none of that. He strode to the door of the Forest Hills branch of Drydock Savings Bank, savoring the nine-figure number in his bank book. The bank officer then realized that perhaps rules could bend and ushered Marchese directly to a teller to get things straightened out.

NEW YORK — Film writer and playwright Wyatt Cooper has left an estate estimated at $50,000 to his widow, Gloria Vanderbilt Cooper, known during the 1930s as the "poor little rich girl." Cooper was the third husband of the former Gloria Vanderbilt.

TORONTO — Singer Gordon Lightfoot, 39, has been remanded to Aug. 16 for trial on a charge of driving with a blood-alcohol content of more than the legal limit of 0.08 per cent.

LOS ANGELES — Kathleen Lockhart, mother of actress June Lockhart, and herself a veteran of more than five decades on the stage and screen, has died following a lengthy illness. She was 84.

NEW YORK — The New York Post quotes Margaret Trudeau as saying she is hesitating about accepting "a dream role" as lead in a movie based on the best-seller Ragtime because it would involve nude and lesbian scenes.

"I've nursed three babies—how could I be voluptuous and lovely?" The Post quotes her as saying in an interview with artist Andy Warhol.

SERMON NETS ASSAULT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A churchgoer who decided his pastor preached too much forgiveness was found guilty Wednesday of assaulting the clergyman.

Cornelius Abraham Wiens, 62, of Vancouver, was given a discharge on the condition that he stay away from Lyle Funk, of the Mennonite Brethern Church, and the church.

Funk told the provincial court trial that Wiens approached him at church Dec. 18, 1977, just before the service and "pushed a gun or facsimile thereof to my midriff."

He said Wiens asked him "what would you do if I pulled a gun on you?" and poked him with the gun which the clergyman could not be sure was a toy.

Funk said he replied, "You wouldn't do a silly thing like that 'would you?'" and ushered Wiens from the building.

Wiens, who said his grandfather was one of the founders of the church, had been a member since 1939 but said "I was angry because he (Funk) doesn't preach the way he should."

Wiens said there was too much emphasis on forgiveness in the sermons.

Asked why he produced the gun, Wiens told the court that perhaps "I wanted to see what he was made of."

"As a Christian he should be ready to die at a moment's notice."

Love, at Second Sight

DONCASTER, England (CP) — A Yorkshire salesman fell in love as he lay in hospital on the verge of death, for the girl of his dreams sat by his bed as he came out of a coma.

She talked quietly, hoping to bring back his memory which had been wiped out in a car crash. And, as he recovered, his love for the girl grew stronger.

What John Butler, 20, of Bentley, near Doncaster, Yorkshire, didn't know was that it was love at second sight. The girl was his fiancee — 19-year-old Maureen Flanagan of Scawthorpe, Doncaster, — before he lost his memory in the accident.

Their wedding had to be postponed. Now they are planning to be married in May.

Butler was taken to hospital with severe head injuries and loss of memory after being knocked down by a car last October. He was unconscious for two weeks and was twice given the last rites when doctors gave up hope for his recovery. When he regained consciousness, he could remember nothing of what had happened.

But he was aware of the girl who sat beside him every night and held his hand for two hours or more.

"I didn't know her," John said, "but she was so very kind and attractive I fell in love. Even now I don't remember much about our former association. It was quite a surprise to find I had fallen in love with my fiancee a second time."

is convenience

If it doesn't fit, it's the wrong color, or you get two of them as gifts—What do you do? Drive all over creation for a refund or an exchange?

Not if you've shopped right here in Victoria.

Here, you are doing business with retailers who depend on you as a customer and are eager for repeat business from you.

The total value of any new purchase is measured in more than just the listed price.

You must also be sure that should you need further information or should you have some problem, that the salesman or businessman is available for fast action—whether for warranty work or even a friendly refund.

And the most convenient thing about shopping at home is that you can check out information on products in the comfort of your own home — Through the pages of your two Victoria Daily Newspapers.

The advertisements, inserted by businesses, large and small, keep you informed of the latest market prices, the opening of new stores, special offers, credit terms, hours of operation, parking facilities etcetera.

The progressive Victoria retailers who advertise their goods and services in your daily newspaper not only offer competitive prices and good selection but also back up their sales with on-the-spot availability should you need more information, parts or servicing, or—dare we say it, should you have any complaints to make.

Cape Horn Assault, by Canoe

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A 19-foot canoe is bearing two French Canadians on an adventure to match what they call their new boat, "The Spirit of Man."

After traveling 2,200 miles by sea since last summer, Denis Bilodeau and Jerry LaChapelle said they will today resume an expedition from Vancouver around the Western Hemisphere.

They hope to be the first to round Cape Horn by canoe. Three Germans apparently drowned recently in a similar try.

The two former gold miners saved $8,000 to buy and equip a canoe. Bilodeau, 22, an ex-journalist from Quebec, worked in mines at Yellowknife, N.W.T., before joining LaChapelle, now 34.

Their first boat rusted and, after reaching Newport Beach south of Los Angeles, the pair waited five months before they were able to get another canoe.

An executive of a canoe-making firm presented them with the new wooden canoe equipped with an outboard engine. Their range before refueling is 300 miles.

"Everybody in Vancouver said we were crazy," said LaChapelle.

"Everywhere we go, people say rounding Cape Horn is impossible," Bilodeau added. "But, now, I think we're beginning to convince people that we'll make it."

ELECTION POPULAR

BOGOTA, (AP) — Officials estimate that more than 50,000 persons have registered as candidates in next Sunday's Colombia national and local elections.

The officials said there are least 20 candidates for each of the 311 seats in congress and at least six for each of the other 9,067 seats councils to be filled.

Manures: Pros and Cons

Animal manures are applied to garden soils primarily to increase the humus content, and indirectly to provide the right conditions for the multiplication of the populations of soil micro-organisms, therefore the nutrient content of the manures is not of first importance.

In the small vegetable plots of average gardens fresh animal manures are applied in the fall, leaving them on the surface over winter. The nutrients are then dispersed into the soil and the humus content remains for mixing with the top soil before sowing or planting.

Available animal manures include horse or stable manure, cow or barnyard manure, and the bird manures from ducks, chickens, and turkeys.

Fresh manures are not applied to garden soils in spring unless the plot is to be vacant until fall, nor is it applied to areas containing growing plants.

For spring applications we use old manure, 2 years or older, which has lost the high nutrient content that could be harmful to seeds and the roots of young plants.

Cow and horse manures, separate or mixed, are best for the home garden. Cow manure has the greatest bulk therefore supplies more humus to the soil for a given quantity.

Either of these manures in the fresh state can be added to the compost heap to assist in rotting down vegetable wastes and adding nutrients.

Gardners in general seem wary of investing in horse or cow manures which contain a percentage of bedding materials.

Bedding material from cow barns is usually sawdust or wood shavings, which in their natural state depress the nitrogen when added to the soil. Stable manure bedding material is generally peat moss which is a soil acidifier.

When mixed with manures these bedding materials have been thoroughly soaked with urine which is high in nitrogen, therefore are in a state that will decompose rapidly, just as the discarded vegetation in a compost heap breaks down when a nitrogen fertilizer is added.

Bird manures are quite different in composition. Birds do not produce liquid urine, the components being absorbed into the manures, making them extremely high in nitrogen.

This difference has earned them the term "hot" manures, not alluding to temperature but because they "burn" plant foliage and roots and withdraw the natural moisture from seeds before they can germinate.

A lot of complaints over the last few years of poor seed germination and loss of young seedlings and transplants have come from gardeners who applied one of the bird manures to the soil in spring.

The bird manures are best used as an activator for the heaps of discarded plant wastes. Care must be exercised in the amount used, too much retarding decomposition, raising acidity to a dangerous level, and leaving a strong odor of vinegar.

When this happens the heap has to be torn apart and rebuilt with the addition of a large quantity of fresh plant discards. No nitrogenous fertilizer is added as an activator to heaps containing bird manures.

Before applying to the compost heap, the bird manures should be throughly dried, rolled or hammered into a powder, and added as a light dusting to alternate layers of material, the other layers receiving a light dusting of lime.

Any of these manures can be placed in a sack and immersed in water to make a liquid which is diluted with plain water to the color of weak tea and used as a mild tonic to growing plants in summer.

Once we understand the difference between animal manures we are better able to invest our dollars wisely in those which will give the greatest benefits to the garden soil and to the plants we are growing.

Biologists Ask Bawlf to Save Waterton Park

If the B.C. government permits the logging of the Akamina-Kishinena valley in southeastern B.C. it will spoil two unique national parks, says a brief submitted to Recreation and Conservation Sam Bawlf.

In the brief, the B.C. chapter of the Canadian Society of Environmental Biologists say the area is an essential natural wilderness buffer zone to Waterton Lakes National Park in Alberta and Glacier National Park in Montana.

"Any developments which are instigated in this area will have a profound effect on the wildlife, the unique vegetation and the total integrity of Waterton and Glacier Parks," it states.

The CSEB is a national organization of more than 550 fisheries, wildlife, environmental and research biologists and technicians who are professionally engaged in work related to Canada's natural resources.

The area in question was dedicated by the provincial government in 1956 as a land reserve for the use, recreation and enjoyment of the public.

But the Forest Service now wants to log the area and is awaiting cabinet approval to start removing the timber.

The logging proposal is of such concern to Parks Canada that federal Northern Development Minister Hugh Faulkner has sent letters to Bawlf and Forests Minister Tom Waterland urging them to save the wilderness valley from logging.

The CSEB brief states that the Akamina-Kishinena area and adjoining national parks form a natural and rare environmental unit.

It recalls that the natural integrity of this collective area has been recognized by recreational planners and scientists for many years. In 1917 it was first proposed as a national park. It was again proposed as a national park in the early 1930's.

Then in 1970 and again in 1975 it was proposed as an International Biological program ecological reserve.

"The great importance of the Akamina-Kishinena area to the people of B.C., to all of Canada, and to the rest of the world, is indicated by the fact that Glacier National Park has been designated as part of the International Man in the Biosphere Program of the United Nations Education Social Cultural Organization." it says.

COURTNEY CLOSING

Courtney Street between Government and Wharf will be closed Tuesday from 6.30 to 10 p.m. because of construction work.

Victoria police also said that Fisgard, between Government and Store, will be blocked to vehicular traffic on Sunday, March 5, to make room for the Chinese New Year festivities.

Pesticide Control Act Defended

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the attorney-general's department Wednesday rejected the claims of a Vancouver lawyer who says British Columbia's pesticide control legislation is virtually unworkable.

Justis Raynier, a member of the environmental law section of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association was asked by the branch to make a study of the B.C. Pesticide Control Act passed Sept. 1.

Raynier said Tuesday those who drafted the legislation failed to consider precedents such as the Ontario Pesticide Control Act and the B.C. act is so poorly worded it is virtually useless.

Raynier said there is no definition of the term 'environment' in the B.C. act and the term 'body of water' does not include ground water.

"That's a fatal mistake because a lot of pesticides have their effect through ground water," he said.

He also pointed out that the term 'adverse effect' is defined as an effect that results in damage to man or the environment but this definition means that the damage has to be done before legal action can be taken.

Raynier said it would have been better to include the term "is likely to result in damage" as has been done in the Ontario act.

Raynier, in a long list of alleged shortcomings in the act, says it allows no provisions for public hearings or public inquiries.

He said the B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association did not realize until late in the procedure that the new pesticide control act was being drawn up.

Allan Roger, of the legislation drafting arm of the attorney-general's department, said Raynier is "off-base" in many of his criticisms. He pointed out that the best of poorly drafted legislation comes only when the regulations are applied and they have not yet been tested.

He said the "likelihood" of a pesticide causing damage is covered in Section 10 of the act.

Roger said he could not recall if the Ontario act was studied but he knew for sure "that several other jurisdictions" including Manitoba and Saskatchewan were examined.

Roger said Raynier is "probably right" that the B.C. act doesn't include provisions for public hearings and inquiries, but he said ground water is covered in the act because the offence involves application of a pesticide to water or land and seepage into ground water occurs later.

He said the dictionary definition of environment was relied on for the B.C. act because the government wished it to be as broad as possible—"that was deliberately good drafting."

Palsy Assoc. Gets $150,000

The provincial government has authorized a grant of $150,000 to the Cerebral Palsy Association of B.C., Health Minister Bob McClelland said Wednesday.

He said the funds will be used for the provision of services to children with neurological disorders.

DIRTY WATER CRITICISM DOESN'T FIT VICTORIA

An American health research official's claim that Canadian drinking water is less pure than U.S. water doesn't apply to Victoria's water supply.

Water commissioner Ron Upward said water in the Greater Victoria watershed is pure and natural because it is protected from pollutants.

"It is satisfactory for a residential town," he said. "It is true there are natural growths in the water, but these have always existed.

Upward was commenting on statements by Dr. Martin Goldfield, director of research for the New Jersey State health department.

He said the public has been lulled into a false sense of security about the water in which they drink, bathe and swim.

"If you think the water contamination problem is bad in the U.S., let me tell you it's worse in Canada."

But Upward said many U.S. town require that water meets the requirements of certain industries and filtration plants have been installed to remove natural growths and chemicals.

In the B.C. interior the situation is different, he said.

There, the water supply of some communities faces increasing contamination and pollution from pulp mills and mining.

Goldfield said there are innumerable viruses in water along with parasites, poisons produced through industrial waste, chemical pollutants and garbage.

Goldfield blames callous attitudes towards waste disposal coupled with local government failures to allocate enough money to ensure a better filtration system for water supplies for the problem.

Public Being Misled On Farms — Hewitt

Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt said Wednesday that the head of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture is misleading the public in the controversy over the province's new farm income assurance program.

Federation head Pat Hibbert said Tuesday the provincial government is abandoning support for farmers under the pretense of saving taxpayers' money.

Hibbert said the recently-announced program leads him to believe Hewitt wants farmers to sell their land.

Hewitt said Hibbert's comments are misleading and that he is doing a disservice to the farmers. The program, the minister said, is the best in the country, even in its modified form.

The program, which covers 10 commodities, is based on insurance principles, and gives farmers 75 per cent of their production costs when these are not received from the market place.

Hewitt has said the program will not include any provision for return on investment on land, and the limit for any one claim will be $15,000.

Hibbert said Hewitt "is saying that for the purposes of farm income assurance, the time and labor of a farmer in managing his operation is valueless, and if he wants a return for his investment in land he should sell it."

The federation leader said, however, the government has forgotten there is no market for farmland because farmland is frozen and because conditions in the industry are such that farms are only capable of yielding a product at costs consistently higher than market returns.

Hewitt said the $15,000 ceiling could be raised following discussions with the federation next month. Until then, he said his ministry is preparing to tour the province to explain the new program.

YOUTH EXCHANGE

Applications for participation in the Canada World Youth program are being accepted now at Canada Manpower, school, colleges and the capital region office.

The international youth exchange project is open to people 17 to 20 and involves community volunteer work within Canada for about half the time and similar projects in the exchange country for the other half.

The exchange countries are in Central and South America, Africa and Asia.

About 300 young people, 31 from B.C. and the Yukon, will be accepted for the program.

Costs of food, lodging and transportation, plus $1 a day pocket money, are paid to participants by Canada World Youth.

Gov't 'Secrecy' Raked

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — The veil of secrecy around British Columbia's preparations for the construction of the Alaska Highway pipeline has convinced municipal leaders in northeast B.C. they are being deliberately left out of the planning process.

"They're not calling on our expertise at all," says Joanne Mucci, a Fort. St. John alderman who also serves on the board of the Peace River-Liard regional district. "They're leaving us out in left field, in the dark.

"We don't really know what's happening in Ottawa, we don't know what's happening in the province. They're taking our resources and we're going to have to clean up the mess."

"They're great centralists in Victoria," agrees Andrew Shuck, mayor of Fort Nelson. "The fact that they haven't bothered to consult with us at all indicates they have no intention of dealing with us at all."

Wally Braul, head planner for the regional district, says requests for information on what the nature of the development is to be are met with refusal.

"Victoria is negotiating on our behalf but we don't know what they're basing their conditions on."

The province's initial demands for conditions it wants imposed on contractors were contained in a telex sent to the federal government last Aug. 31.

Dan Campbell, head of the province's intergovernmental affairs department and the man responsible for negotiating the B.C. deal with Ottawa, says the telex was never made public because it is a communication between governments.

Although Campbell told reporters at a recent Whitehorse news conference that the pipeline "really doesn't do anything for us" and the province "doesn't wish to bear any costs," he said the province's general attitude is one that "impact of the pipeline should be meshed in with the possibilities of using it for catalysts for other development."

Victoria has 40 departments working on the project, Shuck said.

He and Braul say their areas need information now on possible developments associated from the pipeline to protect the region from serious dislocations.

Gold Bounty to Taiwan Defectors

HONG KONG (AP) — China is advertising bounties of up to $4 million in gold to Taiwanese military defectors who bring their jet fighters and warships with them, communist newspapers in Hong Kong reported today.

The offer duplicates a policy already followed by the nationalist government on Taiwan which offers rewards to military defectors from the mainland who bring along information or samples from the communist arsenal. Last July, a pilot got $800,000 in gold when he flew his Soviet-built MiG-19 fighter to Taiwan along with military information.

The communist offers were announced Wednesday by the Chinese army headquarters in Fukien province, across the Taiwan Strait from Taiwan, local newspapers reported.

The reports gave detailed information on navigational courses for pilots and ship captains, the radio frequency the defectors should use and what they should do when they encounter Chinese planes and ships.

Details of airports in Fukien and two other provinces which have been kept secret in the past also were disclosed.

The highest reward—20,000 taels of gold worth $4 million—was offered for a destroyer. Other ship rewards include $3 million for an escort destroyer, $2 million for a mine-sweeper, frigate or submarine, $600,000 to $800,000 for a landing craft or repair ship and $24,000 for a freighter, tanker or tugboat.

The top price for a plane is $1.4 million for an F-5E, the advanced fighter President Carter wants to sell to Egypt. Other aircraft rewards include $1.2 million for an F-5A, RE-104G or F-104, $1 million for an F-100, $360,000 for a T-33, $200,000 for a C-46, and $14,000 for a C-47.

The reports said the army command also guaranteed the lives of defectors.

"They will not be beaten. Their private property will not be confiscated. Medical treatment will be provided for those wounded or injured. Passage will be paid for those who want to go home," the command announcement said.

CONVAIR REPLACES 737

QUESNEL (CP) — Pacific Western Airlines said Wednesday it has replaced the Boeing 737 jet, which crashed recently at Cranbrook, killing 42, with a Convair turboprop on some western routes.

Al Corbett, the airline's west regional assistant vice-president, said that Seattle, and the B.C. communities of Quesnel, Kamloops, Williams Lake, and Victoria will be serviced by the Convair.

Corbett said that although there is a two-year waiting list for the $8 million 737s.

PLASTIC CARBURETOR developed by Doug Blakeway, left, is examined by him and Bill Punter in the North Vancouver factory which is producing them. Already in use on motorcycles, the Selachii carb which has no floatbowl, may later be used on cars.

New Regulations Aid Canada Talent

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Council announced new "working regulations" Wednesday to encourage organizations it helps to finance to make maximum use of Canadian talent.

The council also said it will restrict its grants to individuals in future to those who are Canadian citizens, with rare exceptions.

But it said it will continue to draw on the advice and experience of citizens of other countries in making up its juries and assessors of artistic endeavors.

For persons newly arrived in Canada, the council will restrict its arts grants to one during the first three years of residency under landed immigrant status. After that, an immigrant will be ineligible for Canada Council support unless he or she applies for citizenship.

The new policies were adopted by the council as a statement of requirements for arts grants, grants under the Explorations program for novel new projects, purchases by the council's art bank and for engaging jurors and assessors of artistic endeavors assisted by the council.

"The council will encourage the organizations which it funds to make use of qualified Canadians to the maximum extent possible under federal and provincial law," the so-called working regulations said.

"There will be no general rule covering citizenship status of the creators of works performed by organizations applying for grants," they added. This means the works of all the great composers and playwrights of the past can continue to be performed.

But in the case of symphony orchestras, at least one of every 10 compositions played must be by a Canadian composer, at least one out of every five guest soloists must be a Canadian, and all choirs receiving grants from the council must perform at least one work a season by a Canadian composer.

"For the purposes of this rule," the regulations said, "a Canadian composer or a Canadian soloist is defined as a Canadian citizen or a person who has held landed immigrant status for at least 12 months."

New arrivals in Canada must spend a period of three years as landed immigrants before applying for Canadiancitizenship. During this period, the council said an individual may receive only one grant.

However, the council said it will waive this rule in the case of an artist who has "has made an exceptional contribution to the arts in Canada."

SUN TO APPEAL

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun Publishing Co. Ltd. filed notice Tuesday it will appeal a Jan. 26 British Columbia Supreme Court decision that found a Vancouver Sun editorial had libelled Simma Holt, Liberal member of Parliament for Vancouver Kingsway.

The notice of appeal, filed in the B.C. Court of Appeal, claimed that the editorial was based on fair comment.

Justice F. Craig Munroe found Mrs. Holt was libelled in an April 12, 1977, editorial.

Justice Munroe ruled that the editorial suggested to Mrs. Holt's discredit that she had disregarded and neglected her official duties when she agreed to take a message from one prisoner to another while on a visit of a California prison.

Mrs. Holt was awarded $2,000 and costs in the action.

Megavitamins Urged For Rehabilitation

EDMONTON (CP) — At least half of Canada's prison inmates would not be behind bars if they ate large doses of vitamins, the director of the Canadian Schizophrenic Foundation said Wednesday.

John Kahan said a probation officer in the Ohio State correctional department recently ended a four-year study involving inmates of a state prison.

Kahan said none of the 100 prisoners who received megavitamin therapy — large doses of vitamins and a super-nutrition diet — whose progress she followed for four years, returned to prison after they were released.

Normally, 70 per cent of the inmates from that institution returned to prison after release.

MAIR PLANS TO PLUG TAX REBATE LOOPHOLE

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair has ordered an investigation into income tax rebaters who have apparently found a way around legislation aimed at curbing their activities.

"I'm not surprised they were looking for loopholes, and I'm not surprised they found one," Mair said.

The B.C. Consumer Protection Act had been amended to limit to 15 per cent of the rebate, the amount tax operators could charge.

But some operators now will not purchase rebates from customers unless they first go to another company which also charged a fee.

Some operators have been demanding a 25 per cent deposit as a guarantee against false returns and there are indication the operators haven't been making much of an effort to track down the customer to refund the deposit.

Mair said his ministry will probably find a way to block this loophole and then income tax rebate purchasers will find another.

The problem won't be solved until it's stopped at the source — the federal government, the minister said.

Mair said the government should speed up its returns and not allow anyone but the person filing the tax return to receive the rebate.

NHA Provisions Eased

QUEBEC (CP) — Federal Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet announced revisions to the National Housing Act Monday designed to sell the country's excess iventory of 45,000 housing units.

Ouellet told the 35th annual convention of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada (HUDAC) builders could now switch from the ownership plan to the rental plan or vice versa.

HUDAC president Eric Bergman said in a later interview the ability to switch from the Assisted Rental Plan (ARP) "will help out quite a bit in Toronto where there are a bunch of AHOP (Assisted Home Ownership Plan) condominiums vacant."

Builders who can't find buyers for these units may well be able to find tenants.

Owners of new homes benefiting from AHOP loans to pay interest may now transfer this benefit to a buyer, Ouellet told the convention.

And, effective July 1, all builders of units intended for sale will have to be registered with a provincial warranty plan to get NHA insurance or financial aid.

The warranty plans provide the buyer with insurance against construction defects and builder bankruptcy.

Builders have only been forced to register with provincial warranty plans in Quebec and Ontario.

Barrelful of Problems

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — The local Seagram Distillery Ltd. plant, closed Sept. 5, 1975, solved its problem of what to do with 50,000 barrels by selling them to the public.

But the sales, which had been proceeding quietly since mid-November, 1977, sparked a stampede several weeks ago.

One explanation for the current mob scenes outside the plant could be that many people feel there is still traces of whiskey in the barrels. Some people in the huge lineup Wednesday said that adding water to the 45-gallon oak barrels would release a quart of whiskey from the wood.

Plant manager Robert Johnston said, however, adding water will produce only tasty water.

"An excise officer has checked them over. As far as we're concerned, they're empty."

Johnston said that because of the sudden increase in sales, "we had to stop selling them every day; we decided we'd only sell them on Wednesdays."

"But after today, we'll have to think again. There's a monumental traffic jam around the plant."

Johnston said the barrels, selling for $5 for older barrels and $10 for newer ones, mostly are being bought by amateur winemakers and people who want to use the barrels as planters.

Deportation Appeal By Taiwan Minister

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rev. Peter Wang, who is seeking political asylum in Canada, has been marked by the agents of the Kuomingtung government for harassment, imprisonment or worse if returned to Taiwan, an immigration appeal board has been told.

"The very fact that he (Wang) has had some harassment and physical violence is an indication he has been marked by the garrison command," said psychiatry professor Dr. Tsung-yi Lin of the University of British Columbia, appearing as a specialist on the Taiwanese human rights movement.

He said the garrison command is equivalent to the Soviet KGB. He said common techniques used by KMT agents include threats, intimidation, violence and even staged, mysterious disappearances of dissenters.

Lin, president of the World Federation of Mental Health, has been active in the human rights movement since he left Taiwan in 1965 to join the World Health Organization.

He testified that the Taiwanese Presbyterian Church, founded by Canadian and British Presbyterian missionaries in the late 1800s, has been a chief advocate of democratic rights for the Taiwanese.

Wang—an ordained Taiwanese Presbyterian minister and student at the Northwest Baptist College here—told the board Monday he started being harassed by the KMT in 1972 when he openly supported a national statement by the general assembly of the church urging self-determination for the Taiwanese people.

He also testified he was savagely beaten in Taipei by four KMT agents while his uncle mysteriously disappeared when held for questioning by the KMT.

Wang, 34, who has been pastor at the Vancouver Formosan Christian Church since he arrived in Canada two years ago, was ordered detained and deported last September by the Canadian immigration department as his Taiwanese passport had expired. He has been free on conditional release while awaiting the decision on his claim to refugee status.

His wife, Mona, 33, and son Thomas, 6, are also included in the deportation order. Their baby, Victor, is not cited as he is a Canadian citizen; born in Vancouver seven months ago.

Lawyer Ray Cantillon, representing Wang, submitted that Wang has a valid claim to refugee status.

The board reserved decision.

KOOTENAYS ROW GROWS

GRAND FORKS (CP) — The 50 striking Trail school board employees will be joined by 32 more from this West Kootenay community, Fred Pyke, area negotiator for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said Wednesday night.

Pyke said in an interview the strike will spread because West Kootenay CUPE locals are receiving the same contract offers from area school boards.

Failed Vasectomy Lawsuits

MONTREAL (CP) — Six Montreal policemen were awarded a total of $4,000 in a Superior Court damage suit against a physician whose failed vasectomies caused them multiple complaints and inconveniences.

They were part of a group of 24 policemen who took legal action against Dr. Aime Pelletier. Ten cases were suspended by agreement between the parties, while another seven decided to await the outcome of the current cases. The 24th man withdrew his action.

The six sought total damages of $85,000, which Justice Maurice Lagace described as "grossly exaggerated." The men claimed the doctor used an ineffective procedure carried out without normal concern for antiseptic conditions.

Justice Lagace concluded two men were entitled to damages of $1,000 each and the other four to $500 each.

The awards were based on the age of the plaintiffs, their period of temporary disability, their right to the protection of the integrity of their bodies, the prejudice to their rights to complete enjoyment of conjugal life, and inconveniences.

Hoax Letters Again

EDMONTON (CP) — A hoax letter that tells the recipient he has been selected to look after a Pakistani family is back in city mails again.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cesario received one such letter Tuesday sent by the fictitious Canadian Society for Commonwealth Relations. Similar letters made the rounds here about one and one-half years ago.

The mimeographed letter gives the same address as the British Consulate-General in the city.

"I think somebody with a perverted mind must think it's a joke," said a consulate official.

The official said several persons, including herself, received similar letters in 1976 and that there was a spate of the letters in Red Deer.

"It was a pretty organized thing (in 1976)," she said. "It wasn't just one cuckoo."

Union Appeals

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The United Transportation Union has asked for a review of a British Columbia Labor Relations Board decision giving B.C. Railway employees demerits and docking their pay for booking off sick, union spokesman Glen Bowles said Tuesday.

Bowles said the board decision arose from B.C. Rail disciplinary actions after trainmen and conductors booked off sick last fall in protest over delays in contract talks.

Mac Norris, vice-president of B.C. Railway, said the union is the last of seven unions involved in contract talks with the railway.

1 out of 65 on Gov't Payroll

By KEN POLE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — One out of every 65 Canadians will be directly on the federal public service payroll in 1978-79, according to Treasury Board figures unveiled Wednesday.

This is based on the government's own projection that there will be 356,943 so-called "man-years" in the next fiscal year, which begins April 1, against a national population estimated at 23.5 million.

Despite the magnitude of the figures, however, the Treasury Board is quick to point out that the increase is only about sixtenths of one per cent, the second year in a row that public service growth has been held down to what many civil servants consider is the bare minimum.

The 1978-79 figure represents an increase of slightly more than 2,000 man years over the 1977-78 total of 354,902.

The increase in departments and agencies under Treasury Board jurisdiction is 1,848, bringing the total there to 325,120 — a marginal jump of .57 per cent. The increase in agencies not under the board's control, such as the CBC and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., is 197 for a total of 31,823, an increase of .2 per cent.

It is "dramatically lower" than the projected 2.4 per-cent growth in the general Canadian labor force, the board said. Public service increases since 1976-77 have been approximately 1.3, 0.6 and 0.6 per cent while comparable growth in the labor force as a whole has been 1.9, 2.5 and 2.4 per cent.

In the departments and agencies under Treasury Board jurisdiction, increases in the RCMP, the Post Office and the Correctional service alone is projected at 1,858 man-years. This is actually more than the over-all increase, but is offset by staff reductions in other areas.

In all, 18 staff reductions are planned, the largest being in the veterans' affairs department, where 1,276 man-years out of 8,402 will be chopped because of a transfer in jurisdiction of veterans' hospitals to the provinces. A reduction of 438 in Public Service Commission staff, bringing it down to 3,409, results from a transfer of language training staff to the defence department.

The total public service wages and salaries that come under direct Treasury Board scrutiny are about $5.18 billion in 1978-79, an increase of about 12 per cent over the current year's total of $4.61 billion. The increase is artificially high because the total provides flexibility for retroactive contracts that still are being negotiated.

The total does not include wages and salaries of nearly 80,000 Canadian Forces personnel totalling about $1.8 billion.

Armed Forces Get More for Armament

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence department spending is expected to rise to about $4.1 billion in 1978-79 — up from $3.8 billion — as the Canadian Forces move ahead with tank, patrol plane and armored vehicle purchases.

But spending estimates tabled in the Commons Wednesday do not reflect the anticipated $2.3 billion cost of new fighter airplanes.

They'll show up on the government books later, after the government decides which planes it wants to buy.

Unlike most government departments, defence has been granted relief from spending restraint in order to keep its equipment up to date.

In 1976-77, the government set up a special $470 million fund for equipment and other purchases that is allowed to grow for five years by 12 per cent a year, plus annual percentage increases in inflation. It has been growing by about $100 million a year.

Money from that fund is being used to buy the patrol planes and tanks, and will be used in the future for new ships and fighter planes.

Of increases tabbed for 1978-79, a total of $101 million will go to buy equipment, another $89.4 million will be spent for higher maintenance costs, another $84.5 million will be used for an increase in the number of military workers and an additional $51.4 million has been earmarked for increased civilian personnel costs.

The department has been allowed to increase the number of employees on payroll by 438 so-called man years. That can mean anything from 438 men working for one year to, say, 219 men working for two. A total of 40 man-years has been set aside to allow the forces to help in security at the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton later this year.

MILK AID CUT

OTTAWA (CH) — A program described as an important way to make sure poorer Canadians are able to buy milk has been scrapped by the federal government, spending estimates tabled Wednesday show.

The program was a 34-cents-a-pound subsidy on skim milk powder sold in consumer-sized packages in retail outlets. It cost the federal government $18 million last year. Without it, the price will go above $1 a pound.

Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) asked in the Commons why a program that benefitted mainly low-income earners was being dropped.

Bi-Bi Costs Jump

OTTAWA (CP) — Official federal spending estimates show the cost of translating speeches, documents and other material from one language to another will increase 8.9 per cent to $51 million in the financial year beginning April 1.

But an accompanying easy-to-read publicity release by the federal treasury board says translation costs will rise only 3.6 per cent to $48.5 million.

The discrepancy is caused by an apple-and-orange comparison of translation figures — one example of many bewildering contradictions in numbers issued by the Treasury Board.

A board official said the figures in the main estimates that must be approved by Parliament include the full cost of government translation.

The publicity release, called a fact sheet, shows only the cost of translating material from one or the other official language, French or English. Estimated cost of translation into other languages — $2.5 million — is not included.

AIB's Still Expensive

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Anti-Inflation Board will be winding down its activities and operations in the fiscal year 1978-79 but it will cost the Canadian taxpayer $22,708,000, or only $1,181,00 less than it did in the current fiscal year.

Finance department officials explained that it will be continuing operations on a reduced scale but its work load will not be that greatly reduced until the next year, 1979-80, when it may go out of existence.

The controls program imposed by the federal government on wages and prices comes to an end April 14 this year. However there are a number of companies that will continue to come under the scrutiny of the AIB past that date and well into the fiscal year 1978-79.

The staff of the board will, in the case of those companies, still be monitoring changes in prices, profits, compensation and dividends. It will be checking to ensure that there is no flagrant variation from the guidelines for some months.

But the board will be undergoing a "winding down" process and by the end of the fiscal year 1978-79 its costs of operation should be relatively minor.

'PORK BARREL' GOES TO QUEBEC

OTTAWA (CP) — The public works department will spend more money in Quebec this year than in the nine other provinces and two territories combined, federal spending estimates tabled Wednesday show.

The figures show the department, often labelled by opposition parties as a government pork barrel, will spend about $173 million in the province, 57 per cent of the total of $306 million to be spent in the entire country.

Quebec has about 27 per cent of the country's total population of 23 million. But 60 of the province's 74 seats in the Commons are held by Liberals.

The four Atlantic provinces, which have about 9.5 per cent of the population, will get only eight per cent of the spending by the public works department this year — a total of $26 million.

Ontario, which has 36 per cent of the population, will get about $46 million or about 15 per cent. The western provinces and two territories, which have 27 per cent of the population, will get 23 per cent of the spending or about $118 million.

The Quebec projects include $71 million to complete the new $254 million Montreal postal terminal.

The Quebec expenditures also include $8.5 million toward a new $19 million taxation data centre in Shawinigan, the riding of Finance Minister Jean Chretien.

But the planned expenditures do not appear to include a four-year, $42 million federal renovation of the Quebec City port area announced last week by Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet and five fellow cabinet ministers in a special ceremony there.

That project had been on the shelf for some time but Ouellet said reactivating it was a way to combat high unemployment in the region.

It is also not clear from the estimates how much money Quebec will receive in housing grants and loans from Centrel Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) which will distribute more than $1 billion in grants and loans in fiscal 1978.

More Gas Finds In Peace

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — The oil and gas exploration picture in northeastern British Columbia was broadened Tuesday when Wainoco Oil Corporation of Houston, Tex., announced two discoveries in the Flatrock area northeast of here.

The corporation announced completion of separate wells producing oil and gas. Both wells are located about four miles from previous oil discoveries in the Cecil Lake-Eagle area.

Wainoco, in partnership with Wainoco Oil Ltd., the company's Canadian subsidiary, owns 100 per cent of the working interest in the oil well and 1,920 acres of leases surrounding it.

Follow-up drilling will be delayed because of a scarcity of drilling equipment, said Gary Woods, Wainoco vice-president.

Woods said it is not known how quickly the gas well will be hooked up to existing pipeline facilities.

Victoria has 40 departments working on the project, he says, "and common sense tells me that when you get 40 departments you get a very confused mess."

Fort Nelson has run out of room for new housing and commercial development, says Shuck, and needs to plan expansion immediately to meet the demands of 1980 pipeline construction.

Information on the exact pipeline route and planned access roads is also unavailable, he adds, raising the possiblility that sensitive moose and elk migration routes might be opened directly to the highway.

"It's inconceivable to me that the B.C. government would go to the federal government to negotiate without ever coming to the people of the north to ask their views," Shuck says. "It could be disastrous."

RESUME PROBE: THOMPSON

U.S. Pressuring For B.C. Oil Port

OTTAWA (CP) — Immediate resumption of the West Coast oil ports inquiry has been called for by Dr. Andrew Thompson who says there is strong United States pressure for an oil port in British Columbia.

Thompson, a law professor at the University of British Columbia, says in an interim report to the federal government issued today that he fears Canada will bow to the U.S. pressure without fully considering the social, economic and environmental risks involved.

In a letter and accompanying 150-page report of the commission which he headed, Thompson says he wants a decision by the end of March on resumption of the inquiry.

"The uncertainty about this matter places me in a difficult position," Thompson said, adding it calls into question the integrity of inquiries in general and him personally in this case.

The inquiry was set up last year after Kitimat Pipe Line Ltd. applied for permission to build a pipeline from Kitimat to Edmonton where it would connect with existing lines into the U.S. Alaskan oil would be delivered to Kitimat by tanker.

Thompson makes it clear he feels there is still work to be done, saying even without a proposed terminal at Kitimat, British Columbia faces real dangers because of existing oil tanker traffic off its coast.

He said the people of British Columbia fear Ottawa, facing pressure from the U.S., will make a decision on a West Coast oil port before a proper assessment is completed "as has been the case with the Alaskan Highway natural gas pipeline."

That pipeline has been approved to move Alaskan natural gas to U.S. markets, but there has still been no detailed study of social and environmental affects, he said.

Last fall, after Kitimat placed its application in abeyance while use of an existing pipeline was considered, the oil ports inquiry adjourned with a promise it would be reactivated if the application was reactivated.

But Thompson says a cabinet order passed in December gives the federal government the right to say whether the commission will resume its work and if no decision is reached by the end of March "the inquiry will automatically terminate."

Consumers To Pay, Says Clark

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers are going to pay the cost for inept government economic management that has forced it to seek foreign borrowing to support the dollar, Opposition Leader Joe Clark charged Wednesday.

The Liberal government now will be forced to raise domestic interest rates to attract capital, Clark suggested during emergency Commons debate that turned into a wide-ranging attack on government economic policies.

Higher interest rates will create inflationary pressures and make new investment more expensive for companies, Clark said at the outset of the debate that lasted for more than six hours on a night MPs usually have free.

Clark was joined by Ed Broadbent, leader of the New Democratic Party, in charging that international money markets have lost confidence in government handling of the economy.

In heated debate Clark challenged Finance Minister Jean Chretien to clean up his "street-fighter image" and to take his responsibilites more seriously.

Both Clark and Broadbent said Chretien was responsible for much of the current uncertainty about the country's economic future that is plaguing world money markets.

Chretien replied that the opposition parties were trying to "create a crisis" where none existed. He said the dollar's closing price Wednesday of 89.73 cents U.S. is the same as it was five months ago and only half-a-point lower than on Feb. 1.

"Half a point and they call it a big crisis," he told jeering opposition benches.

The Canadian dollar was down 1-20 at $0.8968 today in New York. In Montreal, the U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 3-50 at $1.1150.

Meanwhile, The U.S. dollar plunged even lower on overseas markets today. Foreign exchange dealers in Bonn said again today they were skeptical about American willingness to back the dollar. It is noted that a falling dollar in itself will help make American exports cheaper, and therefore ease the U.S. deficit.

Speaker after speaker echoed the remarks of their leaders amid cat-calls from across the floor. The government was accused of flim-flamming Parliament, of lying to MPs and of generally mismanaging the economy. Liberals replied that a lower dollar helps exports and Canadian business.

The emergency debate was granted by Speaker James Jerome after a government announcement Tuesday night that an undisclosed amount of foreign borrowing is being arranged to support the dollar.

The government is also drawing on a special $1.5 billion standby credit it arranged with domestic chartered banks last fall. Details are to be revealed in a few days, Chretien says.

Defending government policies, Chretien said economic recovery now is underway. Output grew at a real rate of five per cent in the final half

HOLIDAY SPECIALS FOR SHORT PEOPLE?

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's tourist industry, sparked by a similar plan in Missouri, is investigating the idea of offering special package holidays for short people.

The Missouri plan is the result of a current popular song, Short People, which has nothing good to say about short people.

Attractions being offered in Missouri include: the Ozarks a "small mountain range", and the Meramac Caverns near St. Louis "suitable for short people because the roofs are so low."

Grace McCarthy, B.C. tourism minister, said Wednesday that Missouri's tours may be tongue-in-cheek proposals, but there could be a legitimate market for B.C. concerns.

Canada's Gazetteer shows potential interest spots in B.C.: Shorts Point on the west side of Oakangan Lake; Little Tim Creek in the Kootenays; Small Creek in the Cariboo; and Cutoff Mountain in the Cassiar District.

Hugh Main, general manager of the Greater Vancouver Visitors and Convention Bureau, said Wednesday he finds the idea intriguing and immediately launched a campaign to ask B.C. tour and travel firms if they would offer holidays for short people.

Main said he wondered whether short people would want to travel in conspicuous groups, but agreed they might find the experience an opportunity to rid themselves of any inhibitions.

Bureau president Dave Flett said he feels more sorry for tall people because "they have problem of asking hotels for oversized beds — they never know where to put their legs."

Federal Estimates Fail To Impress

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President Robert Andras failed to impress opposition critics Wednesday with government plans to spend $48.8 billion in the coming fiscal year.

Andras, who holds the government's purse strings, said federal spending in the year beginning April 1 will rise by 9.8 per cent or $4.35 billion from the 1977 level. (See other estimats stories on page 44).

The rate of increase is expected to be less than the combination of real economic growth and the inflation rate in 1978, he said. Government officials have predicted real growth of five per cent and inflation of six per cent by the end of this year.

Soon after Andras tabled his figures in the Commons, they were attacked as a charade and "sad and perverse."

Progressive Conservative treasury critic Harvie Andre, joining in the numbers game, said in the last 10 years federal spending had quadrupled. The government's expected deficit this year, estimated at $9.2 billion, will be higher than the total federal budget the year before Prime Minister Trudeau took office, he said.

"There are cancers that don't grow that fast," Andre said.

Max Saltsman, NDP financial critic, said the government had displayed cowardice by knuckling under to a conservative swing in the country during an expected election year.

"This is a pretty sad and perverse document we've been handed today and there is no sign the government plans to do anything about the shame and scandal of unemployment," said Saltsman, MP for Waterloo-Cambridge.

ICBC Cast As Loser

New Westminster NDP MLA Dennis Cocke has charged the government is undercutting the Insurance Corporation of B.C. by letting a private insurance company use ICBC facilities to conduct business.

Cocke said the provincial government is so desperate to bring private insurance back to B.C that it is doing special favors for the private insurers.

Cocke says under the arrangement, ICBC staff and facilities will be used to do appraisals for Royal Insurance, the only private insurer of motor vehicles in the province.

He said the rates ICBC charges Royal won't cover the actual cost of staff time and the use of ICBC claims centres and facilities.

He also claimed ICBC is encouraging private insurers to cover the best risks, leaving the publicly-owned ICBC with a disproportionate number of high risk drivers.

Cocke said a Royal spokesman told him the company would pay economic rates for the service it will get from ICBC.

"I'll bet they are economic — economic for the company," he said.

Allmand Doubts Bug

OTTAWA (CP) — Former solicitor-general Warren Allmand said today the RCMP has an obligation to confirm or deny whether they instructed undercover agent Warren Hart to bug him because they thought he was a Communist.

But, he added, he personally doubts the force would have done such a thing.

Allmand told reporters that, contrary to a signed statement by Hart, the agent never told him he was the subject of electronic snooping. Hart came to see him in 1975 because he wanted help, Allmand said.

Allmand, now consumer affairs minister, was chief law enforcement officer and head of the RCMP when the incident involving Hart took place.

The U.S. Navy said today it has a civilian employee by the name of Warren Hart.

A navy spokesman said he has been employed since last August at the Patuxent River naval station, 50 miles southeast of Washington, as a chauffeur-messenger.

But the spokesman added that he understands the employee has denied giving an affidavit to Canadian MP Elmer MacKay (PC-Central Nova).

MacKay released an affidavit and supporting documents Wednesday in which a Warren Hart stated that he had conducted electronic eavesdropping for the RCMP and in the course of gathering information on alleged radicalism taped the conversations of some Canadian political figures. That Hart also said he now is employed by U.S. naval intelligence, but living near poverty level.

The Warren Hart at Patuxent could not be reached immediately for comment.

Canadian Nutrition 'Emergency'

OTTAWA (CP) — The nutritional condition of Canadians has reached a state of emergency despite an abundance of food, Health Minister Monique Begin said Wednesday.

Millions suffer from not eating well, Begin told the opening session of the national food strategy conference. "We have a great distance to go before we can be satisfied that we have done all we can for food safety and nutrition."

Health professionals, producers, consumers and other groups in the food system are trying to make the public more aware of nutritional needs, she said.

Nutrition has been identified as a problem by the federal discussion paper on a national food strategy which forms the basis for the two-day conference. The conference ends today after delegates discuss the recommendations of a myriad of workshops.

The Canada Food Guide, prepared by the federal health department, spells out food requirements and could correct the situation whereby 50 per cent of the adult population is overweight and 24 per cent have lost all their teeth, she said.

Begin said her department also plans to begin administering "the Food and Drugs Act and its regulations so that it does more to promote good nutrition." New food and food technologies were coming on the market and new guides were required to make sure those protein sources "will be as safe and nutritious as the old foods."

"We want to encourage the development of food products that are in line with our dietary recommendations and will be clearly labelled for consumer information."

Agriculture and fisheries would benefit through increased demand for their products if the diet guide were more rigorously adhered to, Begin said.

An Addiction to Soothe The Growth Pains

MIKA

The New England Connection

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Saanich alderman John Mika is an ideas pusher for the New England Connection, and if he can bring off his sale Saanich will acquire the habit this year for a modest outlay of only $13,000.

The way he sees it, this beneficial addiction will help ease the municipality and its residents through the next several years of growing pains, and ultimately ensure that Saanich remains a pleasant, semi-rural bedroom suburb.

What does New England have to do with Saanich?

According to Mika's theory, a whole lot, in a purely historical perspective.

He believes that the charming old towns of that area are what they are because they were built on a cornerstone of democracy, the town hall meeting.

A few times each year the residents would gather to discuss how their communities should develop. Should John Smith be allowed to build an addition to his home? Should a church be built, and if so where?

Such questions were thoroughly aired and, in due course, the residents appointed their selectmen to administer the community's affairs along the guidelines established.

"That system resulted in the creation of towns that are still beautiful, viable communities today, 300 years later," says Mika.

He would like to see the broad principle refined, adapted and applied to the governing of present-day Saanich.

Already the potential exists in the shape of 10 fairly active and vocal community organizations, but Mika says if the grass roots are to become healthy, vigorous plants they will need to be nurtured and fertilized by the municipality.

Such groups usually come into being because individuals are confronted with one or more common problems or concerns, he says, but once the issues have been resolved there's a tendency for the organizations to lose their impetus or even to disband.

And that's where Mika's idea comes in.

He said he will soon propose, under budget business, that Saanich council officially designate for financing assistance a community association in each of the municipality's 13 distinct planning areas.

To be eligible, the associations would have to be registered under the Societies Act and open to all.

Once designated, they would be able to receive municipal grants, up to a maximum of $1,000 per association, on a dollar-for-dollar basis matching municipal contributions with the amount raised by membership dues.

Use of the money would be restricted to postage, printing of newsletters and hall rentals, the three items that now incur "crippling costs" for community groups, Mika said.

"I think these are legitimate uses for public money," he said. "The purpose would be to give the associations a continuing life, so that we can use them as a kind of Distant Early Warning line."

The proposal would give the municipality a direct line of communication to the organized groups representing neighborhoods with widely differing needs and problems, and a permanent sounding board for local neighborhood opinion.

Mika says the concept could also be expanded eventually to provide direct citizen involvement in decision making, through the establishment of local advisory planning groups whom the municipality would automatically consult on development and rezoning matters affecting them.

Last year, in the way he attacked various controversial development proposals, Mika earned a reputation in many quarters as an anti-development advocate. But he insists that's not the case.

He describes himself as a small-c conservative favoring a slow and cautious approach to the job of building the community. "It can't be done overnight and there's no need for break-neck speeds."

And he doesn't buy the argument that caution means delay which in turn leads to a cost increase in the end product — housing.

"Developers have a personal lifespan of, what, 75 years? For them delay probably does mean an enormous loss.

But what is the lifespan of Saanich? It's going to be hundreds of years. Is it better to speed up a decision for one individual, or avoid the risk of making a mistake with a major development which Saanich will have to live with for generations?"

Mika maintains that in municipal politicians' attitude toward development — especially in a municipality like Saanich which has little or no industrial-commercial tax base — there's a dangerous temptation to measure everything in dollar terms.

He says former mayor Ed Lum succumbed to that temptation, and it was largely responsible for his downfall in last November's election.

"Lum justified almost all of his decisions on the argument that it would increase the tax base and therefore it was good for the municipality and for the taxpayers. It was all very sincere.

"The trouble was, he was disinclined to listen when some ratepayers said we're willing to pay a bit more to live the way we want to live."

Chamber to Run Election Slate?

Victoria Chamber of Commerce will consider whether to run a slate of candidates in the next Victoria civic election, president John Ansell said Wednesday.

"This is a question we should seriously consider," he said.

"It would take a change in our constitution if we decide to go ahead."

Ansell told a meeting of the chamber board of directors at the Strathcona Hotel the question should be referred to a chamber committee for preliminary discussion.

Later in an interview he said he would favor chamber involvement in civic elections if the present balance on Victoria city council between businessmen and community organizations becomes disrupted.

"There is a nice balance now but if it becomes weighted in favor of the community groups then we would have to take a serious look at it."

Ansell said the question of chamber involvement in politics is being debated by chambers across Canada.

Ansell had some reservations about direct political action but said there is evidence of a form of left-wing political activity in civic elections and this might have to be countered in the future.

He stressed the chamber has not come to any firm conclusion on the question. A long internal debate might be needed.

The issue was raised by chamber economic director Cedric Steele who strongly urged the chamber to run a slate in Victoria civic elections this fall.

He said young businessmen are becoming concerned about a reluctance on the part of city council to permit development in the city.

"Development means jobs that we desperately need," he said.

Steele said anti-development groups have had a dominant influence on council during the past 12 months.

He said regardless of the chamber decision, he will begin to organize businessmen and real estate agents into an activist group to attend public hearings and take other direct action.

He said the chamber has a responsiblity to run candidates or it will lose the battle for development by default.

UIC Eyeing Civic Gov'ts

No Greater Victoria municipalities have been caught abusing the Unemployment Insurance system but they are being kept under close scrutiny, UIC regional manager George Milne said today.

He was commenting on a statement by the chairman of the UIC program, J.L. Manion, that some Canadian municipalities hire welfare recipients just long enough to get them qualified for UIC payments.

This removes them from municipal welfare rolls and makes them a cost to the federal program.

"This has not been a problem in the Victoria area," Milne said. "We have not detected any local pattern of this kind. I am sure it is happening in many places in Canada, however, and we will keep a careful watch on the situation."

Milne said the main target of UIC auditors are cheaters who fraudulently collect benefits while employed.

"We will be catching more and more of these cheaters under our program of checking payrolls. If someone is collecting wages we will be able to detect it."

Those who stay within the rules but not the spirit of the program are in a grey area, he said. For example, it is quite proper for employers to hire people for a short term and then let them go. If that qualifies them for UIC payments, that is a secondary effect.

If too many employers followed the pattern it could create a serious drain on the UIC fund but within limits, the practice creates some benefits.

For example, he said, federal job-creating programs give many young people their first work experience and this could help them to find permanent work later.

The fact they are eligible for UIC payments is part of the price of the program. He said this pattern has brought a mixed response, including some critics who believe it achieves little more than adding to the drain on UIC funds.

Milne said if it is kept within limits, short-term employment of this kind can be beneficial to the country, despite the cost to UIC.

Esquimalt Policeman Charged

A charge of assault causing bodily harm in connection with a 14-month old incident has been laid against an Esquimalt police officer.

The charge alleges Askew assaulted Ronald Shingler, of 613 Drake, on Dec. 19, 1976.

At a B.C. Supreme Court hearing held Jan. 4, Mr. Justice J.G. Ruttan ordered Victoria justice of peace Earl Allan Berthiaume to re-hear Shingler's application to charge Askew.

Berthiaume decided not to proceed with the charge when the matter was brought before him in January 1977.

Ruttan found Berthiaume had not reached the decision in a full and unbiased manner.

Camosun Passes Stiff Test

Camosun College passed a fire marshal's inspection Wednesday, but now has a bigger problem — finding study space for students.

The college eliminated study areas to comply with the fire marshal's order and is now is suffering from a major space shortage for students and material, president Grant Fisher said today.

Fisher has recommended renting space from the Greater Victoria School District's Paul Building next to Lansdowne Campus or bringing in portable classrooms.

Former City Alderman Dies

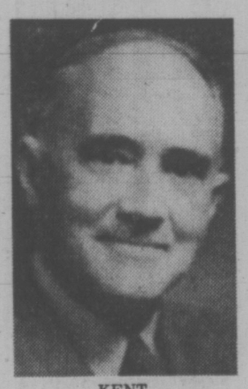
Marshall Aubrey Kent, a former Victoria alderman, past president of the Union Club and the Chamber of Commerce, died today at the age of 87.

Kent was born in Victoria in 1891 and lived most of his life here, establishing himself as a businessman, and rising to the rank of lieutenant-colonel during two world wars. He also spent several years in civic politics.

He attended Victoria high school and was paid $15 a month during school holidays to act as a trumpeter on the early Tally-Ho wagons.

A keen sportsman, in 1921 he lead the James Bay Athletic Association doubles rowing team to a series of trophies.



KENT
... active career

In 1914 Kent won a commission in the militia and served three years in France with the 39th Lethbridge Battalion.

At one point he wrote home saying that serving on the rain-drenched front was much like hunting ducks in the Cowichan marshes — "except that you are shooting and being shot at as well."

From 1934 to 1938 he commanded the 5th B.C. Coast Brigade.

In 1941 the army called him up and he served as officer commanding the artillery officers' training centre at Gordon Head, then as G.S.O.2 at Petawawa. For the last two years of the war he was on the officers' survey board, Western Canada.

His career in civic politics began in 1947 when he was elected alderman, leading the polls. In 1949 he was barely edged out in a race for the mayor's seat by Percy George, and he lost out in another mayoralty challenge to Claude Harrison in 1951.

An avid hunter, fisherman and boater, Kent was well known at Canoe Cove where he moored his boat for many years.

Funeral arrangements for a private service have not yet been announced.

Aldermen, Trustees Join Campaigning Parents

Three Victoria aldermen and two school trustees Wednesday night joined more than 100 parents preparing objections to the possible closure of Margaret Jenkins Elementary School.

Margaret Jenkins is third on the list of six elementary schools slated for a public hearing in March to determine their future in the Greater Victoria School District.

The board made a budget commitment to reduce 150,000 square feet of space this year due to declining enrolment.

But the Wednesday night gathering indicated that will not happen without opposition. The group included trustees John Young and Carol Pickup and Victoria aldermen Bill McElroy, Robin Blencoe and Ron McKenzie.

When the Margaret Jenkins public hearing takes place March 8, school administrators and trustees can expect to hear a number of arguments against closure:

— Other elementary schools in the neighborhood of Margaret Jenkins are full and cannot take new students.

Small local schools are an integral part of residential neighborhoods and closure would have a serious impact.

— Young families have begun moving into neighborhoods with low housing prices like Fairfield, indicating the declining enrolment picture could change.

— Extra rooms can be used for special classes like music, science and reading.

— Closure would mean moving two classes for the hard-of-hearing and a class for educatable mentally retarded students, requiring these students to adjust to a new classroom situation.

— Money saved by closing Margaret Jenkins is small, because of renovations of other schools to accommodate the students and loss of education ministry grants.

The school board's Facilities Study '77 planning report was criticized by the aldermen, who said the figures used to recommend closures were old.

McElroy told the parents to concentrate on trustees who are undecided on the closure issue, rather than try to shake the convictions of those who have already made up their minds.

If trustees see a large audience at the public hearing they could decide closing Margaret Jenkins can affect their chances for re-election next fall, he said.

Noodles Are a Complement

craig claiborne

FOOD & nutrition

Noodles and noodle dishes, whatever their origin, are one of the most welcome miracles of gastronomy, a blessing at tables that know no national boundaries.

It has been empirically established that many of the most popular recipes for foods ever printed in this column have been those that deal with noodle casseroles, and for numerous reasons.

In the first place, noodles, because of their essentially neutral nature (they must be sauced or otherwise garnished even if only with butter and cheese) take well to an infinite variety of flavors. And they complement the foods with which they are placed in the league.

They team well with almost all poultry, meat, vegetables and fish. A noodle casserole—whether subtle or robust in character—can be a winner as a super dish or as what people tend to call "party fare". Dinner for one can be a party if the food is delectable.

Noodles are also economical. They have a marvelous way of making a little poultry meat or fish stretch dinner for two into a party for four.

Crab and Noodle Casserole

1 pound fresh crab meat
7 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg
Tabasco sauce to taste
2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced
Juice of half a lemon
½ cup dry white wine
1 cup heavy cream
2 egg yolks
½ pound noodles, preferably fine noodles, although other noodles such as wide noodles, fettucini and so on will suffice
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese.

1. Preheat the oven to 425 degrees.

2. Empty the crab into a mixing bowl. If there are any bits of shell or cartilage apparent, remove them but leave the lumps of crab as whole as possible. Do not flake the crab meat.

3. In a saucepan melt three tablespoons of butter and add the flour, stirring with a wire whisk. When blended, add the milk, stirring rapidly with the whisk. When blended smooth and bubbling, add salt, pepper, nutmeg and Tabasco. Cook briefly and remove from the heat.

4. Melt one tablespoon of remaining butter in a skillet and add the shallots and cook, stirring, until wilted. Add the mushrooms and lemon juice. Cook briefly and add the wine. Cook until wine is almost totally reduced and add the cream. Cook five minutes. Add two tablespoons of the cream sauce. Add the crab meat.

5. Return the remaining cream sauce to the heat. Beat the egg yolks and add them to the sauce, stirring rapidly with the whisk. Remove from the heat.

6. Cook the noodles in boiling salted water until just tender. Take care not to overcook. They will be baked with the crab. Drain the noodles well.

7. Scatter the noodles over a baking dish (an oval dish measuring about 10 by 12 by 2 inches is useful). Spoon the crab mixture evenly over the noodles.

8. Spoon the egg-enriched cream sauce over the top, smoothing it over. Dot with remaining butter. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Place in the oven and bake 20 minutes until bubling throughout and golden on top.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Chicken, Broccoli and Noodle Casserole

3 pounds chicken, either whole or cut into pieces
Salt to taste
12 crushed peppercorns
2 ribs celery, quartered
1 small onion, peeled and struck with two cloves
3 sprigs fresh parsley
1 carrot, trimmed and quartered
8 tablespoons butter
6½ tablespoons flour
2½ cups chicken broth (from the cooked chicken)
1½ cups heavy cream
1 bunch broccoli, about two and one-quarter pounds
Freshly ground pepper to taste
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1 large or two small egg yolks
¼ pound fine or medium noodles
¼ cup grated gruyere or parmesan cheese

1. Place the chicken in a kettle and add water to cover, salt, peppercorns, celery, onion, parsley and carrot. Bring to the boil and simmer 30 minutes or longer or until chicken is tender but not dry. Set aside. Remove the chicken and cook down the broth to about three cups. Strain it.

2. Preheat the oven to 400 degrees.

3. Melt five tablespoons of butter in a saucepan and add the flour, stirring with a wire whisk. Add the two and one-half cups of broth, stirring rapidly with the whisk. When thickened and smooth, stir in the cream. Cook, stirring often, about 10 minutes longer.

4. Meanwhile, break the broccoli into "flowerettes." Drop them into boiling salted water and simmer about two minutes. Drain. Run under cold running water to chill. Drain well.

5. Pull the chicken meat from the bones. Remove and discard the skin. Cut the chicken into bite-size pieces. There should be about four cups.

6. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a heavy skillet and add the broccoli. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Cook, tossing and stirring the broccoli, about one minute. Add the chicken.

7. Add two cups of the sauce and stir gently to blend.

8. To the remaining sauce add the egg yolk. Reheat, stirring rapidly and constantly. Cook about 30 seconds and remove from the heat.

9. Cook the noodles in boiling water with salt to taste. Drain well. Toss with remaining butter, salt and pepper.

10. Arrange the noodles over the bottom of a baking dish (an oval dish measuring about 14 by 8 by 2 inches is good for this). Spoon the chicken and broccoli mixture neatly over the noodles.

11. Spoon the sauce over all and smooth it over. Sprinkle the cheese on top and place in the oven. Bake 15 minutes until piping hot throughout. If desired, run the dish under the broiler to obtain a richer glaze on top.

Yield: 6 servings.

PORK, POULTRY BETTER BUYS

OTTAWA (CP) — If you are doing some long-range menu-planning for the coming months, economists at Agriculture Canada have some predictions that might assist budget-minded shoppers.

"Focussing first on meat," they say in a news release, "beef will probably have a higher price tag due to a decline in quantity available on the market during the first half of this year, coupled with a depreciation in the Canadian dollar."

However, they say, pork supplies will take a turn for the better.

There will be more pork available due to lower feed grain prices.

The economists also predict that there will be a six- to eight-per-cent increase in supplies in the next six months "with a large percentage increase in the last part of this year."

Canadian lamb supplies will be slightly lower this year, so prices will probably remain high, they say.

"Lamb and mutton imports are also expected to increase in price this year," the release states. "This is due to a drop in numbers of sheep in both Australia and New Zealand."

The economists say that shoppers can plan more meals around poultry this year as supplies will be greater.

"Consumption is expected to increase by four per cent but this figure may further rise in response to special price sales."

"In addition, prices of broiler chickens will be lower because of lower feed costs."

The economists add that in anticipation of a large carryover of supplies, the Canadian Turkey Marketing Agency has reduced this year's target quota so turkey production will drop.
